"LIFTED OUT OF POLITICS."

The Spectator is more or less excited over the license inspectorship. Having succeeded in getting Mr. Birrell's official head, those whose opinions and desires it voices found, much to their disgust, that the man chosen to succeed him by the machine had not been appointed. They enjoyed a brief period of comfort when he declined to accept the office, and the wirepullers were convened and a notice was served on the Government that the will of the local machine was not to be ignored. It had selected the man. What did qualifications matter? Hadn't the machine nominee earned his job by hustling for Tory votes? And couldn't he draw the salary and close his eyes in certain directions just as well as the best of them? Well, they thought so!

Now the organ is scandalized to find that instead of the Government wiring acceptance of the Tory ward heeler as inspector it actually disregards the machine demand for urgency and temporarily retains Birrell in office—Birrell, who was to be thrown to the wolves—Birrell, whom the organ declares was "unsuited to the work." Shocking, isn't it? No wonder the machinists and their organ are indignant!

But perhaps the Government will take the organ's warning and defer to the machine. Of course, the organ knows that the Premier assured the people that the license system was to be "lifted out of politics." It knows that he has boasted that the "lifting" has been accomplished. It knows, too, just how insincere those pledges and boasts were and are. That is shown by the bulldozing manner of its editorial on the subject. The situation, it says, "may well cause the leaders of the Conservative party in this city serious thought." "Death! Hear you that? Why should it not? 'Already' says the organ, 'there are several names mentioned as possible successors of Mr. Birrell,' although the machine has in session duly convened picked out a man and demanded the office for him! What business has anybody to mention any other man for the office when the machine has chosen? Is it not 'reasonable to suppose that the Minister in charge of this department will pay some attention to any recommendation that may be made by the party heads before deciding upon the new official?' says the sorely disgruntled organ. It would be annoying indeed if after getting Birrell guillotined the Government would disregard the machine and appoint another, a man who might go on and really try to enforce the law without regard to the favorites of the party! Birrell cannot understand why he is thrown down, "except it be that some one has an axe to grind." Birrell has surely attained guessing school.

A CANDID FRIEND.

On Monday night Sir James Whitney at a Tory ward meeting in Toronto made a bitter attack upon the gentlemen connected with the Toronto Electric Light Company, against whom he has been conducting, with but indifferent success, a campaign apparently aimed at their destruction. In the course of his very intemperate remarks he made some rather scurrilous references to the capitalists interested in the company, and specially attacked the editor of the Canada Law Journal for his comments upon the Government's course in the Hydro-Electric matter. Mr. Henry O'Brien, K. C., the editor of the Canada Law Journal, is a prominent Toronto Conservative politician who, strong as his political feelings are, has not been able to remain silent under the gross outrages which Whitney perpetrates by the abuse of his position and by the subservience of his chattered majority. The Canada Law Journal has very plainly condemned the injustice of which Whitney has been guilty, and the Premier's attack of Monday night was evidence that he appreciated the justice of the censure passed upon him.

In replying to him, Mr. O'Brien, the editor, says that he does not wish to refer to the Premier's language "further than to say that Sir James apparently forgets the responsibility of the dignified position which he at present occupies." He goes on, with almost cruel incisiveness, to point out that "Sir Jas. Whitney's acquaintance with constitutional matters is necessarily limited, and his opinion as to the functions and province of legal journalism is of little value as compared with the opinion of those who have been engaged in such journalism for half a lifetime." The legislation in question is described as "a striking illustration" of statutes which are too often "crude and ill considered." As to the coarse and insulting language used by Whitney, Mr. O'Brien says:

A gentleman who with reckless gloss characterizes men who are, to say the least, not less respected nor less highly esteemed than himself, as "a bunch of fakirs" would scarcely seem to be a person fit to be trusted with the enactment of legislation of the careful and deliberate description which is requisite if the public are to be adequately protected. In the judgment of the writer of the article referred to (with which I thoroughly agree), any damage which the "financial credit of Ontario" has sustained is really due to the imprudent and, as many think, unfair legislation of which Sir James Whitney is the author. Under these circumstances it is preposterous to lay that damage to the charge of those who have criticised such legislation and exposed its true character and tendency.

The reproval was well deserved. "Faithful are the wounds of a friend." It was no small occasion which called forth from Mr. O'Brien the censure, well would it be for Whitney and for Ontario if the Government had sense enough to appreciate the gravity of the situation which it has created.

THE INTERCOLONIAL.

