Argument Led to Hospital Case and Charge of Wounding.

Michael Renaldi, an Italian, living at 48 Agnes street, owes his life to the fact that he was created with twelve sharp ribs on each side.

At 7:50 o'clock last night Renaldi had finished a big meal of "spaghetti" and was sitting on a bench with his "friend," Prince Marcelli, cooling off. Marcelli, too, had eaten, and now with pipe in mouth was preparing for a smoke. Tobacco he had, but it was in the plug form, and his big knife was being shaved it off. Both were talking and seemed to be at good will until a chance to start an argument appeared. From arguing, they stepped to quarrelling, and after Renaldi said "I didn't" several times in Italian, Marcelli swung on him with his tobacco knife and stabbed him in the left side. An examination of the wound made in St. Michael's Hospital, showed that the point of the steel had penetrated one of his ribs, but had stopped at that.

No. 48 Agnes street is almost directly across from the police station, but Marcelli made no effort to escape, and was arrested by P. C. Koster and Major. He spent the night across the street, and in the police court today will be charged with wounding.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hair, which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however, handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young, and from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. It was the Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of sage, combined with sulphur and other valuable remedies, for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

A fifty-cent bottle from your druggist today and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

QUELPH, Jan. 10.—(Special).—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Walter Allen, killed on the G.T.R. of Walter Allen, killed on the G.T.R. was as follows: "That Walter Joshua Allen came to his death from injuries received at Glen Williams, County of Halton. The said injuries were received by being crushed between the van of the train he was working on and the crippled car standing on the track. We also find from the evidence that had Allen obeyed the orders of the conductor in charge of the train, he would not have been on the van at the time of the collision, and we also find that had the box on the siding been in perfect condition, the accident would not have happened."

SCORES PREMIER FOR CHANGE OF PLAN

To show the need of a Canadian naval service to protect the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard. He explained that this was essential because of the withdrawal by Great Britain of many of the outlying squadrons for the purpose of centralizing the naval power around the British Isles. His remark that in case the western coast of Canada was invaded by a foreign power the royal Australian fleet would necessarily come to the Dominion's protection was much applauded.

Take It Out of Politics.

"Let us try to deal with this question in a non-partisan way," said Mr. King. "It is the greatest issue with which Canada will have to deal for many years to come. If Mr. Borden's course is best, by all means let us have it, but if it is not in accord with the people of the country, Mr. Borden should rise to the level of the opinion of the Canadian people. At the conclusion of his address the speaker gave a quiet and unobtrusive appeal to his audience to try to influence the premier 'to come like a man and stand by his liberal policy' in 1909. He urged that the question should be lifted out of the realm of party politics, that everyone should sacrifice his party point of view. Liberals and Conservatives alike were agreed on the grant of $35,000,000 to aid naval supremacy, but the matter for debate was the manner in which the money should be used."

Where Was Emergency?

In granting money for naval protection one line of action necessary was that of meeting an emergency and another line was that of laying down a permanent policy. "Is there an emergency which calls for a departure from the policy of four years ago?" he asked, and his answer was loud cries of "No, No." The speaker then went back to the days of the German scare in 1907, when Great Britain was discussing the naval estimates and all the colonies made individual offers. Six years have passed since then, and where was the emergency? He said that it was natural for the most important questions of the day being discussed during election campaigns, and the emergency question was not touched upon in the two British elections of 1910, which showed conclusively that there was no real need for the battleships.

Should Grow Indignant.

Here Mr. King read quotations from speeches by Hon. Winston Churchill, Premier Asquith and Lord Crewe and resolutions passed by the British admiralty. By this he endeavored to prove that Great Britain was adequately supplied with armaments. "But in spite of this Mr. Borden returns from his trip last year and discovers an 'emergency' and immediately you look into this matter you will become more indignant at the course the present government is pursuing. That there is no need for immediate construction of warships is Winston Churchill's answer to Premier Borden. Mr. Borden is proposing to give the ships when Great Britain says there are not necessary. Mr. Churchill said in the house of commons during Mr. Borden's visit to England: 'We have the situation well in hand; there is no need for panic or alarm.' The speaker feared that on receiving the three ships the British taxpayers would refer back to the statements that they were unnecessary and say: 'We don't need them and why should our taxes be increased because of them? Let the people who sent them pay for their upkeep.' (More cheers.)"

Mr. King asked if England would be paying off her national debt at the rate of $300,000,000 in seven years, would there be any danger of war and a resultant need of more ships.

Urges Canadian Navy. He could not imagine a self-respecting country not looking after the protection of its own shores. Canada was under an obligation to the old country by helping to maintain the supremacy of the seas by protecting the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard. The need was greater for protection since the British fleet had been withdrawn from Canadian shores. In the words of Winston Churchill, "the British fleet should guard the decisive theatre of the empire while the colonies should keep the flag flying on the oceans of the world." That was the imperialism that should appeal to all Canadians.

Before concluding, Mr. King touched upon the "unhappy alliance" of Conservatives and Nationalists. He said that Mr. Borden had been elected because of the Nationalists in his cabinet. Better, Monk and Nairn—who did the bidding of Mr. Bourassa. The Nationalists were opposed to a permanent policy, and that was why Mr. Borden was unable to support his stand for

COYOTE JUMPED A HIGH FENCE

Animal Was Frightened by a Bull Dog and Escaped From Owner's Yard.

A full grown coyote, the size of a collie dog, escaped from the premises of John Gilchrist, 456 Palmerston avenue, Tuesday night, and the owner has heard no trace of it since. It is quite slimy built and possesses a coat of grey fur.

The coyote was captured on the Saskatchewan prairie last summer when it was about a month old, and brought to Toronto last September by Joseph Gilchrist. The Gilchrist home is situated at the northeast corner of Palmerston avenue and Harbord street, and was tied up with an iron chain. About 9:30 on Tuesday evening the coyote in some unknown box, loosed and in an effort to corner the Gilchrist bull dog was brought on the scene. This had an unlooked for effect, the coyote, which took such violent flight at the sight of the approaching bull dog that it jumped over the seven foot fence on to Harbord street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(Can. Press.)—U.S. Judge Charles M. Hough, appointed in 1906, lies seriously ill tonight in a hospital, suffering from hemorrhage of the stomach. He was stricken while at luncheon early this afternoon, and was not able to resume his seat in court.

Judge Hough's illness caused a suspension until Monday of the government's trial of Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy, Albert Freeman, and Dr. Wm. J. Morton, accused of using the mails fraudulently to promote Canadian silver and ore mines. Freeman was a witness for the defence during the forenoon session of the court.
