

The destruction of the house fly is a public duty. Almost every American State Board of Health is carrying on a crusade against him.

His filthy origin and habits, and the fact that his body is generally laden with disease-producing germs, makes him one of the greatest enemies of the human race.

If the housekeepers of Canada will use

WILSON'S FLY PADS

persistently, this peril would be tremendously reduced

NO INTEREST NOW SHOWN

Alberta Waterways Commission Concludes Work—No Interest Shown in the Investigation—Bennett Has Withdrawn From the Case

Edmonton, Alta., July 5.—The Royal Commission investigating the Alberta and Great Waterways agreement practically concluded today. R. B. Bennett, the insistent leader of the opposition council, was not present, he having announced his withdrawal from the case. The proceedings were followed with languid interest throughout the day and no evidence of importance was brought out. The commission will meet at noon tomorrow to decide as to the advisability of a letter from Morgan and Company's London house, in reply to a letter from the commission's counsel, stating that W. R. Clark, president of the Alberta and Great Waterways railway, got no rake-off in the sale of the A. & G. W. bonds.

Robert Jones, Government engineer maintained in the stand that his estimate of $28,000 per mile for the construction of the railway was not unreasonable. There is just a bare possibility that the commission may go to England to take the evidence of the Morgans. This, however, is unlikely and would be against the advice of the commission counsel.

The witnesses examined today were M. J. McLeod, Deputy provincial treasurer; Jno. Stocks, Deputy Minister of Public Works; E. Trowbridge, late Private Secretary to Hon. W. H. Cushing and now Provincial Secretary; L. C. Charlesworth of the Public Works Department; J. M. Thomlate, Private Secretary to Hon. C. W. Cross; John Chalmers, engineer of Public Works Department, and R. W. Jones, government engineer.

Ex-Premier Rutherford and Hon. C. W. Cross were in court during the day. Hon. W. Cushing and John A. McDougall, junior member for Edmonton, are now in England on a vacation.

NEW GRAND DIVISION

Canadian Northern Forms New Division of British Columbia Section. A new grand division of the Canadian Northern Railway is shortly to be established covering the whole of British Columbia. Such was the information which Hugh Sutherland gave out yesterday. The tremendous expansion of the C. N. R. line is divided into two sections, one being known as the Western which stretches to and beyond Winnipeg, and the other which extends from Lake Superior towards the Atlantic. It is a little premature to say who will be the executive head of the new divisions but at the proper time the news will be furnished by the chief office at Toronto.

Construction work on the C.N.R. is forging ahead at a rapid rate in British Columbia and it will be a very recognized as a great transportation power in the big western province. The work contracted for by the Northern Construction Company on the construction of a sixty mile section from Port Mann up the Fraser river is now under way, and C. V. Cumming the construction company's agent of Winnipeg, states that rapid work will take place and that before long another transcontinental railway will run into Vancouver under the name of the Canadian Northern Pacific railway, for that is the name by which the company is acknowledged in British Columbia by the provincial government which has guaranteed the bonds.

Survey Great Lakes.

Ottawa, July 4.—With the object of interesting the Dominion government in undertaking a bathymetrical, physical and biological survey of the great lakes, Sir John Murray, K.C.B., of Edinburgh, Scotland, and one of the best known naturalists in the United Kingdom is in the city. Today he visited a number of government departments to ascertain if any steps have as yet been taken to perform this work.

Sir John, who is accompanied by his son, is a guest of the New Russell. Sir John is remembered as having been the naturalist on H.M.S. Challenger on its world famous cruise of exploration of physical and biological conditions of the great ocean basins which lasted from 1872 to 1876. He was officially appointed to undertake the publication of the scientific results of the expedition. In conversation with a reporter, Sir John expressed the view that a great work was to be accomplished in the survey of the great lakes, and if such had never been undertaken thoroughly he was anxious to do the work.

May Make Big Fight.

Montreal, July 5.—It is reported that Count De Lessepe may make an attempt to fly from Montreal to Toronto with his famous monoplane "Lascarabee" in which he crossed the English Channel. Nothing definite is known as the Count refuses to make any statement on the subject. It is stated by those close in touch with him that he has been studying the route as to possible stopping places. Considerable doubt is felt as to whether he would make such an attempt under conditions of a trial voyage of over 200 miles which would involve more than six hours flight, even if he were able to keep up his record of 50 miles an hour, while the danger of such a flight would be great.