Yesterday in the Commons the Minister of Railways presented a suggestion for the management of the Intercolonial Railway. Hon. Mr. Graham's plan contemplates not a commission, but a board of management to be composed of three railway men and the Deputy Minister, who would be responsible through the Minister to the Government of the day. In connection with this arrangement, Hon. Mr. Graham proposes the acquisition of branch lines at an early date as feeders to the road. The Minister thinks that unless some such policy is to be adopted the road should be leased, under proper terms, to some company that will adopt such businesslike principles.

The Intercolonial has been more or less of a national white elephant for a generation. We have something like $80,000,000 invested in it, from which not a dollar of dividend is yielded—indeed, we consider ourselves fortunate when we get through a year without a deficit in operation. It is a typical example of the "success" of public ownership. But a good many of the people of Canada think that an effort should be made to make the road pay its way, even if it has to be run under lease. Now that the subject is brought before the House in this shape, perhaps an arrangement may be arrived at which will relieve the people of the burden which it annually places upon them. Whether this be done by placing it in the hands of a managing board or by leasing it is not of vast importance if the result be attained.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Let the knockers put way their hamlets. All should join to boom Hamilton.

Yesterday was a quiet day at police court. Are the vags taking the hint to avoid the city?

A combine of breweries and enamel goods manufacturers is being formed in Quebec. Of course, these organizations are all for the benefit of the consumer—perhaps.

A local contemporary announces that the Ottawa Tories in caucus have decided to help to expedite the business of Parliament. Good enough! It is never too late to repent of evil and learn to do well. We hope that their actions will bear out the promise.

This is the fourteen hundred and fourteenth anniversary of the death of St. Patrick. The place of his birth is very much in dispute, but there is fairly general agreement that he died at Down, in Ulster county, Ireland, on March 17th, 495, at a great age, after a long life spent in well-doing.

The measure to enable municipalities to regulate bill-boards was thrown out by the Legislature. Allan Standish lending his opposition to it. There is always danger in giving municipalities too much power to meddle with personal rights; but the nuisance of the bill-board monstrosities is one that should be regulated in the public interest by some authority. Who should be entrusted with the work?

Edmund Vance Cook does not think that the people of the United States have any right to claim to be more democratic than the Canadians. Indeed he frankly admits that "Canadians have a good deal broader democracy than we [in the United States] have. We went too deep on the start, and the reaction has made it worse than ever. As to the relation of the two countries, it is just as foolish to talk of the United States annexing Canada as it is to talk of Canada annexing the United States." Cook has much more sense than many of the men who indulge in estimates of the two countries and peoples.

There has been a great deal of foolish, unjust and cruel matter sent abroad from Hamilton about the Kinrade murder inquiry, and there has been much ponderous nonsense printed about the severity of the examination to which the witnesses have been subjected by the authorities. The man who jumps at conclusions is not a safe adviser in any case. And if the authorities were to leave anything undone to find Ethel Kinrade's murderer, none would regret it more than her sorrowing family, and none would condemn the authorities more severely than those who now censure them for supposed excess of zeal in prosecuting the inquiry.

Judging by Bishop DuMoulin's discussion of divorce, race suicide and woman suffrage, as reported from Toronto, we are inclined to think that were he in England now he would not give the suffragettes much encouragement. But if the Bishop regards his subjects as "three of a kind," we are inclined to think that very many people will differ with him. It may be true enough that politics is not what it should be, but government is a necessity, and politics would be purer and better if more good men, like the Bishop, were to exercise their influence and do a citizen's duty rather than look on and deplore conditions.

The canners and food dealers of the United States generally are preparing to exercise their influence with Congress to secure a reduction in the sugar duties. These duties are specific, and at present equal an ad valorem tax of 80 per cent. on the sugar used by our neighbors. How seriously such a burden bears upon the people will be seen by a little computation. In 1908 Uncle Sam's people consumed 3,185,789 tons; a per capita consumption of $1.17 pounds, or 405.83 pounds per family. It is estimated that the price of refined sugar is increased 2c. a pound by the tariff, so that the cost of this single article of food to the average head of a family is made about $8 a year greater by the tariff. The burden tells severely against the canning and other industries of the country.

