

Financial, Commercial and Real Estate

Anniversary Sale

ENS

Commencing department, very finest of any available to evade hereof our quotations.

Linen at the Prices

Broodery Linen, 75c yard. Beer Handker, special at 50c, each yard. Towel Linen, 45c and $1.25 yd. Sheetling, Special.

Damask, full even quality, highly design, 75c 50c

Doz. Linen Napkins, and some 24c $2.29

Washing 29c yd. Guest Towel, Worth to Sale 29c

Woolen Towelling yard. Yards of Fancy, 18 and 22 and to put in worth up to 75c each. 50c

Woolen Cloth each. Waxed Table 2 x 72, very $4.50 their despair they begin to come to their aid. In Court hall that was at the Quirinal, and the surprise of all beholders, her neck a collar of pearls. From that she changed. Old coral had been hidden away years were again dis-covered, and were eager purchasers. object was attained, remarked the beginning of the Tor de Greco.

CO. 805

FLANNELETTE ANKETS. Tomorrow, 9 to 12 size, $1.39; 11-4 size

Miller, wealthy New Englander, in his Hoch, a barber, he shaves he always lands of the tonsorial adopted to prevent from becoming ex- where the only male life to his coun- tary course suc- cess is limited to direct of the last of a of the title. But, by of the provision first as other male be given the title, at least 200 years to army and navy, and of these have already

T. H. & B. Railway

For Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, New York, Boston. Solid train of sleeping cars from Hamilton and from New York.

H. C. MARTIN, H. C. THOMAS, G.P.A., Hamilton. Local Agent. Phone 110

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

DOUBLE TRACK ALL THE WAY
Brantford - Chicago
Brantford - Montreal

EXCELLENT TRAIN SERVICE
Equipment the best on all trains.

Winter Tours TO CALIFORNIA

AND ALL PACIFIC COAST POINTS, FLORIDA, TEXAS, NEW ORLEANS, ETC.
Winter Tours Tickets now on sale. Low Fares. Choice of Routes. Stop over privileges allowed.

Full particulars and berth reservations on application to Grand Trunk Agents.

R. WRIGHT, Depot Ticket Agent, Phone 348
THOS. J. NELSON, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Phone 84

The Rideau

New Afternoon Train
Smoker, Coach, Cafe-Parlor Car, and Library-Observation-Parlor Car, leaves Toronto Union 1:45 p.m., leaves Brantford 11:32 a.m.
Via LAKE ONTARIO SHORE stopping at 11 important points, thence to Smith's Falls, Merrickville and Komptville.
CENTRAL STATION (Spracks St., Chateau Lanier)

OTTAWA

Descriptive Folders from any Agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, or
W. LAHEY, Agent, 118 Dalhousie Street, Brantford
Le. Ottawa 1:15 p.m. Ar. Toronto 9:30 p.m.

FOR SALE

100 acres sand loam, about 14 miles from Brantford, 14 miles from village, first-class barn 20x20 ft., concrete hog pen 25x30 ft., 1-2 story frame house, containing kitchen, dining-room and parlor, four bedrooms, pantry and cellar in fair condition; farm well fenced, about 2 acres bush, good well and soft water. Price $7500.00. Might consider city property as first payment. Call and see about it. R.M.

Wanted

City property to exchange for farms, also garden properties. Building lots to exchange for houses.
We will buy the entire contents of your household for cash if thinking of giving up housekeeping. Call and see us.

J. T. SLOAN

AUCTIONEER
Real Estate, and Fire Insurance Broker.
75 DALHOUSIE ST.
Phone 2043 - House 2192

THE TRANSCONTINENTAL

New Route to Western Canada
TORONTO - WINNIPEG
Via North Bay, Cobalt and Cochrane
First Equipment—Solidest Road Bed
Lv. Toronto 10.45 P.M.
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday
Ar. Winnipeg 3.50 P.M.
Thursday, Saturday and Monday
Connecting at Winnipeg with
C. P. Train leaving 6.00 p.m. daily for Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton and intermediate points.
Through Tickets to Prince George
Prince Rupert, Alaska
Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle and San Francisco
Timetables and all information from any Grand Trunk, Can. Govt. Rys., or T. & N. O. Railway Agents

MARKETS

BRANTFORD MARKETS.

