WATERDOWN,

ONTARIO

A mother was trying to impress upon her son that doing one's duty was rarely pleasant but that it should be done. And in order to prove her point she illustrated:

"Look at your father. He works and works; not that he likes it, but because it is his duty. Can you imagine your father doing anything just because it was pleasant?"

"Yes, mother, I can," answered the son.

"How and when?" asked the mother. And her gallant son answered: "When he married you, mother."
