NATURE will soon have done her part. If you are to receive the full reward of your year's labor, you must be prepared—to harvest your grain promptly when it is ready—to harvest it without waste—to do it with the least amount of labor. A modern harvesting machine is indispensable. You cannot cut your grain the way farmers did a generation ago—and you can-not afford, when the grain is fully ripe, to be at the mercy of ma-chines that break down or waste the grain. Do some thinking about the matter now.
