A CRIME THAT IS NOT PUNISHABLE.

How many people reading this article have gone into a drug store and asked for some well known and highly tried medicine and some unscrupulous druggist has said, "Yes I have that, but have you ever tried this remedy, it is just as good and costs less." Any druggist doing this has not the interest of your health at heart, but the interest of his pocket, as he can make more profit out of the cheap substitute.

For the protection and benefit of the public, we wish to say that Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY has been used in thousands of homes for the past sixty-two years and has never failed to give prompt relief and cure in all cases of Diphtheria, Dysentery, Colic, Stomach Cramps, Summer Complaint, Sea Sickness, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all Fluxes of the Bowels.
When you buy Dr. FOWLER'S, you are not experimenting with a new and untried remedy, but are getting one that has stood the test of time.

Miss Lettie Reid, Vivian, Ont., writes: "Last year I suffered untold agony from cramps in the stomach and did not know what to do until a friend suggested I should try Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and as I was glad to try anything I purchased a bottle.

"When I had taken four doses I found relief and since then I never fail to keep a bottle in the house."

ROUND WORLD IN 41 DAYS.

Englishman Tells How He Beat Jules Verne's Record.

Lieut.-Col. Burnley Campbell writes to The Times that he landed at Dover on June 13, after completing a circuit of the world in 40 days and 19 1/2 hours. If he had caught the St. Petersburg, express at Berlin on June 12 he would have reduced the time by several hours. After asking whether this is a record for speed around the world he gives the following particulars of his trip.

He left Liverpool on May 3 at 7.20 p.m. by the Canadian Pacific steamer. He arrived at Quebec May 10, 3 p.m., and left by the Canadian Pacific Railroad's overseas transcontinental mail train at 5 p.m. He reached Vladiv-stock May 19, at 5 a.m., and left at 12.30 p.m. on the Canadian Pacific's Pacific mail steamer. Arrived at Yokohama 5 a.m., May 26, and departed at 7 a.m., May 27.

He reached Tsaruga May 28 at 9.30 a.m., and left at 6 p.m. by a Japanese steamer which reached Vladiv-stock May 30, at 2.15 p.m. He then took a trans-Siberian train at 7 p.m. and arrived at Harbin May 31, at 7.25 p.m. He left at 8.30 p.m., and reached Irkutsk June 4, at 6.30 p.m.

He arrived at Moscow on June 10 at 2.38 p.m., and left at 6 p.m. He arrived at Warsaw June 11, 9.30 p.m., and left at 11.30 p.m.

Reaching Berlin at 11.55 a.m., June 12, he departed five minutes later, and arrived at Cologne the same day at 9.05 p.m., and left at 11.15 p.m.
He arrived at Ostend June 13, at 7.30 a.m., and left at 11 a.m., arriving at Dover at 2.50 p.m. the same day.

Lieut.-Col. Campbell was singularly fortunate in making connections, but on May 30 the steamer on which he was traveling ran aground on an isolated rock during a dense fog in the Sea of Japan. The tide fortunately lifted the ship off and enabled him to make railroad connections at Vladiv-stock. If he had missed that train there would not have been another for four days.

Stabbed With Butcher Knife.
Toronto, July 24.—John Cornacchia, 18 years, an Italian porter at the St.
Charles' Cafe, was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday, charged with stabbing James Ferry, English, a fellow-porter, with a butcher knife. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week. Ferry is in St. Michael's Hospital, painfully wounded.
The dispute occurred at 7.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The Italian wanted the freight hoist to take down supplies from the storeroom at the top of the building, while the Englishman wanted it to remove the garbage. The discussion waxed hot and the hoist was being shot from one floor to another when it is said, that the Italian stabbed Ferry.

Fatality at Midland.

Midland, July 25.—Yesterday morning J. G. Fellows was working on the stepping off one track to allow an engine to pass, he stepped in front struck by an engine coming from the opposite direction, and he was killed instantly.

MARK TWAIN SEES KING

FAMOUS HUMORIST SPENDS AN AFTERNOON AT WINDSOR

King Edward Laughs Heartily at His Jokes—Twain Wanted to Buy the Grounds—The Queen Was Much Amused—Looks as Young as Ever, Says Mark—Homburg Episode, Recalled.

Mark Twain was the centre of attraction at the King's recent garden party at Windsor, and besides meeting the King and the royal party, shook hands with several hundred nobles.
Upon his return from the garden party he declared that he was not a bit tired and had thoroughly enjoyed himself.

