danger which affected me—that and his death. They were not unkind nor brutal. Indeed, I do not clearly recall that I was ever spoken to, except when some necessary order was given. One night I heard them discuss what should be done with me; that I was to be hidden away in Black Kettle's camp. Generally Dupont spoke to the Indians in their own tongue, but that night he thought me asleep. I—I had no hope left—not even faith that you could ever rescue me."

The actions of the man aroused my suspicions. I knew my father was acting paymaster, and I could perceive the outlines of a leather bag bulging beneath his overcoat. If this contained money, then I grasped Dupont's purpose. My plan of action occurred to me in a flash—I would accompany him until he was safely in the stage, and find opportunity to whisper warning. I remember asking him to wait . moment for me, and rushing to the cloak room after my rushing to the crest of the hill, his swift glance sweeping back over the trail.