Our contemporary the Herald prints an editorial ridiculing "The Dreadful Peak Load," the idea apparently being to lead the public to regard the provision as one hardly worth thinking about. The effort consists largely of a statement by a Buffalo electric engineer, who illustrates the working of the peak load system of measurement by showing that on a particular day when the lowest load was 3,600 h. p. at noon, the peak load at 5 p. m. was 10,678. He says the "average" for the twenty-four hours was 5,989. But that average does not help us. In the Hydro scheme we should have to pay peak load figures for the month if we reached it for 20 minutes, even if we used only "average" or low figure load the rest of the time. And the Herald's authority, far from scotching the peak load as a "bogey," as the Herald does, says it is "by the way, one of the hardest propositions for the electrical engineer to take care of!"

OUR EXCHANGES

SLEEP LATER.
(Guelph Mercury.)

If all the clocks in Canada were turned back an hour, a great many people would just sleep in an hour later every morning.

THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN.
(London Advertiser.)

The police will tear up sewers in an effort to find the revolver that killed Ethel Kinrade. But will they ever find the man behind the gun?

NO SUSPICION EITHER.
(Toronto Star.)

Unusual esprit de corps seems to have developed among the Hamilton newspaper editors. There might be a similar rival with being guilty of the Kinrade murder.

HAMILTON'S BOOMERS.
(Brantford Expositor.)

Hamilton has formed a business men's club to assist the Publicity Department of that city. There might be a similar organization in Brantford, although a committee of the Board of Trade supplies something akin to it.

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM.
(Toronto News.)

In calling attention to Canada's absolute dependence upon Great Britain for the financial backing wherewith to build its railways and develop its resources, Mr. E. R. Wood renders the country and the Empire a definite service.

DISCOURAGED.
(Toronto Telegram.)

First a Toronto Conservative refused a license commission without pay. Next a Hamilton Conservative refused a license inspectorship with pay. "Twice bitten, once shy," and these rebuffs are enough to form Hon. W. J. Hanna's solemn resolve to restrict his future offers of appointments to Sarnia.

It is the Seventeenth.

THE POPULAR PROMENADE.

Suggestions Made For the Season's Band Concerts.

In connection with the opening of the season's popular band concerts at the new Armories on Good Friday the promoters have a number of new ideas under consideration. One is to open a light refreshment parlor in one of the adjoining rooms, where ice cream and cream soda, tea, coffee and cake will be served, and another is to have a retiring room, where the men can have a quiet smoke if they desire.

Another idea is suggested by Mr. John Hoodless, a member of the band and in the long ago, Mr. Hoodless, who suggests a return to the old popular promenade idea, writes as follows:

Dear Mr. Robinson, Will you pardon an old pupil of yours who retains a warm interest in the band, a suggestion? Some years ago the concerts used to partake of a promenade character, especially when the flower shows were so popular. In the old Drill Hall this was impossible, owing to the noise and movement during the rendition of such music as you have always endeavored to provide, elevating and educative. But now, in the new Armories, this is changed, and with the splendid galleries, those who wish to sit quiet and listen can do so comfortably, while those wishing to move can, on these new floors, do so, without annoyance to the galleries. The coming again of the 10 cent concerts will fill a gap in the life of the community, and I trust the band will be encouraged to keep up and even improve upon the high standard of programmes given in the past, by large attendance from our citizens.

RAP AT DETROIT.

Worse Than Hamilton in Clearing Up Mysterious Crimes.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—In reading the March 16th issue of the Times in regard to the Kinrade mystery, I note that Detective McDonald, of the Detroit force, states that if the case had occurred in that city, in his opinion it would be nearer a solution than it is at the present. Under the circumstances over mere doubt it would have been, and seeing that every one who can is giving Hamilton hard raps through the above affair, it would be well to consider the old and quaint saying, that a rooster can crow on its own "middle" best. Now, in regard to Detroit, it would be well to look up to themselves (the detective and police force there) and consider how they progressed in regard to

HEMORRHOIDS SORES AND ECZEMA

Accompanied by Terrible Itching—A Complicated and Most Distressing Case—Well-known Remedies Failed to Cure—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary—Then

CUTICURA PROVED ITS WONDERFUL EFFICACY

"I am now eighty years old and one morning, three years ago, I was taken with a hard pain in my right side. In two days I had an attack of piles (hemorrhoids) bleeding and protruding. The doctor gave me some medicine and an ointment for them which helped me some but I had to keep using them all the time. Then I changed to the P. remedy; but if I did not use it every day I would get worse. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. At this time, about a year ago, I went to the P. remedies. I tried them for four or five months but did not get much help for my piles. During this time sores would come on a fleshy part of my body. They bothered me all the time. I would get one healed and another would come. These sores changed to eczema, accompanied by a terrible itching. It seemed as if I could not keep my hands from tearing my flesh. This and the pile trouble brought on an inflamed condition. Then I got the Cuticura Remedies. I washed the affected parts with Cuticura Soap and warm water in the morning, at noon, and at night, then used Cuticura Ointment on the irritated surfaces and injected a quantity of Cuticura Ointment with a Cuticura Suppository. I also took Cuticura Resolvent Pills three times a day. It took a month of this treatment to get me well, and I have not had any more trouble since. I have used Cuticura since I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. It is fortunate that I used Cuticura. The treatments I had tried took a lot of money that I would have saved by using Cuticura. I am now well and I would not feel safe without them. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., U. S. A., April 26, 1907."