He was accompanied to Windsor by John Henniker Heaton, the "father of imperial penny postage," who introduced him to many of the King's guests on his way to the party, including Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Fridtjof Hansen, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand and Ellen Terry. He heartily congratulated Miss Terry on her recent marriage, and the two shook hands enthusiastically.

After tea, which was served on the lawn, Ambassador Reid presented Mark Twain to King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and the King and the humorist spent a quarter of an hour in conversation. The King laughed heartily at Twain's jokes. The Queen also joined in the conversation, and was much amused when Twain asked if he could buy the Windsor Castle grounds from Her Majesty.

Then the King called on him to meet the other guests. He introduced Twain to the King of Siam, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught and others. Prince Arthur is to receive a degree at Oxford at the same time as the American humorist, and he remarked that he would collapse if called upon for a speech.
Thereupon Twain offered to undertake to speak for him.

Mark Twain wore the regulation frock coat and silk hat at the garden party.

Speaks of Reception.

Speaking of his reception there, he said:

"His Majesty was very courteous.
In the course of the conversation I reminded him of an episode sixteen years ago, when I had the honor to walk with him when he was taking the waters at Homburg. I said I had often told about that episode, and that whenever I was the historian I made good history of it, and it was worth listening to, but that it had found its way into print once or twice in unauthentic ways and had been badly damaged there. I added that I did like to go on repeating this history, but that I should be quite fair and reasonably honest, and while I should probably never tell the story twice in the same way I should at least never allow it to deteriorate at my hands."

"His Majesty intimated his willingness that I should speak to disseminate that piece of history, and added a compliment, saying that he knew good and sound history would not suffer at my hands, and that if this good and sound history needed any improvements beyond the facts he would trust me to furnish these em-bellishments."

How the Queen Looked.

"I think it is no exaggeration to say that the Queen looks as young and beautiful as she did thirty-five years ago, when I saw her first. I didn't say this to her, because I learned long ago never to say an obvious thing, but to leave an obvious thing to commonplace and inexperienced people to say."

"That still looks to me as young and beautiful as she looked thirty-five years ago is good evidence that 10,000 people already have noticed this and have mentioned it to her.
I could have said it and spoken the truth, but I have been too wise for that. I have kept the remark to myself, and that has saved Her Majesty the vexation of hearing it for the ten thousandth and one time."

"All that report about my proposal to buy Windsor Castle and its grounds is a false rumor—I started it myself."

To Convey Prince Fushimi.

The Government has placed the Monmouth at the disposal of Prince Fushimi when he returns home after his Canadian tour. The Monmouth belongs to the County class. She was built in 1901, and has a displacement of 9,800 tons.

Gen. Booth's New Honor.

General Booth is among those who are this month to receive the honorary degree of D. C. L. at Oxford. He appears in the list of nominations as "the Rev. William Booth, General and Commander-in-Chief of the Salvation Army publications. General Booth tells the story of the timely assistance which he received from the late Mr. Samuel Morley soon after the enterprise had been launched, and when his success appeared to be in doubt. Mr. Morley sent for Mr.
Booth, and after a few pertinent questions rang for his cheque-book, and presented his visitor with a draft for a generous sum. "Here," said Mr.
Morley, "take this and come and see me again in three months' time." This gift proved very essential at a critical period in the Salvation Army's history.

FRAUD NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Kingston Merchants Saved From Depredations of Live Swindlers.

Kingston, July 25.—During the past two days this city was visited by a couple of clever swindlers.

They put up at a hotel, registering as Frank Lloyd and wife. The first move in the game was by the man, who visited the Y. W. C. A. rooms and obtained the president's address.
But after his departure those present remembered hearing of a swindle in St. Thomas worked ostensibly for the Y. W. C. A., so a word of caution was sent to the president. The man in due time made his appearance, represented himself to be getting out an attractive booklet in aid of the Y. W. C. A. Endorsement was, of course, refused temporarily.

The next place visited was the home of the women's national council, to whom he made the same representations, only substituting W.N.C. for Y.W.C.A. Here the swindler was successful in getting the president's endorsement.

The man and his companion then went to work at their "scheme." The merchants were visited and informed that they were getting out a booklet for the W.N.C. and advertisements were solicited, the "dummy" being divided into spaces, the charge for each being $5. Orders were numerous. After this a printing office was visited and arrangements made for the printing of the booklet.

The payment was to be made by an order on the president for the money. The merchants were to be asked to pay the canvassers, and with the money in their pockets they would quietly slip to other places, but the police were notified of their movements in the west and soon after their arrival they were shadowed.
They must have realized the situation, as they left this city Tuesday night.

