BELFAST LOUGH ACCIDENT.

The most serious disaster that has ever occurred in connection with the Scotland and Beliast stamship ser-vice occurred in Belfast Lough. The disaster resulted in the loss of five lives and serious injuries to upwards of fifty passengers, busides consider-able damage to the two mail steam-ers.

able damage to the two mall steamers.

It appears that the steamship Promedary, left Beltast with nearly 800 passengers on board. The passengers were nearly all trippers who had been in the North of Ireland for the past ten days. The vessel proceeded down the lough in clear weather and all wre going well until between Carleik-fergus and Whitehead, the ship ran into a heavy bank of fog.

The mate Nicholson was at the bow, on the look out, at the time, and simultaneously with striking the fog and the same company, on per way from Andressan to Belfack, loomed up out of the darkness. Instantaneously there was a terrible collision, followed by heart-ending shricks and indescribable confusion.
