STORIES OF WELLINGTON. New Things About a Great Man-" Make It a Victory" Really Turned Disaster Into the Commander's Wish.

It is never too late to learn new things about a great man. The Duke of Wellington has been dead many years, yet the recently published "Autobiography of Alexander "Autobiography of Alexander and indomitable mental courage of the hero of Waterloo.

When the news of the bloody Battle of Ferozeshah reached London there was great consternation in the Ministry. At best it was a drawn battle, and Sir Robert Peel was much depressed.

"You must lose officers and men if you have great battles," said the Duke of Wellington. "At Assaye I dost a third of my force."

When the Council continued to conider the battle a crushing reverse, when the Council continued to con-mider the battle a crushing reverse, Wellington lighted up suddenly. "Make it a victory!" said he. "Fire a salute and ring the bells." And so it was ordered and done; and the immediate heartening of the people proved the soundness of the old sol-dier's policy.

when Lord Dalhousie was about to go to India he begged the Duke to recommend for the personal staff any young officer in whom he felt an interest. He stoutly refused. "I would be a stoutly refused." I would be a stoutly refused. "I would be a stoutly refused."

In 1824 the Cabinet, when it

"But we have always understood that Your Grace thought Lord Combermere a fool."
"So he is a fool—an utter feol; but he can take Rangoon."
When the Duke of Wellington was Warden of the Cinque Ports the Queen went to Walmer Castle for change of air. The clerk of the works preceded Her Majesty and made some tawdry repairs, at which made some tawdry repairs, at which the Duke was greatly displeased.
When the Queen went to Strathfieldsaye the same clerk of works preceded her. But here, in his own home, the Duke was beforehand with him, and ordered him off.

No alterations were made. The Duke said, 'I just got a few tables and a harpischord, and I asked the neighbors to meet her.

This was so much out of the rout-ine of grand preparations and grand guests that Her Majesty was much Uses of Turpentine.

Did you ever stop to think how many uses turpentine has and that you cannot afford to be without a large bottle full in the pantry?

For croup, cold, sore throat in any form, it has no equal, especially when mixed with lard or vaseline to prevent blistering. Often a severe cold may be cured by rubbing the chest and throat with a mixture of turpentine and lard. Or still another way is to wring flannel cloths out of

Charceal Is Good for the Teeth,

Charcoal is Good for the Teeth.

Charcoal is a great sweetener of the breath, and, besides that, it "strengthens and whitens the teeth, removes the tartar, prevents tooth-ache and gives the gums and lips an anttractive color." About as much as can be placed on the point of a knife should be rubbed gently into the interstices of the teeth on going to bed, to be rinsed out theroughly in the morning. The objection to charcoal is its grittiness, and it must be reduced as nearly as possible to an impalpable powder. Its purifying qualities are invaluable, purifying qualities are invaluable, and it is said if taken inwardly it will cure indigestion.

Fiction In History.

Thomas Carlyle in his history of the French revolution gives a description of a naval battle June 1, 1794, off Brest between Villaret-Joyeuse, in command of the French fleet, and Ad-command of the French fleet, and Admiral Howe, in which he vividly depicted the sinking of the Vengeur.

These are the concluding sentences:

"Lo, all flags, streamers, jacks, every rag of tricolor that will yet run on rope flies rustling aloft; the whole crew crowds to the upper deck, and with universal, soul maddening yell shouts, 'Vive la republique!' sinking, sinking. She staggers, she lurches, her last drunk whirl. Ocean yawns abysmal; down rushes the Vengeur, carrying 'Vive la republique!' along with her, unconquerable, into eternity."

Rear Admiral Griffiths, at the time a lieutenant on board the Culleden wrote to a newspaper to show that Carlyle's account had no foundation in fact. After investigation Carlyle admitted that not a word of this thrilling story was true except that the Vengeur Sherris Sack.

In Shakespeare's plays the term sack" applied to wine is common. "Sherris sack," a term used by Fal-staff, is "seco de Xeres," a name still well known in Spain, from which the wine comes. The epithet seco, or dry— the "sack" of old English authors and the "sec" of French writers-is used in contradistinction to the sweet malvoisies and muscadels which are made of the same grapes. Wine of this sort, it is said, was introduced into England about the time of Henry VII., whose close alliance with Ferdinand and Isabella was cemented by the marriage of his son with their daughter. It became still more popular in England under Queen Elizabeth, when Essex and those who sailed with him pillaged Cadiz in 1596 and brought home the fashion of drinking sherris sack.

The gods are satisfied when a man does his best; but the neighpors may still find fault with him.

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, says:

"There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know of. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any other I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. The experience and testimony

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition.

HIGH LIGHTS OF FASHION. Linen Coats, Plaited or Sack Boler and Various Other Items.

Linen coats are the natural complement of the aiready well established linen skirts. The plaited linen bolero shown has a stole and collar of stitched linen, bands of which also edge the bell sleeves. The plaits are repeated at the back. A basqued coat is also very smart. The back is quite plain fitting, the fronts cut to stand out smartly from the figure. The sleeves are of the new "coat bishop" order, so cut that the baggy fullness at the back of the wrist is contrived without more than the slightest gathering or plaiting, the seam outward taking its place. This is distinctly a gain where washing has to be contemplated.

Canvas is one of the favorite mate-rials and may be had in cream and many other colors, and a popular de-sign is the plaited skirt with a hip plece of openwork over silk. This model has a sack bolero with short plaited stoles and wide cape collar adorned with vandyked openwork and trimmed with motifs of cream guipup It has wide bell sleeves and can be worn with any pretty waist.

A Paris correspondent notes as a fact worth chronicling the hold boleros have at present among the most ele fashion. At all smart gatherings dresses in crape, voile or mousseline display a short plaiting falling loosely above a high draped, close fitting cein

A pretty style is found by those who do not care to adhere to the smart lit-tle bolero effects in the full blouse shaped bodice, having a pointed shaped shoulder cape ornamented with silk tassels and cords. A narrow velvet collar of some bright contrasting color is a becoming finish to these attractive capes.

For evening are beginning to be adopted some of the day dress garnitures—namely, ornaments in gimp forming a sort of basque from the center of the waist at the back.

The emerald green shade which has figured so largely in dressy hats promises to appear this season in smart fete toilets. Flame color and nasturtium red are other taking new hues, but perhaps there is nothing that can more certainly be depended upon for style than the universally worn black

A new wrinkle in masculine vanities promises to be the hatband in two or more colors on the straw hat, but prob-ably, except among the youthful contingent, dark blue and black will predominate as usual. It appears that the broad, straight brimmed shape is to be the popular straw outing hat for women as well as the standard shape for men. plaid or polka dots is fashionable wear with a woman's linen collar on summer shirt waists.