FRUIT
Grapes, basket	0.20 to 0.60
Crab Apples, basket	0.25 to 0.60
Pears, basket	0.25 to 0.35
Apples, basket	0.25 to 0.35
Plums, basket	0.30 to 0.40
Peaches, basket	0.30 to 0.40

VEGETABLES
Pumpkins	0.05 to 0.20
Beets, bus	0.20 to 0.30
Radish, basket	0.15 to 0.60
Horseradish, bottle	0.15 to 0.60
Peppers, basket	0.25 to 0.60
Onions, basket	0.25 to 0.60
Potatoes, bush	1.00 to 0.60
Parsnips, basket	0.20 to 0.30
Cabbage, doz.	0.40 to 0.60
Celery, 3 bunches	0.10 to 0.60
Carrots, basket	0.15 to 0.20
Furnips, bushel	0.30 to 0.60
Parsley, basket	0.10 to 0.60
Caiflower, doz.	0.60 to 0.60
Green squash, each	0.10 to 0.20
New Potatoes, bush.	0.45 to 0.60
Green Peppers, basket.	0.25 to 0.60
Beans, doz.	0.10 to 0.60
Corn, 3 dozen	0.25 to 0.60
Vegetable Marrow, each.	0.05 to 0.60
Squash, each	0.05 to 0.20

DAIRY PRODUCTS
Butter, per lb.	0.32 to 0.60
D.C. creamery	0.24 to 0.27
Eggs, dozen	0.40 to 0.60
Do., choice, lb.	0.18 to 0.20
Do., old, lb.	0.22 to 0.60
Honey, sections, lb.	0.15 to 0.60

MEATS
Beef, roasts	0.15 to 0.18
Do., sirloin, lb.	0.18 to 0.20
Do., brisket, lb.	0.15 to 0.20
Steak, round, lb.	0.18 to 0.60
Do., side	0.20 to 0.60
Do., ribs	0.10 to 0.60
Ham, smoked, lb.	0.20 to 0.60
Do., fresh, lb.	0.45 to 0.60
Lamb, hindquarter	2.00 to 0.60
Do., hind leg	1.50 to 0.60
Do., foreleg	0.25 to 0.60
Veal, lb.	0.12 to 0.18
Do., ribs	0.10 to 0.15
Beef hearts, each	0.25 to 0.30
Kidneys, lb.	0.12 to 0.60
Do., fresh, lb.	0.16 to 0.18
Pork chops, lb.	0.23 to 0.60
Do., ribs	0.13 to 0.60
Spare ribs, lb.	0.13 to 0.60
Chickens, pair	1.00 to 1.50
Do., small, doz.	0.25 to 0.60
Yellow pike, lb.	0.12 to 0.60
Starling, lb.	0.23 to 0.60
Geese	1.75 to 2.00

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Liverpool, Nov. 29.—Wheat, spot, quiet. No. 2, Manitoba 115 sd; No. 3, Manitoba, 115 ad; No. 2 hard winter, 115 1/2 sd; No. 2 hard, winter, old, 125 1/2 sd.
Corn, spot, quiet. La Plata, 85 3d; flour, winter patents, 42s; hops in London, Pacific Coast, £4 to £5; Beef, extra India mess, 145s; pork, prime mess, western, 17s 6d; hams, short cut, 14 to 16 lbs., 87s 6d; clear bellies 14 to 16 lbs., 70s; lard prime, western in tierces, new, 53s; old 54s; American refined, 67s 6d; butter, highest U. S. in 56 lbs. boxes, 56s 9d; cheese, Canadian, finest, white, new, 81s; colored 92s; tallow, prime city, 34s; Australian in London 51s 9d; turpentine, spirits, 44s 9d; rosin, common, 17s 6d; petroleum, 9 3/4 d; linseed oil, 34s; cotton seed oil, null refined, spot, 35s 7 1/2 d.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Cattle, receipts, 6,000; market weak; native beef $5.65 to $10.00; steer $6.50 to $8.20; cows and heifers $2.70 to $8.00; calves $6.25 to $10.25; hogs, receipts 48,000; market slow; light $5.80 to $6.75; mixed $6.15 to $7.00; heavy $6.35 to $7.00; rough $6.25 to $6.80; pigs $4.00 to $5.75; bulk of sales $6.25 to $6.80; sheep, receipts 12,000; market strong; wethers $6.00 to $6.50; lambs, native $7.00 to $8.10.

