GOOD ROADS

"The repair of roads is as important as their construction. Neglect to keep the roads in repair, failure to repair them when repair is first needed, adds very much to the cost of roads. A good road which is not kept in repair very quickly becomes a bad road and the object of the original expenditure is thus lost. To allow roads to degenerate for want of repair, means an immense waste of labor, material and money, which has to be made up in their construction. Whenever good roads are made arrangements should be made for a careful attention to their repair."

COMPARISONS.

When I am tempted to berate

Be worse for me a plagu-ed sight.

Though it is true I do not get One-half what I deserve, but yet There are some other men, I guess, Who have to do with even less. My share at times seems mighty small, But there are some with none at all, Who one whole dollar never see, While I at times have all of three,

We cannot all be millionaires,
Have brussels carpet on the stairs
And eat enough to make us sick
Or rake in money double quick,
But if we get three meals a day
And have a little time to play
We should not at misfortune sigh;
Some men would call that living high.

That's mighty good philosophy. I try to have it comfort me, But it can't comfort worth a cent, For when my cash is nearly spent My troubles no more lightly press Because some men have even less; At consolation of that school I kick like one Missouri mule.

THAT BRIGHT BOY: Willie, can you tell me the mean-ing of leasure? It's the place where the married eople repent.

What a spplendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the Psalmist describes it issuing like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morming refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy as will Dr. Piere?'s Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes thes truggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation, as it contains no alcohol, whiske yor other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

Good advice seldom profits a man-as much as a good scape.
