

RULE XLVI.—Whether he confess or not.— If he acquire riches. Though he urge me—not comply ; unless he advance stronger. Unless it rain.
 If it be fair. Because it was improper. Though he is high. Whether he improves or not. Heart were tender. If he promise. Lest it happen. Lest he fall. If he is but in health. If I were you If thou dost believe. Though he does praise her. He dares not reply. If thou do not forgive. The affair termi- nate. Repentance compose her mind. Though virtue appears severe. If thou knewest,—why didst thou not tell. If thou wouldst improve. If thou hadst succeeded. Thou canst not deny—though thou wilt not acknowledge. If thou hast promised.— Though thou couldst have foreseen—thou couldst not avoided. That he endeavor to succeed.

RULE XLVII.—Neither cold nor fervid.— Should either be true—or relinquish. Was as red as blood. Is as deserving as the other. Must be so exact as to keep. Nobody is so sanguine as hope.
 Not so much esteemed. That affected me at once.
 Be so candid as to own. Conduct as far as it respects. Trivial that they do not deserve. Receive as much credit as intended. Is so plain that I need not. Either carry this or send a person. He will neither do it, not let me do it. Behaved well so that his conduct.

RULE XLVIII.—As learned as he. Speak better than I. Better executed by them than us.
 Better Grammarians than they. Not so learned as she. Who betrayed her companion ? Not I. Who revealed secrets—? Not he. Who related falsehoods—? Not I, it was she. Than whom, a more courageous man. A more learned man than he.
 But one, and that is I. To be slain, but him and her.

RULE XLIX.—He is more bold and active than his companion, but not so wise and studious.