The meet came to a quiet close this afternoon a success in every way except financially. The attendance was a great disappointment to the promoters the receipts being between $40,000 and $50,000 while the expenses are stated at $60,000.

JOHNSON CHAMPION

The Colored Fighter Puts Jeffries to Sleep in Fifteen Rounds—Jeffrey Acknowledges He was Fairly Beaten

Reno, Nev., July 4, Ringside.—Jack Johnson proved himself Jim Jeffries' master at every stage of the battle. Even the great test of strength that was looked for seemed to be in Johnson's favor. In the early rounds with the pressure of his right glove he twisted Jeff's left arm almost into hammerlock position to prevent the big fellow using it while clinched. As the rounds went on and Johnson's confidence came to him he took all kinds of liberties with Jeff.

As a rule Johnson whips his men with his right uppercut. He used it a few times today, but it was left hooks and left uppercuts while clinching that brought Jeff to terms. In the eighth Jeff was powerless after a few rounds had passed. He could not devise a way to escape punishment while they were feinting and swinging at close quarters. It seemed the easiest thing in the world for Johnson to free his left arm and tilt the big fellow's head.

First of all blood came from Jeff's mouth and then his right eye closed. His nose poured blood. After the sixth round the battle had a decided Johnson favor. Jeff got in a few body blows while going into a clinch, but he was slowly chopped to pieces, and all of Johnson's best blows were put in on Jeff when they were coming together in the fifteenth round Jeff was knocked down three times with left hooks delivered by Johnson while standing away Sam Berger was entering the ring on the occasion of the last knockdown to acknowledge defeat and Jeff was declared out.

Official timekeeper Harting announced that only eight seconds had elapsed when Berger jumped into the ring to protect Jeff from another punch. Harting says that Jeff would have been counted out anyhow, as he could not have straightened up in time before the count. Owing to Berger's interference the victory will be counted as a knockout.

Johnson's Training Camp, Reno, July 5.—Last night was a hilarious night at the roadhouse where Jack Johnson trained for his fight with Jeffries. Business started with a rush when Johnson, returning from the arena with his newly acquired fortunes and laurels, ordered wine for everybody in the resort. Johnson himself drank beer. Crows came out from the city to see the champion and they too spent freely. Given an impetus by the winning of about $10,000 by various members of the camp, the games of chance did a fine business. There was singing and dancing. Johnson was the main attraction while he was in evidence. As he planned to go to Chicago on a train that left at 9:45 o'clock, however, much of his time was taken up in packing. Loud cheers greeted the negro when he returned from the fight. He went from the arena to his camp in an automobile with Billy Delaney, his chief adviser.

The camp rushed out to meet him. His wife was one of the first to reach him. She saw the fight, but reached the resort before her husband arrived. "Oh, Jack, I'm so glad you won," she said. Friends shouted, clapped their hands and whistled. Johnson grinned broadly, but said nothing to the throng on the outside. He walked into the parlour where another party awaited him, and sitting down chatted with them for a few minutes. Everybody waited to hear about the fight. He said that he was not hurt and that there was nothing for him to tell. "Don't think I was scared at any time," he said. "I knew how it was coming out."

Before entering Vancouver in New York he will go to his Chicago home for a rest. "I want to be with my mummy," said Jack. At his orders a message was sent his mother immediately after the fight, telling her the result. The Crowd Leaving. Reno, July 5.—Reno is as busy disgorgeing the fight crowds today as it was on Saturday and Sunday welcoming them. The get away began within three-quarters of an hour after Jeffries' afternoon and trains have followed one another out of the city in quick succession with every car packed to its capacity. All the evening and into the early hours today automobiles swept out bound for the coast and California Valley cities, mingling camps far out of the Nevada desert and places far remote, and today Reno begins to look lost as far as population is concerned. Here and there groups of fight experts still linger on the shady side of the principal street and in the cafes and hotel lobbies. The big battle is, of course, the one topic, and is discussed in the cold calm that has followed previous enthusiasm. There is no animosity against Johnson, rather appreciation of his ability as a fighter. The fight had not gone four rounds before Jeffries' supporters began to doubt and in the eighth they felt sure they had been self deluded.

