A Tangled Web
BY MRS. ALEXANDER
Author of "Beaton's Bargain," "His Perfect Truth,"
"By Another Name," "Her Hea's Idol,"
"Half a Truth," "His Rival."

"So Lady Dorrington is in town," said the latter, after their first exchange of greetings.

"Indeed! I have not heard from her."

"I don't think I was mistaken. I saw her drive up to Mrs. Ruthven's hotel as I left this morning."

"I did not think she would be up just yet. How is Mrs. Ruthven today?"

"No great things," said Shirley. "This unfortunate business has taken such a hold on her. I believe she suspects every soul that comes near her. She ought to get away among new scenes and people. It is a pity she bought this villa."

"It is no 't' last investment. She might sell it any day for a thousand or so more than she gave. The owner was very hard up for ready money."

"Ah! that's always the way—those that have to them shall be given. And our charming friend has a keen appreciation of a bargain!"

"Of course it is in her blood," said Marsden, laughing. "Now must go and look after this sister of mine. Shall you see Mrs. Ruthven today?"

"I hope to do so. She fancies she has some faint cleft to the ruffian that robbed her. I don't believe it myself. It seems almost as if she were about a half-caste, from Fondicherry. I scarcely know what," and Shirley pulled himself up. "I avoid the subject with her now."

"We can't wonder if she is a little morbid! I shall call at any rate—early tomorrow. They interchanged 'good-mornings' and parted."

"I wonder the bereaved widow did not send for me?" mused Marsden. "Why does she hang on to that cad?" he walked slowly toward his club. "I don't fancy she cares for him; not now at least—I wish she did—or, for any one except myself. She might have him for a trustee—she may have whom she likes. I am well out of my difficulties. I'll take deuced good care to keep clear of any more. The fact is I am very simple in my tastes, only I fell in with an extravagant set! I wish Mrs. Ruthven would take her departure—anywhere even to another world. Has she made a will? Who she left her money to? She has no relations? Suppose she makes her residuary legatee? That would be too comic! I wonder why she is so still to Marsden—she is always watching her. She is such a mean devil, she suspects I am in love with my charming cousin. Ah! Marsden she knows how to play! She has given me fresh youth and force, and invention. Nothing shall part us. But I must be cautious for a little longer than this—"

So, with head erect, a delicious smile success unflinching his spirit, Marsden strolled down Park Lane and said placidly. Reaching his club, he found a note from his commanding officer—rather than inviting him to dinner that day. Marsden felt bound to obey—much to his annoyance.

Lady Dorrington was exceedingly formidable to him just then. She knew something of his life and his embarrassments—and she suspected more. She had no hesitation in questioning him, in the coolest and most embarrassing manner; moreover, she was exceedingly difficult to mislead her.

Marsden, however, prepared himself for the ordeal, and came up smiling, at seven-thirty, with his pleasant, frankest manner.

"Well, Clifford, and what have you been doing with yourself since we parted?" asked Lady Dorrington, when dinner was over and they were left alone.

"A great many things. It has been a busy time altogether. I was over in Amsterdam, as you know after these unlucky events. I was in great hopes of finding a few there, but it's no use. Mrs. Ruthven will never see them again. Then I went to Paris, to see De Meudon. He was awfully ill, poor fellow—gastric fever or some such thing. I spent a few days with him at his villa, and had a talk with some of the principal jewelers in Paris, but could find nothing. One of them suggested the stones might have gone to New York or Sydney. Then I came over here to attend to Mrs. Ruthven's business—she was in such a violent hurry about that villa."

"Is the affair finished, and the money paid down?" sharply.

"Yes," returned Marsden, looking up surprised. "Why do you ask?"

"Thank God!" said Lady Dorrington emphatically. "You know I never mind matters, and I can tell you I was in a horrid fright about this purchase, lest—well, lest the money for it should not be forthcoming in time."

"My dear sister, I am immensely flattered by your high opinion of your only brother," bowing ironically.

"That is all very well, Clifford, but I know you, and I know what temptation a large sum of money absolutely at your disposal must be. I dreaded the appointment of a new trustee and the discovery he might make, that was one reason why I was so eager to press your marriage with Mrs. Ruthven. I am still anxious for it, but not for its immediate celebration."

"Isabelle!" said Marsden quietly, but in a tone of feeling, while he looked straight at her, his soft, dark blue eyes gave an reproachful, they have been reckless, extravagant, everything I ought not to be, but to

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Jacquet River

Wednesday March 23rd there began here a mission for the R. C. Church. The services were conducted by the Rev. Father LeChauveau.

These Rev. gentlemen were invited here by the R.A. Pastor, the Rev. W. P. Purcell who certainly must feel satisfied with the results of the mission. Over nine hundred persons approached the sacraments of confession and communion.

The mission was a most successful one and its success is largely due to the zeal and energy of Father Purcell who weeks in advance announced the mission and exhorted his congregation to attend it. That the people responded to the call of their worthy pastor is evidenced by the fact that at all the services there was a very large attendance.

Masses during the mission were said at 6:30, 7 and 8 o'clock, the last mass being a high mass and celebrated by the very Rev. Father McMillan. There were sermons, in the morning the sermons were in the French language while English was the language of the evening discourses.

