The manner of doing so being fully explained on the opposite page, I shall only ask you to read it carefully, feeling sure that the Golden Rule, which you will certainly use in measuring yourself, will have for result a more than generous response.

Yours very gratefully,

MRS. J. A. GILLIES.

of the Holy Souls.

At this time of the year, when every Catholic is eager to do what he can for the relief of the suffering souls. a most efficacious means is to enrol the dead in the famous Archeonfraternity at Montligeon. It is setablished with the approbation of the Ordinary of the French diocase where it has its headquarters, and the can be corrected archibishops and bishop's throughout Christendom, as well as with the soleman approbation of the Late Holy-Pontiff, Leo XIII., and his present Holiness Pius X., both of whom have enriched the association with the most precious indulgences.

One can become a member by sending his own name or those of any others, living or dead, to Mgr. Paul Buguet, La Chapelle Montligeon, O'Orne, France, so that they may be enrolled on the register there, paying at the same time the small yearly fee of one cent for each person. A perpetual membership may be secured, for oneself or for the dead, by paying the sum of one dollar. This entitles the donor to participation in all Masses and other privileges, until the soul shall enter heaven. Besides the Masses, practically incumeration may also be obtained there, as to what is being, done in that sanctuary especially for forsaken souls, for the souls of deceased priests, for all those specially recommended to suffrages, and in fine for all the patient of the course of the rank of a Basilica by the Holy Father.
