TO-DAY'S CABLES.

HALIFAX, Sept. 24.—In reply to the message sent Saturday by the American Race Committee to the Halifax members of the International Amateur Race Committee, the latter pointed out that additions to the rules did not apply to vessels previously constructed and did not technically alter every possible United States entrant as they are rigged at present. The also agree to meet the American members in Conference this week at Falmouth, St. John or any neutral point that could be agreed upon. This affects the report sent out from Gloucester to-day declaring that the Canadian Committee had refused to agree to a Conference as requested by the American members.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

The Guards, after a hard-fought battle, administered the decisive blow to the Falcons last night in the T.C. Cup series. The college men were short of Chafe, Goldstone, and Ewing, but their places were admirably filled by Horley, Anderson and Lloyd. A strong side was blowing from the eastward, which the Falcons took every advantage of in the first half. Lloyd, who had cut out a hot one from Lloyd, which was caught on the rebound and scored the one and only goal for them. In this period they were given the opportunity of putting a number of corners which they failed to avail of. In the second period Charlie Quick had great revenge for all the shilly-shally he had been receiving of late, when after the minutes of play broke away to the westward. Inside the penalty area he was pummeled by the Coler defence and laid low. A penalty was claimed, and to this Delahanty agreed. Quick was given the honors, and the result was that he tied the score. This had the result of living up to the name greatly, but, with the strong wind in their favor, the Guards had the best of the evening. On a pass from Dick Quick, Macklin broke through the defence, and releasing the sphere to Charlie resulted in the winning goal for the Guards. Tonight the big game of the second round—Cadets vs. H.S.—will be played. Fans and players will both please note that the game is called for 8 p.m. and not 8.15 as heretofore. The Junior League is also at the best of the evening. On a pass from Dick Quick, Macklin broke through the defence, and releasing the sphere to Charlie resulted in the winning goal for the Guards. STRESSEMAN'S PLAN TO CEASE PASSIVE RESISTANCE VIOLENTLY OPPOSED.

LONDON, Sept. 25.

The recoil of the People's Party of which Chancellor Stressemann is the leader against the government's decision to abandon passive resistance has been so violent that several members of the party already have announced their withdrawal from the councils, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Berlin. The despatch adds that the chancellor will almost certainly resign and it is not believed possible at the moment to find a successor who would be willing to give effect to the government's decision to cease passive resistance.

his opponent, soon sending him crashing to the canvas again.

The pictures also showed the tremendous power that lay behind that right of Firpo's. The first blow Firpo hit Dempsey caused the champion's knees to sag. Firpo hit the champion straight times with his right just before Dempsey went sprawling through the ropes and into the laps of newspapermen.

Those rights came one after another, relentlessly powerful, each driving the champion nearer and nearer to the edge of the ring. As the eighth crashed into Dempsey's jaw his head drooped and his knees wobbled.

From the pictures it appeared that the eighth blow finished Dempsey. Many of those who saw them believed that had Firpo let the champion go onto the canvas after that blow he might not have gotten up. At least, they said, it would have given the challenger an excellent opportunity to let loose with another smashing blow that could have written final to the struggle when the champion was on his feet again.

Was It Push or Punch?

But the ninth blow sent Dempsey into the realm of the spectators and it was agreed that a newspaperman's lap is softer than the floor of a prize-fight ring.

There was much controversy immediately after the fight as to whether it was a push or a punch that sent Dempsey, with his arms and legs flying in the air, out of the ring. It was hard to tell, even from the slow moving pictures.

It was not a swift, decisive blow such as the others that had come in contact with the "man-killer." Yet it was not a shove. To the average man it would have been swift and decisive enough, but to Dempsey it may have been a shove.

The real showing came as Dempsey, struggling back into the ring. He half crawled through the ropes and the newspapermen who sat with their heads just above the level of the floor pushed him through.

Once in the ring again and facing the "wild bull" Dempsey took 15 straight blows before he was able to return one. Firpo sent one after another at the champion, who finally fell into a clinch and swung rights and lefts until the gong sounded to end that memorable round.

In the seven times that Dempsey knocked Firpo down in the first round, he used his famous left hook for the job five times. On the fourth knock down he used a left apparent to the body and on the fifth he delivered a powerful right swing to the head. All the left hooks connected with Firpo's head.

Slow pictures of the second round were not shown, but the regular speed films showed how the champion tore into his opponent from the start, sending him to the floor once and then again for the count. As the referee brought down his arm on the final count, the huge South American was trying to turn over. He was on his hands and knees, his head dropped and he was about to give up and topple to the floor again. Dempsey caught him as he was called and helped him to his corner.