Cuticura Ointment to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills to Purify the Blood; also the Cuticura Suppository to keep the bowels regular. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Clark, 27, Charterhouse St., Paris, & Rue de Valenciennes, 10, Brussels. Sole Proprietors: Foster Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston."

the Jack-the-catch-me-not affair some twelve or thirteen years ago, when young girls in their teens and school girls were assaulted in broad daylight all over the city, and some, if not all, in a brutal manner. Also the same person or persons defied the force to the extent to even put in one of the daily papers of that city the time when he would commit the act. The city of Detroit was baffled on all sides and tried all manner of ways, both with the police and detective force. Girls were not safe going from either work or school. I don't believe in digging up old affairs, but I think that it is quite right and just to say an encouraging word to our city, and I take this means of defending the same. Detroit has got an efficient force and I cannot find fault with the same, as I resided there for a number of years. But in cases of this kind I think it improper for everyone to run down a town in the manner Hamilton has been done lately. I might state that there were arrests made in Detroit, but no Jack-the-catch-me-not was ever found guilty. The latter name he always signed in his letters to the papers which were published.

RESCUE HOME.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—In visiting the Rescue Home of the Salvation Army I find that the matron is in great need of children's and infants' clothing, and also blouses and aprons for the young mothers. It is the desire of the matron that the mothers be trained in neatness while under her care, and she finds this a hard problem with the limited means at her disposal. Will the ladies of Hamilton help her in this matter? Those who have not clothing may be able to help with a donation in money. A card sent to 21 Mountain avenue or telephone No. 1425 will receive prompt attention. The matron is to be complimented on the management and improvement at the home, both inside and out. While she has been in charge the institution has been enlarged and refurbished. All is in first class order. Any lady interested in this work, by calling on the matron, may have it more thoroughly explained. I can assure them of a courteous reception.

Mrs. R. Davis, 377 Victoria avenue.

ST. MARK'S LITERARY SOCIETY.

At the meeting of St. Mark's Literary Society, held on Monday evening, C. H. H. Hooper gave the second of his series of lectures on "English Poetry." He chose as his subject for the evening Dryden's Odes, "Alexander's Feast" and "A Song for St. Cecilia's Day," and the study of these poems, under Mr. Hooper's able direction, proved most interesting and enjoyable to all present. A short musical programme was also enjoyed, consisting of a piano solo by Miss Graham; song, H. Rawlings; mandolin solo, H. Rawlings, and the chorus "Oh, Who Will Give the Doves So Free," by the members of the society. At the next meeting a number of speeches on humorous subjects will be given by members.

Spectacles and Eye-Glasses.

The latest and most beautiful designs can be secured from J. W. Gerrie, druggist and consulting optician, 32 James street north. Being a graduate of the best optical colleges, the public may rely upon being accurately fitted. Prices moderate. Examination free.

CHEAP POWER.

(London Free Press.)

Brantford has thrown in her fortunes with the Cataract Power Company, and will get power as cheap as will Hamilton. And both of these cities will have the power at a price less than the hydro-electric commission would contract to furnish it. Hamilton has not yet decided the matter, but Brantford's agreement with the Cataract Company is for five years.

THE BISHOP.

(Toronto Globe.)

But the Bishop was ill-advised in classing with divorce and race suicide the demand made on behalf of women for the right to vote at political elections. There is nothing inherently "vulgar" about "politics," as he seems to think and feels at liberty to say there is. Politics is simply the science and art of human government, and as it has to do with the conditions under which society exists and develops, there can be so far as matters relating to this earth are concerned, no higher subject to which the attention of rational human beings can be directed.

ALAS! POOR TEDDY.

(A. Non in Chicago Musical Leader.)

From Africa come the sinister tidings: "This season the lions are biting well." Alas! poor Theodore. Does the news addumbrate his finish? To cite ex-Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte's bon mot: "Should a lion allow Theodore he'd disagree with him."
