R. K. SPROULE,

Gossip From Chicago.

Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to R. Cochran: Though speculative sentiment is bearish and predicts materially lower prices it is held in check by the liberal engagements for export and the fact that cash wheat commands considerable premium over May; but for this circumstance the short side would be extremely popular. The movement at the small interior points seems to be falling off and the big receipts at lake ports are at the expense of country elevator stocks, which show signs of exhausting. Though there was a nominal increase last week in the official visible of nearly 900,000. Bradstreet reports, which takes in country, point to a decrease. Today's trading has shown no features of interest. With warm weather market would likely ease off some. The cold backward spring, light receipts and poor grading of corn have made it possible for the May clique to advance the price of that option. It is said they sold about 1,250,000 to-day, but whether to shorts is uncertain. The market has been kept active and advanced easily whenever the clique began to bid. Provisions—The holdings of a prominent local trader are said to have been hanging by the eyelids for some days and this added to the depression. It is general opinion that bottom has not yet been reached.

Henry Allen & Co., New York, to John J. Dixon & Co.: There have been more rampant raids on the stock market to-day, more especially on the coal stocks, but not much of consequence has been accomplished in the way of smashing prices; Reading dropped in the early trading but later recovered. A big hullabaloo is made over the cut in freight rates by the Pennsylvania Company, but there is no basis for it. As a matter of fact the Pennsylvania only came down to rates some time ago fixed by th. Reading Company itself as fair and profitable. Of course there is the opportunity for a bear hurrah is the incident, but it has no value from any business standpoint. It looks now more than at any time in the past as if a big movement in stocks were easily to be made. Money on time is abundant and cheap, London is bare of American stocks. All the bad news has been more than discounted. A rally sharp and far-reaching is due. Guff From Gotham.