On Holy Thursday the mission was brought to a close by a solemn High Mass. The celebrant of this mass was Father Purcell who was assisted by the very Rev. Father McMillan as Deacon and by Father LeChauveau as sub-deacon. Mr. Herman Ullman acted as Master of Ceremonies. During the mass Father LeChauveau preached a very able and eloquent sermon in English on the Blessed Sacrament.

Services were held also on Sunday and Friday evenings, and on both occasions being Father Purcell his sermon on Friday evening on the death and sufferings of Jesus Christ was certainly an eloquent and touching one, many being moved to tears during the Rev. gentleman's discourse.

We regret to have to announce the death of one of our old and most respected residents Mr. James McMillan. Mr. McMillan who was ill only a very short time passed away on Wednesday the 6th inst at the age of 84 years.

The funeral which was largely attended took place on Saturday the 9th inst. The Rev. Mr. McLeod officiating. The interment took place at New Mills. All classes here extend sympathy to the family and friends of the deceased.

Mr. McMillan was a good man and an earnest worker in church affairs, he was highly respected by all his neighbors and acquaintances.

Easter Sunday Father LeChauveau celebrated mass in the school house at Lorne Settlement. The service was largely attended, many persons receiving the holy communion.

In the afternoon Father Purcell accompanied by Father LeChauveau drove to New Mills where they held services in the evening and also on Monday morning. Both priests were kindly entertained on Sunday evening by the Rev. Mr. McLeod, Presbyterian minister resident at New Mills.

Our community was greatly shocked on Sunday last when the sad news reached here that Austin Lavolette son of Mr. Joseph Lavolette of this place had been killed that morning at Moncton. Mr. Lavolette who was a native of this place was a brakeman on the I. C. R. and met his death by falling between the cars of the train on which he worked at the time. The remains reached here on Tuesday after a funeral service conducted by Rev. Father Purcell. Much sympathy is felt for the family of the deceased.

A Temperance Society was organized here on Sunday last by the Rev. W. F. Purcell. Between 90 and 100 by the pledge of Temperance.

The society which will be known as St. Gabriel's Total Abstinence Society held its first meeting on Sunday last Father Purcell presiding.

At the meeting took place the election of officers which resulted as follows—

Spiritual Director, Rev. W. F. Purcell; President, Thomas Hayes, Esq.; Vice-President, P. J. Furlotte; Secretary, H. J. Ullman; Treasurer, A. J. Melanson.

Marshall, Thomas LaPointe, and Matthew McDonald—Guard and Janitor, M. Shannon.

The society has a nice large meeting room which will be opened to the members certain evenings during the week, where they may spend a pleasant time in reading, the playing of games and so forth.

Father Purcell is to be congratulated on his work for the people under his care. We trust that this society which he has lately organized will prove a success and that it doubtless will fill all its members take an interest in it. All here, Protestants as well as Catholics, applaud the move of Father Purcell, and his people are to be congratulated on having as their pastor a man who shows such zeal and interest in the well being of his people. He is beloved by his own people respected and honored by Protestants among whom he has many warm friends.

The roads are beginning to break up here now and travelling is far from being pleasant.

Mrs. A. J. Melanson who has been ill with La Grippe is we are pleased to say well again.

Mr. John Harkins of Quebec was here on a business trip last week. The young men are now preparing to go on the drive. We wish them all good luck while in their dangerous occupation and a safe return to home and friends.

How to ward off an attack of Rheumatism.

"For years when spring time came and I went into gardening, I was sure to have an attack of rheumatism and every attack was more severe than the preceding one," says Josie McDonald of Man, Logan County, West Va. "I tried everything with no relief whatever, until I procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application gave me ease, and after the first bottle was used, I felt like a new person. Now I feel that I am cured, but I always keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house and when I feel any symptoms of a return, I soon drive it away with one or two applications of this liniment. For sale by A. McG. McDonald."

Pokemouche

It has been some time since we have had any notes from around our vicinity and as there are a good many readers to Events in this locality we must try to make it as interesting to our readers as possible.

I do not understand what happened to the correspondent, we used to get the news every week and we always looked forward to its coming with much pleasure. Let me take the opportunity of sending you a few of the items of the happenings of our ever up-to-date little village, although we are living in a country place, but let me tell you gentle readers that we would not change our station for the throne of England's King.

We are glad to have our old time friend John LeMarquand back again for the summer, and glad to see him looking so well after the long cold winter. He is doing a rushing business getting the lobster traps and herring nets in order to commence work as soon as the ice disappears.

We have every reason to believe that this is going to be an early spring and the fishermen here are up and ready.

Mr. Johnson of New Brandon passed through here last week enroute for Waterloo.

Patrick D. Crowley has returned home from Cambridge Falls, Me. where he spent the winter. He is again working for the W. S. Loggie Co. of this place.

Michael Walsh of New Brandon who was working in the lumber woods in New Hampshire all winter returned home a few days ago. He is on duty again having charge of the stone quarry at Grand Anse for the Lambert Co. of Boston.
