WHY NOT MAKE MONEY

You have it in your power to do so. Money capital is not needed. A business training will point out to you the way, will give you the confidence and courage needed, will give you the power to put your plan into action. Three years from today you can own a business of your own that will bring you rich returns for your efforts. You can be financially independent. It will pay you to attend the Montreal Business College.

This is Canada's year of opportunity for service to the Empire and civilization.

It seems that while some branches of munition manufacture are flourishing the production of such necessities of life as 1916 Calendars is in a very languishing state indeed.

A British Soldier who lost a child on the Lusitania killed five Turks in revenge. It is not in Turkey, however, but in Germany, that the child murderer was planned.

In some respects, notably in the kind of its war news, 1916 appears to be no improvement over last year.

BATHURST

Mr. O. Turgeon, M. P. and Mrs. Turgeon left on Wednesday for Ottawa. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Haquail have returned to their home in Fort William (Ont.) after a visit to Mrs. Haquail's brother, Mayor Michaud and Mrs. Michaud.

Mrs. John Ferguson, who was a guest of Mrs. Gus Blanchard, returned on Friday to her home in Tracadie.

Miss Roberts of Moncton has recently been added to the Bathurst Lumber Co's office staff, in the capacity of Stenographer.

Miss B. Meloin, returned during the week from a very pleasant visit of several months with relatives in Boston.

Mr. Leo Lamrick who spent the holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. McKenna returned last week to Chatham, to resume his studies at St. Thomas College.

Dr. F. X. Comeau and Mrs. Comeau of Carleton Place were last week guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Landry.

Mr. C. J. Casey of Halifax has accepted a position with J. P. Whelan.

Pte. T. Clay White of the 132nd Battalion left on Monday for Chatham where he has been appointed to a position in the Paymasters' office.

Miss Ruby Windsor of Miscou was in town this week for a short stay, before leaving for New York, where she will take a course in vocal culture.

During her stay in Toronto, Miss Dora Gallant, Milliner for Miss H. Meahan, will spend much time in studying the coming season's styles and before her return will secure the best obtainable in Millinery for the Spring display.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert McLean arrived last week, and will take up their residence in Bathurst.

Miss Lena Fritapatric of Carleton Place is making a visit to her grand-parents Mr. and Mrs. P. Elhatt on.

Miss Ada LaRiche of Lameque was a visitor in town this week.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

The full value of soldiers' letters may not be fully realized by those who receive them. Indeed, as the war continues week after week, there is a danger that they may be regarded as a matter of course. It is well to preserve war letters carefully. It is from just such letters with their unofficial records that histories are written. Harvard is already asking for every possible document from its graduates and unites at the front to preserve for future reference. Very often important facts can be established by the confirmation of an incident told by several persons in letters in which that incident may not of itself have seemed to the recipient as of any great moments. After the Civil War in the United States and the South African war, many requests for letters were received by friends and relatives of the soldiers engaged in these struggles. New points of view are constantly being thrown on many matters of national importance the world over by the discovery of letters, not sent out to authorities or whose value was not apparent to those who received them. It would be wise for Canada to follow the plan adopted by Harvard and to collect its war letters at some college or university, where when needed they will be safe and from where they can be readily obtained when needed for the history of this world war that will some day be written.

A Hard Job.

One afternoon in the trenches an Irish soldier discovered that one of his companions was wearing a nice new pair of boots. How did you manage to get hold of them? I asked Pat, enviously. Well, said his friend, I stole out of the trench last night, and found them on a German I killed. Pat became thoughtful, and that night disappeared. Early next morning he staggered back into the trenches carrying a pair of boots. Making for his friend, he whispered: I've had the hardest job of my life. Had to kill about fifty of the blighters before I got a pair to fit me.

port. His request was granted but the soldiers who led him there were never permitted to know that he was Lord Kitchener himself, whose knowledge of the native language and powers of disguise had enabled him to play the spy and learn all that he wanted to know from the two stubborn dervishes.

ROBBIE

The room was still though moon had come
And with it golden day.
I gazed upon a youthful face
As sleeping there he lay.
So sweet and calm—yet sorrow filled
My heart instead of joy,
For I must part with one I loved,
My own dear Soldier Boy.

His night had passed in sleeplessness
But now in sweet repose
He sleeps, unconscious of the ills
That came in line with woes
Clad in a Soldier's dress, how fair
To me that morn he seemed
The sunny smile of boyish pride
That on those features beamed.

My mind into the past was swept
Which seemed like yesterday.
I thought upon his child hood hours,
When he was wont to play,
Around the home in childish glee
Filling the home with joy,
How little then I thought he'd be
My own dear Soldier Boy.

We loved our boy—it seemed so good,
This future was so close
Or else to grieve about what's now
I might have been disposed
The while to muse—he whom I loved,
Ere nineteen Summers born
Obedient his Country's call and from
Our hearts and home was torn.

I thought upon the cruel toll
The carnage and the gore
The sufferings intense—untold
Of those who'd gone before
And as the tears rolled down my cheeks
I turned to God to cry
That he would save and bring to Heaven
My own dear Soldier Boy.

And this I know—our God doth care
He sleeps or Slumbers ne'er
When things seem pointing to dismay
He bids us never fear.
For he who holds within his hand
This boisterous rolling deep
Is able—yes, and willing too
Our precious charge to keep.

I turned me round to bid adieu
To him I loved so well
And from my lips in tender tones
His dear name softly fell
But weary had he heard me not
And now the time drew nigh
When I must leave him go his way
My darling Soldier Boy.

I stroked the fair hair on his brow
And kissed his youthful cheek,
I turned me from that silent room
My heart too full to speak.
For was he not my first born son
Was he not true and brave
Who volunteered to help the cause
Our Country's name to save.

Ah, parents dear, those boys you have
And look upon with pride
Are they still with you—still at home
Around the fireside.
If so—remember many a heart
Is sobbing out in pain
The untold loss of boys—who here
They'll never meet again.

I turned and gave a last fond glance
Then slowly left the room
And now tonight the ocean rolls
Between him and his home
He's crossing to that stricken land
Where duty calls the brave
I pray to God as here I write
My Soldier Boy to save.

Ah stricken land, you've furnished
Graves
For many a well loved son
And when will cease the bloody strife
So cruelly begun
Well this I know that God who rules
Can give the sure reply
In whose blest care I leave tonight
My own dear Soldier Boy.

A Prominent physician says the best thing to do in case of a gripe is to do nothing and go to bed to do it. The advice sounds wise.

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; a feeling of fullness, pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and using two bottles of the Sanative Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial!"—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

This good old root and herb remedy has proved unequalled for these dreadful ills; it contains what is needed to restore woman's health and strength.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

Wasn't Plaster At All.

An elderly church warden in shaving himself one Sunday before church time made a slight cut with a razor on the extreme end of his nose. Quickly calling his wife, he asked her if she had any court plaster in the house. "You will find some in my sewing basket," she said. The warden soon had the cut covered.

At church in assisting with the collection he noticed everyone smile as he passed the plate, and some of the younger people laughed outright. Very much annoyed, he asked a friend if there were anything wrong with his appearance.

"Well, I should think there is," was the answer. "What is that on your nose?"

"Court plaster," said his friend, "it is the label of a reel of cotton. It says, 'warranted 200 yards long.'"
