A Progressive Premier... A Pro

gressive Policy. There was a fine optimistic ring about Mr. Ross' speech at Whitiby. It as full of enthusiasm, vigor, and condence. In some respects it was one of the most important utterances in note of his future policy, and we beacteristic energy, Mr. Ross does not intend that the Administration shall repose on its laurels, but that it shall move forward even faster than before to which he and his colleagues will address their efforts. These will be dividing up the great area of New Ontario by two means-railways and colonization roads. As a preliminary, it is in- so as to retain our own labor in the nattended to survey that vast stretch of some 100,000,000 acres, lying between the C. P. R. and Hudson Bay. This district has not even been explored; nobody knows its agricultural value, its timber wealth or mineral resources. By means of this survey we shall find out if the lands are good for farming. Beyond question they are rich in timber and probably minerals also. As in the earliest days of Ontario, trunk colonization roads will be built into those parts of this new country which are shown to be good for settlement. The Government will also subsidize railway construction and the Premier suggests that public aid will largely take the form of land grants. The land at present is valueless; railways will make it valuable. If Northern Ontario could be settled with the same density as a population of nine millions.

But New Ontario is not to have a monopoly of Government favor. Mr. free, there are no institutions more Ross promises an equally progressive stable, no people more intelligent than policy for Old Ontario. In the first ours. No premier of any country can policy for Old Ontario. In the first properly indulge in greater feelings of place he hopes to project a system pride than I can indulge in, in being whereby the 3,000,000 acres of swamp the first minister of this great province. lands in the province, now useless and pestilential, will be reclaimed and rethat I—a native Canadian, educated in stored to the farmers. Furthermore, her schools, trained in her institutions, the Government with whom the farming interests have always been the first care, intend establishing cold storage ince-shall devote all my energies, not collecting stations after the methods simply to the development of the practiced in New Zealand and some Australian colonies. At these stations the farmers can store their butter, limit of a man's greatness is the limit their roultry, apples and other perish- of his moral perception. You cannot able products, until they choose to market them. This will be supplementary to the system of cold storage transportation which the Dominion Government have inaugurated. Mr. Ross pledges his word that the On-tarlo Government will do all in their not by making farcical pretensions as power to encourage the Dominion Government in providing quick and cheap transportation for Ontario farm produce to Great Britain. Mr. Ross expressed the opinion that there ought to be fast express trains that would bring these products, as in the case of and from there an efficient cold stor- trumpets, or any exhibition of age service to the English market. The Premier also called attention to meat trade, of which Canada had as yet taken no advantage. New Zealand. Australia and the Argentine Republic in 1897 sent to England a total of 6,770,000 carcases by cold storage process through heated latitudes, and these were landed in London and Liverpool in perfect condition. We will see, said Mr. Ross, if some means cannot be devised whereby a chilled meat market of that kind can be established for the benefit of the farmers of Ontario. Out of $855,987,300 worth of farm products imported by Great Britain in 1897, Canada sent only $62,-125.056 worth, or 71/2 per cent. To improve this showing is a work in which the Government will co-operate with the farmers of this province.

Mr. Ross indicated another line of policy equally radical. The law requiring all logs cut on crown lands to be menufactured into lumber in the province, had, he pointed out, resulted in the springing up of large lumbering Jan. 2, 1900. industries on the Georgian Bay. Why not apply the same policy to all our mineral and timber wealth? asked Mr. Ross. We surely have enough intelligence to take our own raw wool and make woolen goods out of it and to convert our wheat into flour. In the same way, why not take our nickel or copper or iron ore and encourage the manufacture of these into the finished article? One would infer from the Premier's remarks that the Government contemplate the prohibition of the export of pulpwood and nickel ore. Mr. Ross also pointed out that the consumption of pig iron in Ontario is 140,000 tons, of which only 40,000 tons were produced in the province. The policy of the Government will be, in every feasonable way to encourage the manufacture of raw material in order to find employment for our own people and develop the latent resources of the country.

