"Our Carpenter."

Mrs. Brown was calling on Mrs.
Baton, and the subject of conversation
was 'Social Service.'
'Wasn't that sermon of Mr. Trent's
last Sunday just the fivest you ever heard?' said Mrs. Brown, gushingly
'I think that idea of Social Service is just beautiful! Tothink of helping to make hite easier for somany neonle

is just beautiful! Tothink of helping to make life easier for comany people It just makes me feel like starting out this minute to do some of the lovely things he described. Don't you feel that way?'

Now Mrs. Brown had a reputation for being something less than angelic in her home relations. Her family were not envised, and no maid servant ever stayed more than a mosth, some not more than a week with her.

So there may have been a meaning

The Heritage.

Many years ago the wife of a New England pastor started a sewing so ciety among the women of the con gregation. During her lifetime and for a long time af erward the sec ety flou ished and d d valuable work; but at last there came a period of great d'acouragement. It was twenty years since the mini ter's wife had died; many things can chauge in tegral.

she rose; the tears shone in her eyes

she rose; the tears shone in her eyes.

'My friends,' she said, qu'et'v, 'thi
sewing circle was formed by Mrs.
idail.'

That was all, but it was enough
At the mention of the loved name,
discouragement litted like a cloud,
und courage was kindled once more Disband the society that she had or ganized? It was not to be thought of Eagerly they set themselves to the ganized? It was not to be thought of Eagerly they set themselves to the task of making their work worthy of the dear memory they cherished, and years later the sewing society was still doing spiendid work.

It is only one illustration out of many of the heritage that great and laying souls lea e behind them the world over. We long to leave money for our loved on.—that which shall yive them pleasure and power—but for our loved on.s.—that which shall give them pleasure and power—but a money can give power to resist temptation conquer discouragement and keep the heart lifted to the vision Money cannot do these things, but such one who wills may leave to hose he loves. What a pity it is if, aving this high privilege, we go our vay on the great journey, and leave o inspiration behind.
