FRENCH AND AMERICAN WORKMEN. Paris, Feb. 5.—At a meeting of mechanics to-day, chizen Dunay, who recently visited the United States, said that although American workmen were better paid they were not better off than the French artisans. He asserted that French machine work was better than American, because it was not so rapid. Frenchmen were freer to come and go from shop to shop than Americans. It was not unusual for American shops to forbid the employment of frades uniquists; this was a violation of personal liberty.

(FOR THE POST and TRUE WITNESS.) DREAMS OF ERIN.

In dreams I saw dear motherland,
A queen among all nations fair,
Her diadem-it was Liberty—
And freedom's light shone everywhers.
It glide o'er her placid lakes,
It bathed her hills and vales with light
The flowers blooming in its rays,
Seemed tinted with new colors bright.

The little warblers loudly thrilled
Their lays of harmony more sweet
And n'er before in Erin's groves
Did strains like theirs our spirits greet.
The zephirs sighed more sweetly
As they kissed the rippling sea,
That murmured back a greeting
To mother and from bondage free.

The harp's strings, long since silent, And fills the dear old halls of Tara
With music sweetland beavenly lays.
For on the blood-stained fields of valor
Hibernia's sons had nobly fought,
And proudly raised poor drooping Erin,
And with their blood her freedom bought.

Yes, in my dreams, sweet dramms of Erin,.
She wais not sadly by the wave,
For a patriot's glorious epitaph
Adorns her Emmet's nameless grave.
And all her sons of every creed
Join hands in peace for evermore,
And cowardly deeds of traitors cease
To descorate her sainted shore.

Oh, blessed dreams of Erin dear. On, blessed dreams of Erin dear,
Remain with me, do not depart,
Still cast your soothing spells around,
Lend bliss unto an exile's heart.
For since I cannot wake to see
Liberty's dawn in Erin's say,
Nor those sweet dreams all realized,
With dreams of Erin let me die.

SUSIE MCGLINN. MARRIAGE DECLARED VOID.

CATHOLIC BISHOP DECLARES NULL THE UNION OF A COUPLE ONCE DIVORODD. SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 6 .- At St. John's Oatholic Church this morning, the paster, Rev Father Moriarty, announced the decision of Bishop McNierney annulling the marriage of Elmer Rivest and Miss Anna La Fronier, which was performed on Dec 26 by Monsigner Gusy. Father Moriarty said that the sincerest sympathy is felt with the unfortunate young lady, and that no blame rests upon her, she being the victim of bad advice. Father Morisity in conversation said: "This is an extremely sad case, but the laws of the church are rigid. Nothing is stricter than our laws regulating marriage, and the church has never made an exception to them in favor of any person. Henry VIII. pleaded with the Pope in vain to have his marriage with Queen Catherine annulled. might have been saved to the church, and be a Catholic country to day. The church preiota of its laws. So, toe, Napoteon I. labored

"If Mr. Rivest and Miss Fronier live together will they cease to be members of the church?" "In that case they would be living in ain, at Fulton. Mgr. Guay exoceded his authority

" I have nothing to say," said Mr. Rivest

Since the decision of the Bishop, Mgr. Gusy Bishop's decision will be laid before the Pope and an appeal will be taken.