With Johnson the undisturbed champion the next question is, who will wrest it from him. Ring followers agree that no man now in the same measure up to the job. Very little attention is paid to Sam Langford's challenge, and the black champion himself regards it as a joke. He said last night he would disregard a challenge from any source, so apparently it remains for an unknown to do late for the championship.

No one knows just how many people saw the big fight, or what the gate receipts were. The turnstiles were used and the tickets were on sale in so many places that only approximate figures can be given. The lowest estimate of the gate money is $230,000, and the highest at $270,000. At all events it was the biggest crowd that ever saw a prize fight and the rates were so far ahead of any other engagement that the record disappears.

From all the fight, one thing stands out sharply. There is no mention of Johnson's "yellow streak," the thing that has been written and talked about since he came into prominence. The experts who sat at the ringside agree that not once did he give any indication of fear. His nervousness in the first round was apparent, but no one who watched him in that period of the fight could fairly attribute it to anything else than a kind of stage fright. His statement given out at his quarters last evening had been well thought out, but his remarks as he stepped back to his corner after Jeffries had been battered down were spontaneous and show his state of mind when the heat of battle was still on him. As his friends and the newspaper men crowded about him, while he lay in the hands of his seconds, he said: "Jeffries never could hit me, he couldn't penetrate my defence. I have always known this and he has just found it out. When he crouched I made him straighten up and then I picked him to pieces. I used every thing there is in pugilism on Jeffries and he could not stand the strain."

Jeffries people had little to say. They were to sorely disappointed. Jim Corbett said last night: "It was simply the old story of the pitcher going to the well once too often. It has happened to a whole lot of us and it must happen to Jeffries. Jeffries did not box often enough to give us a line on him. We knew him to be in great shape so far as running miles on the shape was concerned, but he did not spar enough for any of us to guess how he would show up on the ring line. As soon as he had boxed two rounds I knew that he had nothing. He was all right enough in spots where he did not need to be good, but the muscles used mostly in actual fighting, because of lack of practice during the training, refused to respond when called upon. The big fellow thought himself right, and he must have been or he could not have felt as well as he does after that beating, but he should have boxed more. Jeffries would have done better in a marathon than he could in this fight. It was only his courage and his condition that kept him there so long."

Frank Gotch sided up the ex-champion as follows: "Jeffries' head and his heart were right, but his hands and feet were not. Early in the fight I noticed him fall on some of the stunts he used to perform so well and right before my eyes. I knew he didn't have a chance. "Jeff belayed himself to be in good condition, and I have no doubt he was, but his trainers could not bring back the form of his younger days."

Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager admits that the better man won the fight, but insists that Johnson could not have beaten Jeffries when the latter was in his prime. Berger said: "The Jeffries of Monday was not the Jeffries of old. An absence from the game for six years made the atmosphere of the ring as new to him as it is to a raw amateur, except that the vitality and strength of the ambitious youngster were lacking."

At Mona Springs an air of gloom hung over the defeated champion's quarters, but a curious crowd shifted hither and thither down the useless boxing platform and gymnasium equipment and it promised to be but a short time until every sign of the brief habitation of the resort and the centre of attraction of the sporting world will be obliterated.

True to his character the vanquished fighter remained hidden from the curious eyes of the crowd. All of his friends, faithful in the face of the disheartening defeat, remained with him and these lingered under the cotton wood trees that shade the lawn. Now and then a little group gathered outside the fence and stared, but the main interest was gone, and it was but the idle and curious that remained.

Jeffries reiterated his purpose of starting for his home in California as soon as his arrangements could be perfected and beyond that gave no idea of his plans. The rubbers and trainers worked over his bruised face during the night and the swelling of his battered right eye was much reduced this morning.

At the resort where the champion prepared for his great fight there was little to indicate that he had even been through it, after he withdrew to his private car last night sparing no effort to get started toward the applause that awaited him in the east. His packing was done at good speed. Not a vestige of his own camp equipment remained today. News of the champion's departure was spread during the day previous enthusiasm. There is no animosity against Johnson, rather appreciation of his ability as a fighter. The fight had not gone four rounds before Jeffries' supporters began to doubt and in the eighth they felt sure they had been self deluded.

