PANEL PROCEDURES

- When the investigating authorities of one government have made preliminary determinations regarding both injury and sales at less than fair value or subsidies, the other government may provide notice of its intention to resort to a panel ruling to the first government. At that time, the two governments would name panelists and make necessary arrangements with those panelists.
- The procedures for resort to a panel at the conclusion of an AD or CVD case (i.e., at the time an order is issued) would be as follows:
 - 30 days for the complaining party to file its complaint.
 - 30 days for designation of the administrative record and its filing with the panel.
 - 60 days for complaintant to file its brief.
 - 60 days for respondent to file its brief.
 - 15 days for each party to file reply briefs.
 - 15 - 30 days for the panel to convene to hear oral argument by each party.
 - 90 days for the panel to issue its decision.
