

The first conference in which the Institute participated was the Roundtable on International Peace and Security. One of the main objectives of this conference was to discuss the possibility of outside military intervention in the Middle East. It is also an area in which a great many Canadian governmental organizations take considerable interest and this report appears in a more active role. This report appears in a more active role.

The Institute intends to publish a series of such reports providing information on conferences with which it has been associated. The hope is that these will be of use not only to those who attend the conferences, but also to students and to those members of the general public who are interested in the matters which are discussed. The second report, which is due to appear shortly, will be devoted to the proceedings of the conference on International Peace and Security which was organized by the Institute in October 1955.
