Missed and mourned.

Dear lad, we can never forget you,
Who wept with the willing men

When the call for the best came ring ing
Along by the moor and glen;
Your dust is asleep in France,
Because your heart was true,
So we'll light our lamp in the gloamin',
And silently think of you.

'Tis not a long way to the meeting,
When the world's deep pain is o'er;
We'll patiently toil till the shadows
Sink over sea and shore;
And then when the last hour's And we wait for the love we knew; We'll light our lamp in the gloamin' And silently think of you. b