LONDON'S FOGS.

They Are the Real Thing, These Dense, Damp Blankets.

Until one has passed a winter and spring in the British capital he knows nothing about a real fog. Perhaps there is one place where fog gathers more frequently, but never so densely.
That is on the banks of Newfoundland.
The story used to be told of the veteran H. E. Judkins, commodore of the Cunard line, that when asked by a woman passenger if there was always a fog on the banks he replied curtly:

"How do I know, madam? I don't live here."

But the Londoner who has to remain in town during the winter knows more about fogs than would the keeper of a lightship anchored in the path of transatlantic travel. It is because of the bad fog that the Britisher goes to the country in winter and remains in the city during the summer. He reverses the American rule. The height of the London season is at the very time when New York and most American cities south of parallel 40 are sweltering in the heat and deserted by everybody who can afford to get away.

There is so much bad winter weather in London that a really fine day is a surprise. In the months between November and May the average resident of the British metropolis generally awakens to find that big town enveloped in a dense mist that clings to the window panes, finds its way into every crack and crevice, forms in drops of water upon the stone sills, only to drop to half open shutters below; searches for small openings at window tops and thereby gains admittance to the sleeping room, where the mist expands like the geni of the Arabian tales until it fills the apartment, first chokes the sleeper, then causes him to turn over, only to find that a new place on his pillow is damp and causes him to say, as every Londoner says, "Another bad day."

Such is a typical awakening during the winter months in the most popular city of the world!

Were I to tell you that pedestrians constantly collide with one another, that the cries of the cabmen warning other drivers and people about are incessant and that objects animate or inanimate are often wholly invisible one foot distant you'd be incredulous, and yet such is the fact. Not every fog is so dense as that, but they do occur in London.

London Badly Overbuilt.

Gloom reigns throughout the building trades of London. Business is almost at a standstill, an immense army of skilled and unskilled workmen are without employment, and contracts have dwindled to vanishing point. The condition of affairs is the worst that has been experienced during the last quarter of a century. Unfortunately the prospect of present relief is not bright.

Master builders and contractors who have been interviewed said that there were many contributing causes to account for the slackness. "No one can deny," a south London contractor and builder said, "that there has been overbuilding in recent years. I can take you to districts in south, southwest, and southeast London where there are whole streets of empty houses. In one street in Brixton there are forty-five vacant flats—a significant fact in a district so close to town and easy to reach. But look at the west end; it is no exaggeration to say that capital amounting to millions is lying there absolutely idle."

One of the members of a leading London building firm attributed the stagnation to the diversion of capital into other channels presenting better prospects of profitable returns. One of the executive officials of a well-known London association intimately identified with the building trades said: "The present slackness is due to the sinister influence of the present Government upon capital. There is about a feeling of insecurity and uncertainty at which capital, ever sensitive to such impressions, has taken fright. Overbuilding has a lot to do with it, of course, but the present condition of politics is no mean factor."

A master builder largely interested in North London contracts said in that quarter conditions were not nearly so bad as they were in south and west London; but at the same time the outlook in north London was not rosy at present. Several contractors admitted that among their workmen the ill effects of the "slump" were being severely felt. Many trades auxiliary to that of building are also suffering from the present depression, and wholesale reductions of staff have been rendered absolutely imperative in many instances.

The number of empty houses had never reached such a high percentage before, said Ald. Howes at a meeting of the Finsbury borough council the other evening.

It was stated at a meeting of the Leeds city council recently that there were 10,000 empty houses in the town.
The proportion of unoccupied to occupied houses is roughly one in nine.

King Edward's Memory.

A story is being told which illustrates the King's marvelous memory for minutiae of detail. A certain yeomanly officer came up for presentation at the last levee, and in honor of the occasion ordered a brand new uniform. The army tailor who made the uniform slipped into some slight error with regard to straps and buttons.
The officer himself did not notice it, and it also escaped the eye of his colonel, who presented him, but as he passed the throne the King observed it, and sent an official order him to tell him what was wrong and that it must be altered. Another story illustrating the King's good memory for details is that, on the morning after Queen Victoria's death, when the new King went to Portsmouth, he noticed that the Royal standard was flying half-mast high. This was of course intended as a mark of respect to the deceased Sovereign. But in the presence of the reigning Sovereign the Royal Standard must always fly at mast high, and the King pointed out the error at once.—Dundee Advertiser.
