JOHN STOTT

little Bermuda buttercup oxalis, which can be potted and placed in the light at once, and in a short time will be covered with golden blossoms, though the list of freesias, crocus, tulips, hyacinths and Chinese lilies. I have tried other kinds of bulbs, but have found these most satisfactory.

My best flower stand has been a watertight box about two feet wide and long enough to fit the window. Mine was about five feet long; the sides were six inches high. This was mounted on legs two inches higher at one end than the other. The lower end had a hole bored through the bottom, which was fitted with a cork. The bottom was covered several inches deep with stones. On these the pots were placed. Every morning in the winter hot water was poured on the stones. The next morning the cork was withdrawn, the cold water drained into a pail, the cork replaced and hot water again poured on.

The plants grew so green and thrifty that my box was much admired, especially as the sides were curtained by vines, the most luxuriant of which I found growing wild and transferred to the house, where it "more than grew."

There are numerous other plants that might be mentioned. Ornamental asparagus is good for winter growing if you have a warm room, though it will live most anywhere. It likes heat, and if the pot is placed occasionally in another dish containing half its depth of very hot water it will grow rapidly. Asparagus sprengeri is beautiful for a hanging basket, with its graceful, pendulous masses of fine, feathery foliage.

The plant commonly called leopard lily, though it is not a lily, with its round, green, leathery leaves spotted with white is decorative. It requires plenty of room, rich soil and good drainage.

Do not have too many plants. They obscure the light, and it is too much like work to take care of them. One well grown plant is worth a dozen poor ones.

See that the receptacles for the plants are perfectly clean, and that they have one or two holes in the bottom for drainage. Cover these with stones or broken crockery, next with an inch of coarse gravel, and then nearly fill with rich garden soil. If the soil is well baked in the oven it will be greatly improved.

Man. MRS. WM. KINLEY.

VARIETIES OF HOUSE PLANTS

EDITOR FARMER'S ADVOCATE:

Geraniums are amongst the best house plants, as they require little care and can be had in a great variety of cheerful colors, ranging from white, various shades of pink, scarlet and crimson. They can be propagated from slips or grown from seed. They do well in almost any good soil; must be kept moist, but never wet, or the roots will rot, and like plenty of light and sunshine. To keep the plants a good shape, turn them round every few days so that all sides may get the light. Sometimes they need pinching back to make them throw side branches.

Primula obconica, or Japanese primrose, as it is sometimes called, is a very satisfactory plant for a north window, as it will thrive without sunshine. It is a delicate mauve or white. A cluster of small blossoms on one stalk; an excellent table plant, as it grows low and bushy, and is a splendid winter bloomer. It is seldom troubled by insects, but it requires plenty of moisture. It can easily be grown from seed. If started in the spring, it will bloom the following fall. This variety of primula continues to bloom year after year.

The Chinese primrose, or primula, is an annual, has flowers much larger than the obconica, and a greater variety of colors—white, mauves, pinks and crimson. It is a very handsome plant when well grown, and a good winter bloomer; can also be easily grown from seed, and will repay anyone the care it requires.

The cineraria is one of the most showy of all pot plants. Its colors include some of the richest purples, magentas and white. When in full bloom, it is a mass of daisy-shaped flowers, a glow of beautiful color, but is very subject to aphid (or green fly),

Caught a Cold

Which Ended in a Severe Attack of Pneumonia.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

Bronchitis, Pneumonia and Consumption are all caused by neglecting to cure the simple cold.

Mrs. G. W. Bowman, Pattullo, Ont., writes:—"Three years ago I caught a cold which ended in a severe attack of Pneumonia. Since that time at the beginning of each winter I seem to catch cold very easily. I have been so hoarse I was unable to speak loud enough to be heard across the room. Last winter, however, a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, saying it had helped her. I bought a bottle and before it was half used I was completely cured. I also find it a good medicine for the children when they have colds."

Beware of the many imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Ask for "Dr. Wood's" and insist on getting what you ask for.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