EAST BUFFALO MARKETS

East Buffalo, Nov. 30.—Cattle—Receipts 400 head; active and firm. Veals—Receipts 250 head; active; $4.00 to $11.50.
Hogs—Receipts, 5,000 head; active, heavy $7.10 to $7.20; mixed $7.00 to $7.10; yorkers, $6.50 to $7.05; pigs, $6.25 to $6.50; roughs 6.00 to $6.10; stags $4.50 to $5.50.
Sheep and lambs—Receipts 2,000 head; active; lambs, $6.00 to $9.30; others unchanged.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—There was a good active market with a light run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards to-day. Good quality cattle were scarce; lambs were higher, sheep and calves firm, hogs steady. Receipts 1263 cattle, 160 calves, 991 hogs, 671 sheep. Export cattle, choice, $7.25 to $7.50; butcher cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7.00; ditto, medium, $6 to $6.50; ditto common, $5 to $5.75; ditto, canners, $3.50 to $4; ditto, bulls, $4.25 to $6.75; feeding steers, $5 to $6.50; stockers, choice, $5.75 to $6; ditto, light, $4.25 to $5.50; lambs, $6.65 to $9.40; hogs, fed and watered, $9.50; calves, $4 to $10.

Belief No Matter.

Montreal, Nov. 30.—Belief or disbelief in God does not debar a man from sitting on a jury, and his affirmative is of the same value as the oath of the other man, decided Mr. Justice Pannington in the Superior Court, when one of the jury chosen for the case of Guthrie vs. the Montreal Baseball Club, told the court he did not believe in God.

Old World Notes

The Devil's Bible is in the Royal Palace Library of Stockholm, Sweden. It is a huge copy of the Scriptures, written upon 300 prepared asses' skins. One tradition declares that it took five hundred years to make the copy, which is so large that it has a table to itself. Another tradition affirms that the work was done in a single night by a monk with the assistance of his Satanic Majesty, who, when the work was completed, gave the monk a picture of himself for the frontispiece, where it is still to be seen; hence the name. This manuscript was carried off by the Swedes during the Thirty Years' War from a convent in Prague.

New Zealand has its own Victoria Cross—one of the rarest medals ever awarded "For Valor." This Cross is very similar to the one so much coveted by the officers army, navy, and air force. The centre, however, bears the wording, "New Zealand," instead of "For Valor," and has no lion. This medal was instituted in 1866 by the Governor of New Zealand, Sir G. Bowen. He exceeded his authority in doing so, but Queen Victoria signed the necessary order for the medals, adding a note, however, that it was not to be taken as a precedent. Altogether only nineteen of these crosses were awarded.

It was under the walls of Nish, ancient Naisus, that the Emperor Claudius destroyed an army of invading Goths in A. D. 269. It was here, also, that the Emperor Constantine the Great, was born in A. D. 274. Nish was destroyed by Attila, and his Huns in the fifth century, and in the ninth century the Bulgarians became its masters. The Hungarians and the Byzantines possessed it in turn in the eleventh century, and next it fell into the hands of the Serbians, who entertained the German Emperor, Frederic Barbarossa, and his crusaders in the city.

Salonica is, after Constantinople, the chief port in the Balkan Peninsula, with a population of about 450,000. It was captured by the Greeks in 1912 after a race with the Bulgarians, and it has since been held by Greece. It is a city of white houses, domes and minarets bowered among cypresses and mulberry trees, with a famous Roman and Byzantine remains. Included in its population are some 50,000 descendants of those Jews who were driven out of Spain by the Inquisition. They still speak the Spanish dialect.

The power of speech has been regained by a young Bulgarian soldier in a marvelous manner. During some heavy fighting he was severely wounded in the face and lost the power of speech, and he lay for 145 days in 1912 after a race with the Bulgarians, and it has since been held by Greece. It is a city of white houses, domes and minarets bowered among cypresses and mulberry trees, with a famous Roman and Byzantine remains. Included in its population are some 50,000 descendants of those Jews who were driven out of Spain by the Inquisition. They still speak the Spanish dialect.

