THE CANADA EXPORT AWARD

Canada is a trading nation with a third of its Gross National Product generated by exports of goods and services. It is fitting, then, to honour those Canadian firms that have substantially increased their level of exports.

Since the Program's inception in 1983, sixty-five companies, ranging from the large multinational to the medium-sized and small, have been the proud recipients of the Canada Export Award. They represent every region of Canada and a diverse cross-section of industry sectors including commodities, resource industries, electronics, aerospace, industrial equipment, food products and engineering consulting services.

In receiving the award, Canadian companies are justifiably acclaimed not only for increasing exports, but also for successfully introducing new products or penetrating new markets.

The Minister for International Trade presents a limited number of awards each year to exporting firms, chosen by a selection committee of prominent Canadians, on the basis of demonstrated superior performance in the export arena.

The award is a plaque bearing the Canada Export Award logo and a brief citation of the firm's accomplishments. Firms receiving the award are welcome to use the logo on their letterhead, advertisements and other promotional material for a period of up to three years after its presentation. National and local promotion will be given to firms receiving the award.

The Canada Export Award logo coupled with a firm's name will remind Canadians of the importance of exports and identify the firm displaying the logo as an outstanding achiever.
