This is the very prayer that I should pray:

"Grant to men's lives the power of self-"WHAT YOU DID NOT SAY."

There is many a word that a man may

Mayhap some heart that is kind and true, Like a red pomegranate, is rent in two, When out of the soul the passions leap, And, storming the portals of speech, they

But the pang that you never may know

Is the woe of the word that you did not

The word that you ought to have said to Who put up his pleading face to ask

With tears at your answer, stern and "Child, let task." Now he vexes no more, yet you often go To the grave of the lad you slighted so,

And call through the grass to the quiet And sob out the words that you did not

The word you ought to have said to her Whom long ago you did lovingly woo With gifts and graces; but tears now blur The sight of the bloom of the lavender, That brings old summers again, and

How she lists and longs for the tender Of the days gone by! When you stand

Your face in her lillies you then will And wail out the word that you did not

The words you ought to have said-the Old pair by the fireside need it so. It is better to speak, more blessed to hear

Your words of praise, while both are near. How free would your filial affections

If you knew how we who without them

All-the way of life, are entreating God, Who took them from us that sometime In His Heaven may hear what we did

A Pretty Good Sermon. A story of a bright-eyed, barefooted, shabby little fellow is told by Forward. He was working his way through a crowded car offering his papers in every direction, in a way that showed him well aughed. "Caught this time, Joe!" he said. You'll have to run to Fourteentl

"Don't care," laughed Joe in return 'I can sell all the way back again." A white-haired old gentleman seemed interested in the boy and questioned him oncerning his way of living and his earnngs. There was a younger brother to be ame and "couldn't earn much hisself." "Ah, I see. That makes it hard; you could do better alone." The shabby little fellow was erect in a noment, and the denial was prompt and

"No, I couldn't! Jim's somebody to go home to: he's lots of help. What would be the good of havin' luck if no body was glad? or of gettin' things if there was nobody to divide with? "Fourteenth street!" called the conductor, and as the newsboy plunged out into the gathering dusk, the old gentleman remarked to nobody in particular, "I've heard many a poorer sermon than