An operation in which the doctor was in greater danger than the patients was recently performed in Dublin. One of the tigers in the Phoenix Park Zoological Gardens was threatened with gangrene in its paw, making it necessary to amputate. His experience was a thrilling one. The mate of the tiger was first secured through a side den. A net was then thrown over the tiger, and he was drawn to the door of the cage. Four stout keepers held the feet of the struggling animal while the professor cut away the diseased paw. The suffering beast furiously but vainly tried to get at him during the operation, but the rage of the tigers was so great that the bars of the side den were much more terrible to behold. She roared and violently threw herself against the barriers in her mad desire to go to the rescue of her mate. When the tiger was admitted to the cage after the wound of her mate had been dressed she turned up the claw and examined it with touching solicitude and then licked her mate, as a cat licks her kittens to soothe them, putting softly the while. But perhaps the most extraordinary part of the affair was the sequel. A week later the professor was again at the 'zoo' to see how his patient was getting on. When the animal spied him, he began to purr like a cat, allowed him to examine the paw and seemed pleased that he should do so.

Suggests Increasing Loan.

Montreal, Nov. 30.—T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has wired the Hon. Mr. White, Minister of Finance, asking that the government increase the amount of the $50,000,000 domestic loan to take in all applications, as was done in Australia.

Conference in West.

Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—The Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Governments are represented at a conference being held here to deal with interprovincial institutes for the care of the blind, deaf and dumb, and mentally deficient. The suggestion is that one institution be placed in each province.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

All records have been outdoors in the shipment of turkeys from Southwest Texas to northern markets for the holiday season.

JURY EXCUSED

SO COUNSEL COULD ARGUE

Trial of Hamburg-American Line Officials Given Over to Lawyers.

New York, Nov. 30.—The jury in the trial of the Hamburg-American Line officials on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States, was excused this morning to give counsel an opportunity to argue three motions, according to the defense. These were to dismiss the indictment, direct a verdict for the defense or instruct the jury to disregard all testimony concerning the Steamer Marina Quesada, which, according to the defendants, was not connected with the operations in furnishing supplies to German warships at sea. If the court denies the motions, to dismiss the indictment or orders a verdict for the defense, counsel for the accused is ready to put on its witnesses, the government having concluded the presentation of the case yesterday.

"LAYING" A GHOST.

An excellent story of the late Doctor Thomas of the Hamburg-American line, told by Mr. Arthur H. Engelbach, his "Anecdotes of Pulpit and Parish." The Archbishop was once put into a haunted house, that was supposed to be haunted. "The next morning his host asked him—'Well, did your Grace see anything unusual last night?'" "No." "Are you quite sure?" "Oh, yes; at about twelve o'clock I heard a knock at the door!" "Yes, that was the ghost; that is exactly what he does. What did you do?" "O, I said, 'Come in! Come in!'" "How brave of you! And did he come in?" "Yes," said the Archbishop. "An old saw-tooth-looking man, with bent figure and long hair." "Yes, that is the ghost who haunts this house. And what did you do?" "Well," replied the worthy prelate, "I got out of bed and went up to him. I asked him if he belonged to the house and he answered, 'I have assumed him if he was a parishioner; he nodded assent. I said, 'I am anxious to build some new schools. Will you help me?' He answered, 'The disappeared and didn't come back.'"

AN UNEXPLORED REGION.

A book that should interest travelers, hunters and naturalists is "The Rediscovered Country," by S. E. Hildreth. The contents are made up from a diary which the author kept during a hunting and exploring trip along the hitherto unexplored Anglo-German border in East Africa. The author tells us that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr. White and his friend, R. J. Cunningham, were not easily daunted, and, being surfeited with what the old hunting firm would be served, they set out to explore the region. "By degrees I came to see that most of British East Africa is a beaten track. Shooters are sent by the hundreds, varying little from those of several well-known circles. The days' marches and the nights' camps are planned in advance. There is plenty of game, and the country is wild; but the sportsman is in no essentially different conditions here than when with his guide he shoots his deer in the Adirondacks. And again I heard the tales of the oldtimers, varying little from those at home—in the old days, before the Sotik was overrun, the lions would stand for you; I remember the elephants in their migration, every two years from Kenya across the Abudares.' In short, in spite of the abundance of the game, in spite of the excitement and danger still to be experienced, the author concludes that the region has remained untouched because the German sporting tastes are not highly developed, and because the land from the British side is practically inaccessible. But Mr.