

There were, in all, 74 congregations assisted, in supplementing their pastors, by supplementary grants ranging from $50 to $400. This mission work being carried on by the agency of 151 missionary labourers, including 108 theological students, whose labours are, of course, available only for the winter months.

Of the expenditure, a very large proportion has been in Manitoba—a little over $4,000. Connected with our Church there were estimated to be, last year, 700 families with 450 communicants, and more than 20 mission stations; to which number additions are being made from time to time.

The work before the Church is far greater now than it was last year. The union has added largely to the work to be done; while it will add also, of course, to the available resources. In the meantime it is desirable that congregations should remit their contributions to the Home Mission Treasury. It is at present in debt about $5,000, while the grants for last half year, now expired, will call for at least $10,000.
