

and appeals which have inspired men to greatness. What a blank should we find in verse and prose, where now there is such wealth of illustration and allusion. In discussing the prominence to be given to different subjects in the curriculum, let it always be remembered that history as an educator is an important factor, and it is earnestly hoped that this and other Historical Societies may do a great work in developing a spirit of patriotism, a love of Canadian literature and all that can ennoble our young country.

JANET CARNOCHAN.