With Johnson the undisturbed champion the next question is, who will wrest it from him. Ring followers agree that no man now in the same measure up to the job. Very little attention is paid to Sam Langford's challenge, and the black champion himself regards it as a joke. He said

The banquet that Jeff's friends had planned to give their idol at the local cafe was abandoned when Jeffries returned to his training camp after his fight. He requested Berger to telephone to the cafe and say that he would not be present at the dinner. A few of the friends moved by hunger sat at the table and consumed the meat which had been prepared. There was no wine and little conversation.

THE HERALD DISASTER.

Jury Find No Evidence of Crime on Part of Owners of Building.

Montreal, July 5.—Upon the bringing in of the verdict of the coroner's inquest, freeing all concerned from blame, the investigation in the case of the Herald disaster has been concluded. Some of the most important testimony of the inquest was that of Mr. Walter J. Francis, Civil Engineer of Toronto University, with membership in the Canadian and American Societies of Civil Engineers. He was of the opinion that faulty floor construction was responsible for the disaster.

Building Inspector Chause, of Montreal, in the course of his evidence, said that in his judgement one of the floors had given way, disturbing the equilibrium of the centre wall and causing one floor to come down upon the others. The weakest portion of the floor was at the back upon the western side on the fourth floor where the steel floor had been placed, being beneath the metal tank and the presence of an opening to the stairway also served to weaken it. The finding of the jury was as follows: "We, the undersigned, declare the victims, which are named, met death as a result of the the collapse of the Herald building."

The jurors added: "We do not find any crime."

VETERANS.

Many Are Joining the Imperial Veterans' Association.

Winnipeg, July 5.—The five hundred mark has been passed by the new Canadian and Imperial Veterans' Association, and the promoters are now confident that they will reach a total of one thousand members registered before they complete organization. One of the surprises has been the number of Indian Muttiny and Crimean veterans still alive and the Afghan Indian frontier campaigns are also represented by quite a number. A surprisingly large number of ex-Grenadier Guardsmen of the Life Guards have also joined the veterans' brigade. Four clergymen are amongst those registered from outside points during the last day or two. Naval veterans appear to be scarce, not more than half a dozen being on the list, due to the fact that Britain had no recent wars participated in by the navy.

The oldest veteran comes from near Magrath, Alberta. He is 93 years of age and served both in the Crimean war and the Indian Mutiny. Another veteran from Edmonton shows 28 years of service in the Dragon Guards and the Lancers. There will be one week more for the city veterans to sign at 291 Garry street, where the list will remain until the exhibition opens. Those outside the city can secure their names on the honor roll by addressing the Secretary Veterans' Corp 123 Walnut street, Winnipeg.

WANT VOTES.

National Council After Hot Debate Demand Woman Suffrage.

Halifax, July 5.—The National Council of Women had a hot time today discussing and finally adopting a resolution moved on behalf of the Canadian suffrage association by Dr. Gordon, of Kingston, seconded on behalf of the Medical Alumni Toronto University by Dr. Todd: "That the National Council of Women of Canada does hereby place itself on record in favor of the enfranchisement of women."

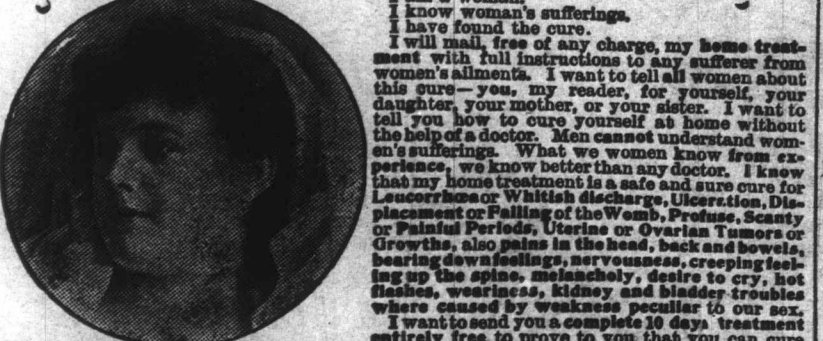

The following rider was proposed: "The Hamilton local council with connection with this resolution draw attention to article 11, of the constitution entitled, 'General Policy.' Inasmuch as the resolution seems inconsistent with the principles laid down in that article."

Lady Taylor, of Hamilton, led the fight against the enfranchisement resolution, holding that it was a political question and unconstitutional. It was midnight before the council got to a vote, when it was found that 71 delegates favored enfranchisement of women and 51 were against it.
