THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 19.

Trust the People.

Governments in war time are on trial as well as nations, and in the world war Canada cannot expect to escape what Britain, France, Russia, and almost all the belligerent powers bave been experiencing. Some are inclined to take a pessimistic view of affairs because the people who are supposed to represent the nation do not transact business in an ideal way, with harmony, promptness and dispatch, but Canada is not a model nation yet, but only a fifty year infant among the nations and doing very well consider-

The people of Canada have their own idea of what should be done. The one thing that the overwheiming matority of the people are agreed about is the need of winning the war. What this respect he is the necessary man to from that, and those who obstruct that, must pass, even as greater-things in Europe are passing in the fime of trial. Those who represent the nation must objectly and finitly be agreed upon this issue. Those who are not strong for winning the war are helping to lose the war, and there is-only one wordlot for them.

AtD nations are agreed about the It is men. Those who 3.50 ing men are for losing the war, and no excuses are possible ves or to our allies if we etp to lose the war. The United es begins her share in the war with the measure which some Canadians-do not think it necessary to end the war with. The selective draft is ndispensable if we are to keep our Canadian ranks at the front. Parliament has disagreed about this, but the overnment of Canada must be clear and definite on this measure, and it should be passed without delay. It is an entirely non-partisan measure, and in its operation there must be together for the winning of the war. It is obvious that the conscription Liberals cannot be left to perish on the political wayside by the government, which they have sacrificed themselves to sustain. No more patriotic deed has been done than this loyalty to principle -the principle of human justice and freedom.

"Trust the people" was the watchword of Sir James Whitney and of all who have the great faith of national character at heart. If the government follows such a course as we have outlined it need not fear to appeal to the soldiers in the trenches nor to those whom they defend at home in Canada. Those who care for other things than the national righteousness of Canada and the cause of human liberty at stake in the world war are a negligible quantity.

British Cabinet Changes.

Great Britain is not afraid to change her ministers tho she forswears elections when a great war is afoot. The latest shake-up is in the direction of youth and energy. The most remarkable of the new ministers is Sir Eric Geddes, an Anglo-Indian of Scotch parentage with American experience. Lord Kitchener discovered him and he can do things. This is the prime virtue in war. He has a reputation for shriveling up red tape as a candle does a cobweb, and in at the admiralty. Winston Churchill will be as he has been attacked, but he also gets things done. It has been shown that his despatch of the naval brigade to Antwerp gave the army a precious day or two to save itself from the German hordes. Yet most of the criticism leveled against him was based on this project. The Dardanelles expedition was approved by all, and would have been successful had the navy kept on for one more day, as the Turke, as it burned out after-wards, were entirely out of ammuni-tion and could have done nothing more to prevent the forcing of the straits. Churchill cannot be blamed for this. It was ill fortune. Montagu is another young and en-ergetic man. He will probably have a better idea of what should be done for India than some of its recent rulers. To this end all the provisions dealing with exemptions or any other parti-cular in which partisanship could be in any way possible, should be so framed that the most impartial action alone could be taken. The issue is altogether too grave for it to be possible to leave it to any personal favor or preference in choosing those The report on the Kut disaster, the character thruout our Dominion. Hospital Doctors Rebuked. The two young internes were scored by Crown Attorney Greer, who is in-vestigating the case, for their laxity in failing to see that the exact cause of Miss Cook's death was written on the index card of the hospital. The card stated that tubercular peritonitis was the cause of death, but evidence showed that the real cause of death was peritonitis preceded by a mis-carriage. Dr. Gallagher said he signed the card and admitted that he signed life.

The New Testament most decidedly does teach Christian unity; it nowhere definitely teaches organic, legal, ecclesizitical union which could indeed exist without true unity of spirit. Dr. Pedley really admits the weakness of this argu-ment by adducing four other reasons in, favor of church union. But why bring up any more than this, if it is by the Great War Veterans' Club at meeting held some days ago, and it is understood that a number of these will be present to explain the reorganiza-tion as well as tell the veterans what they can do to further the first object of their new association, that is, to bring the war to a successful termina tion as quickly as possible. The government has promised an income tax, and if this is made to deal equitably with the problem of drawing upon the excess wealth in the hands of the rich it will gain the sympathy and their labor and their thrift, while the leisured and the wealthy enjoy the spectacle. There must be no technical evasion of this question. It must be faced squarely and honestly. There must be a levy on weath.

There must also be a straightforward and undodgeable dealing with the food question. Food control must control. and there must be no hesitation about fixing prices if that be found necessary. Hon, Mr. Crothers has made a good start, but it must be followed up. A reputation for flash-in-the-pan politics is fatal to any government.
