To Send or Not to Send.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you like to get souvenir post cards from people who are away on trips? A few weeks ago I took a brief vacation with a friend. I found, by-the-by, that there is no time in the year when a few days vacation will yield so high a rate of interest in increased efficiency in work and in the great business of being happy and making others so, as at the end of winter. To return to the main road, we were engaged one day in the occupation (once a pastime, but now, to my thinking at least, rapidly becoming a burden), of sending post cards to our friends and relatives. I wondered why she left her Best Friend Out.

"Aren't you going to send one to Grace?" I asked, mentioning a mutual friend.

"No," said my friend decidedly, "I'm not."

"Why?" in surprise. The two are very good friends and Grace is entitled to special consideration at the present, since she has much to make life hard for her.

When Post Cards Tantalize.

'Because I don't like the idea of sending a card telling her what a nice time I'm having when she is tied down and has such a miserable time herself. When the children were small and I never could get away, my cousins were always sending me cards from this place or that, saying how lovely it was and what a good time they were having. It used to make me just crazy when I'd been up half the night with a sick baby and had a long tiresome day to face, to have the postman hand me a card with a picture of some perfectly beautiful place on it and a tantalizing description of what they were doing. I made up my mind then that I wouldn't ever send cards to people to tantalize them."

"You don't think they did it for that?"

People Do Enjoy Other People's Envy.

"I don't know," she said, "Perhaps not. But there's no use pretending that it doesn't add to people's good times to think someone else envies them. Of course I don't mean they really wanted to make me unhappy."

That's an interesting and suggestive point of view, isn't it?

Doubtless those cousins quite prided themselves on never forgetting their stay-at-home cousin.

Even as you and I!

But in the light of her confession, it does seem as if the tact that can deliberately forget, may sometimes be kinder.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Is it proper to have butter balls already on the bread and butter plate or is it better to pass them on a butter dish?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"Have the butter in neat forms or balls, already on the butter plates before the guests enter the dining room," answered her older friend.

FLOUR, TEA, etc.

Although teas have advanced considerably and the market for future purchases is very strong, we have not yet changed our retail prices.

For housekeepers who would anticipate their requirements for some months to come, the present seems a good time to buy.

THE REACTIONARY.

The reactionary is a person who throws in the reverse lever and thinks he is in high gear.

Whenever the chariot of civilization has tried to progress a few feet, it has always found the road blocked up by the reactionary with his chest thrown out and his mind revolving slowly in the opposite direction. When Fulton discovered the steamboat, the reactionaries of his day stood on the shore and said it was lucky the current was so strong. When Morse invented the telegraph the reactionaries in congress said he had compound lunacy of the cerebellum and should be put in a padded cell until his reason could sit straight up. When Mergenthaler invented the linotype, the reactionaries of union labor fought its introduction until they found that it resulted in shorter hours, higher wages and the gradual but pleasing abolition of the thoroughly saturated tramp printer.

One of the worst reactionaries which modern civilization has to put up with is the member of the legislature who wants good roads without paying anything for them. Nature has done a great many wonderful things, such as producing the two-headed calf and the odorless onion, but she never made a dirt road that could be traveled at all times of the year without a pair of stilts. No state in the Union ever built a hard-surfaced road two miles long without having to ride over the prostrate forms of a few reactionaries who wanted to economize in everything except salaries and per diem.

There are reactionaries in the church, too, and they usually think that the pastor can pay 85 cents a peck for potatoes and lay up money on the salary he drew in 1910. The lodge reactionary is one who doesn't want any more members outside of his own family. In short, the reactionary is a millstone around the left leg of progress, but sometimes it is necessary to have him in order to keep a working balance in the treasury.

Your Boys and Girls.

From the time of its birth the child's mouth should be cleansed morning and evening. To accomplish this use tepid water and salt, or water made slightly alkaline with a pinch of powdered borax. A small piece of soft linen cloth may be wrapped around the forehead, dipped in the water and gently rubbed about the child's mouth.

When the temporary teeth are all 'out' which is usually at the age of 2 years, a small soft brush should be used morning and night with the alkaline water, brushing the teeth, carefully in order to reach all the grooves. At the age of three the child should be given a brush and taught to use it properly. The tooth brush should be concave in shape so as to adapt itself to the curves of the jaws. The bristles should be medium.

Of course the child will regard the brush as a plaything at first, but it will soon become a habit to imitate mother and brush the teeth upon rising, after each meal and before retiring. The mother should emphasize the fact that it is just as necessary to keep the teeth clean as the hands. Indeed it is really more important, for soiled hands will not cause half the mischief that soiled teeth will, and just because they are out of sight is no reason why they should be 'out of mind' any more than the hands or face.

SPRING ENTHUSIASM.

WALT MASON

All winter long my works were wrong, and grief in me was reigning; and other days who went their ways in anguish were complaining. I'd walk a mile before a smile I'd see upon a critter; all men went sore and o'er and o'er they cursed the winter bitter. But now I walk around a block on legs that wish to gambol, and fifty styles of cheerful smiles I witness in my ramble. Spring, sweet and calm, is nature's balm for all our ills and aillings; our souls it cheers, and dries our tears, and shames our idle walling.

"Nerves"

Our nerves are similar to an intricate network of telegraph wires. Controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain—known as the nerve centres—the delicate threads like nerves radiate in all directions throughout the body. So long as the nerve centres are capable of continually supplying nourishment to the nerves, the nerves will remain strong and healthy. But directly the nerve centres become weakened by overwork, worry or anxiety, they are unable to transmit the necessary nourishment to the nerves and the nerves become worn out and "on edge." Then it is that a sudden sound makes you "jump"—you get irritable—you suffer from neuralgia—you are restless and depressed. In this condition there is nothing to equal
