gence, received by the bite arrivals, which may be reli-ed on as anthentic: - Dr Taars and a Gentleman connected with the Foreign Office, had left London for the Hague, with the Statements, Maps, &c., which, by the provisions of the Convention of Reference, were to be laid before the King of the Netherlands, the Arbiter, previous to the 2d April. Sir Howare Douctas was about leaving London for the same destination. His Honor Judge Caura and it was expected, would return to his official duties in this Province, in the convente of the summer.--No further statements of any kind, could according to the terms of the Convention, be laid be-fore the Arbiter, after the mutual d-livery, in the first instance, unless the Arbiter himself should call for ex-planation or further evidence. The time of giving a decision, of course, rests with the Arbiter.-Courter. FOUR DAYS LATER ! - By the Pacific, from Boston, we have been favoured with New York papers to the 19th and Boston in the 21st, containing "London dates to the Bist March and Liverpool to the 1st Apell. We bave made the most interesting extracts, and are glad to observe that the affairs of trade and commerce begin to assume a more pleasing aspect. The trenchaent is still the order of the day; but Mr. Humr's endeavour to shew that reductions to the ex-tent of eight millions are provided by the the total of the the conveyance of Goods in is still the order of the day; but Mr. Hum's endeavour to shew that reluctious to the ex-tent of eight millions are practicable, was so completely beyond the mark as to neutralize all the effect of his best meant suggestions. Ac-cordingly, we find that the extravagance of his demands led the Chancellor of the Exchequer instead of looking at the items singly, to re-sist them in the mass, as wholly impracticable. Mr. Contartas took the opportunity of stating sist them in the mass, as wholly impracticable. Mr. GOULBURN took the opportunity of stating what the reductions to be effected really amounted to, and we find that instead of reaching the To the Collector and Comptroller, } St. John, New Branswick. vast sum stated by Mr. HUME, they will not vast sum stated by Mr. HOME, they will not created £1,300,000; with which announcement the majority of speakers declared themselves perfectly, satisfied. We are curious to know particulars on this very interesting subject. We have generally had too much reason to object, not so much to the extent of reduction contemplated or actually effected, as to the particular subjects of it. How often does it happen that in the scheme projected, overgrown pluralists for sinecurists, to say nothing of overpaid public functionaries, are allowed to retain quiet possession of their accumulated gains, while the hard earned, narrow incomes of the inferior State series. earned, narrow incomes of the inferior State ser-