In regard to education, Mr. Ross said he was unable to propound any new policy, but he thought a special effort should be made to introduce into the province a system of technical education for the artisan classes. He had been for many years endeavoring to arrive at that point. He had made drawing in the schools compulsory, and that is the basis of technical training That was done fifteen years ago. He had also made the teaching of agriculture compulsory in the schools as the Outrages Perpetrated by the basis of agricultural education. "But we want something more than that,' added Mr. Ross, "we want to take the intelligent workingman of this province and in a technical school fit him to be useful in adding skill and intelligence to the value of Mr. Ross' career. It struck the key- the raw material in every department of industry. For instance, if you Meve it will find hearty echo through- have establishments where high-class out the whole province. With char- furniture is manufactured, you require technical skill in order to enable you to produce it. In all the higher departments of industry, whether it be in weaving, dyeing, woodwork, ironwork, in the path of progress. He lays down or in ornamental work of any kind, you several lines of practical development require technical skill. We have the intelligence, but I doubt whether we have as much of the technical skill as ed between New Ontario and Old On- we ought to have, and I hope you will see in this province in a very short colporteurs are occurring in various time, as they have in the large cities Mr. Ross pointed out, what the peo- of the United States and England, a ple of Ontario do not bear in mind system of technical schools wherein sufficiently, that of the 150,000,000 acres your son, if he does not wish to enter in this province only 23,000,000 or one- a profession, can obtain the education sixth is occupied, and only 12,000,000 that will fit him for earning a liveliunder cultivation. Practically five- hood in some other department. We sixths of the land is held by the want varieties of occupation. We cancrown. The Government purpose open- not all be professional men, and it would be a pity if we attempted it. We want a variety of industrial pursuits

> Mr. Ross has always been animated by a sturdy Canadianism, and alluded with pardonable pride to his efforts to inculcate the spirit of patriotism in the rising generation. One of the pleasantest features of his administration as minister of education, he justly declared, had been this fact: that he believed he was able to instil into the half-million of school children of the province a greater love for Ontario, for from the mandarins,

"We think of the great expanse of the Old Ontario, this province would have still greater expanse. We talk of the London Nov. 16.—The steamer St constitutional development of England, Paul, which arrived at Southampton forgetting that we have made even yesterday had a unique experience as greater development constitutionally than England. There is no land more having the confidence of a constituency for 27 years, and now apparently having the confidence of the whole provcountry, but to the moral improvements of the people. "Righteousness exalteth a nation." Tennyson says that the make a people nobler in character or purpose than they are in heart or con-viction. Let us strengthen the moral foundations of this country, let us purto our virtues, but by living noble, manly lives as Canadians, and showing to the world and those who come into contact with us that we have convictions founded on the principles of morality. The result will be to secure for Ontario its pre-eminence as the home of an intelligent, well-educated people. The government will, without any Armour trains, quickly to the seaport, pretensions, without any blowing of tues, go to work as straightforward, honest men, and develop country on the lines I have indicated, the great opportunities of the chilled and we trust to show to the younger men that we are not unworthy of their confidence." (Loud cheers.)

Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any

In one instance the viceroy was forced to telegraph for troops.

The Chinese society known as "the boxers," is said to be provoking agitations and antagonisms. Two colpor-teurs of the Bible Society visited Peh Shud Chlang, Province of Kansuh, and were invited to circulate Bibles in the Chinese temple. As soon as they were inside the temple the gates were closed and the colporteurs set upon and terribly beaten with long, thick rods. Four were severely hurt, two others were attacked, but not so badly injured as the other four. Some of the elders of the town took part in the beating.

The men were tied to the pillars of the temple and spat upon, the people shouting, "We have tied you up as they did your Jesus on the cross.' They then began to strike them on the face and shout, "This is what your gods can do for you. Call on your Jesus to come and save you." A merchant remonstrated with the leaders, when the crowd seized the merchant and beat him also. It is understood that the agent of the Bible Sowill endeavor to obtain redress

A force of 7,000 volunteers and regulars lined the route to Clifton. An address by the mayor and corporation was presented to her majesty in a gold casket. During the ceremony or the inauguration of the home 27,000 children sang the jubilee hymn, and an address was presented to the Queen, who expresed the deep personal interest which she took in the charity, and earnestly expressed the hope that the home would contribute in no small degree to the allevation of human suf-fering. The dedication ceremony was interesting and impressive. Her ma-jesty rode to Windsor in the evening. Replying to the address of the mayor and corporation, the Queen said: "The sense of union and brotherhood, which under the divine blessing has welded together my empire in time of peace, is now proving itself in the hour of our trial also, and I share the pride you must feel that the men drawn from the district have recently been conspicuous among my gallant soldiers and sallors in South Africa for their valor and devotion to duty."

STEAMER ON FIRE. London, Nov. 16.—The Hamburg-American steamer Patria (Capt. Frelich), which left New York Nov. 4 for Hamburg, passed the Lizard on fire, near Dover. The Russian steamer Cerea sighted the Patria showing signals of distress, and rescued her 150 passengers, most of whom are Americans. Among the saved are many ladies and children, as well as six babies in arms. The hurry of the rescue was indicated by the fact that most of them were enveloped in blankets only. When the fire got be-yond control there was very great ex-citement among the women and children, but the example set by the cool-ness of Capt. Frelich and the crew had a calming effect upon the passen-gers generally. The boats were prompt-ly got over the side, the crew work-
