

tors, as also the steady and active co-operation of parents, in this great work of benevolence. But it is constantly a source of regret as well as discouragement to teachers, that parents are scarcely ever found to visit the school. Were they occasionally to inspect its state, although only for a short time, and thus show that they really felt that interest in its prosperity which they ought, this could not fail to have a beneficial influence both on teachers and pupils. It would impart to both new vigor, and secure more abundant success. To receive countenance too, in this form, is no more than what both have a right to expect. Nor is this all; besides encouragement of this description, every truly christian parent will feel it to be his imperative duty (and he will perform it often and cheerfully) to offer his supplications to God in behalf of his children, and the youth at large. It is by diligence and prayer that His blessing is to be obtained. Of this also let teachers be mindful.

One of the evils of which teachers have just reason to complain, is, irregular attendance, especially among the boys. While this obstructs individual progress, it is apt at the same time to derange the exercises, and impede the improvement of the whole class. It is the business of Parents to do all in their power to prevent this. The Sabbath School has proved of immense advantage in this town, and it ought to be the care of all, that the kind of instruction it secures be continued and extended among us. How unhappy is it, that as respects Sabbath School teaching, the failure throughout the country is so great. Are there no benevolent and pious individuals to be found here and there, who will revive the system. Deplorable is the prospect where the youth are allowed to grow up without religious instruction, and proper principle.
