Some of Our Annapolis County Boys Abroad.

napolis County boys abroad has recently been called to the attention of editor of the Monitor, and we gladly give space to a record of their and achievements. Three sketches we herewith subjoin, while others will appear in a later issue. In most instances the subjects of the sketches were dependent upon their own exertions at an early age, and the record of their accomplishments is full ose boys of today. We would not, however, convey to such the imwn country in order to achieve molument and reward, nor that all successful ones, but the Monitor hopes of the local corps of the Army. these brief biographies will encourage of their brains as well as their bodies.

J. W. HART.

Professor J. W. Hart, recently head of the Dairy Department of the University of Illinois, was not so very long ago a Bridgetown boy. After ompleting his course of study in the ridgetown school, he went to Guelph, of his train bumping forcibly together, Ontario, where he entered the Ontario Agricultural College, and graduated there with honors. In 1903 he was appointed fread of the Dairy Dept. of the University of Illinois, and within a few weeks has received further promotion. He has been appointed Direcmotion. He has been appointed Director of the Callege of Agriculture in the State of Sao Paulo, Brazil. The appointment is for five years, with $4,000 salary and expenses, and increasing to $5,000.

WILLIAM WHITMAN.

New Bedford, was born in Annapolis, N. S., May 9, 1842. After spending N. S., May 9, 1842. After spending e years in Annapolis Academy, at age of 12 years he secured employ-nt in a dry goods house in St. hn, N. B. Two years later he went to Boston and engaged as entry clerk with James M. Beebe & Co., remain-ng with that firm until 1867, when he became associated with ling with that firm that 1807, which he became associated with the firm of Robert M. Bailey & Co. This firm was interested in the Arlington mills, and Mr. Whitman was made treasurer. Under his management the mills have been enlarged until they now cover the row mill build. been enlarged until they now cover many acres, and the new mill buildings are said to be the finest specimens of mill architecture in the world. In 1887 Mr. Whitman became a member of the firm of Harding, Colby & Co., selling agents. The firm name was changed in 1890, after the death of Mr. Colby, to Harding, Whitman & Co. Mr. Whitman is a former presidence of Mr. Whitman of Mr. Colby, to Harding, whitman Co. Mr. Whitman is a former president of the National Association of Woollen Manufacturers, and is a close student of economic conditions. His advice is that of a man who from small beginnings has won remarkable success as a manufacturer, building up industries that give employment to

FREDERICK G. KING.

Mineral Wealth, a magazine published in California in the interest of the ing industry, publishes in a recent e one of a series of articles under issue one of a series of articles under the title "Great Copper Region and Men Who Helped to Make it Great," a sketch with portrait of Mr. Frederick G. King, who is now one of the leading mining men of California. Mr. King will be remembered as a resident of Bridgetown some fifteen years ago, when he was employed in the factory of J. B. Reed & Son.

The writer of the above mentioned The writer of the above mentioned

"Mr. King arrived in the district which has played so prominent a part in his fortune in April, 1898, when but little was known regarding the geology of the new copper district. Mr. King devoted his attention to a thorough study of the geological conditions surrounding the base ore belt extending from Iron Mountain to the Mammoth. As a result of his investigation, he stated that he would recommend favorably the investing of exploratory capital if a group of mines, then known as the Hearne property, and later as the Shasta King, could be secured on a working bond, this property to constitute the chief holding of the area embraced in the development scheme. In May, 1898, suitable terms were granted by the owners, and Messrs. King, Fillius and Galvin, with a small syndicate of Boston capitalists, began the actual exploration of the Shasta King deposit of ore.

"His work is more prominently associated with the most valuable developments on the base ore belt of Shasta County than is the work of any other operator who has entered this field. The fact that two properties taken as raw prospects, and developed into mines showing millions of dollars' worth of ore, and interesting millions of dollars in purchase and equipment construction, of itself shows the tremendous importance of the work accomplished."
