Though he never united with the church, he was converted to God in services conducted by Mr. and Mrs Beddingfield in the Mt. Salem church and from that time on was always if able, in his place on the Sabbath and was a faithful worker always ready to do his part in every way. The Mt. Salem church, with which he was associated, has lost a true Christian brother and a faithful helper. The influence of his quiet Christian character shall surely tell for the building of the Kingdom of God in the days to come. A Friend

(Saturday Evening Post)

What would you think of an engineer who, after an head-on collis-sion, said: "Well, let's get back and try that over again?" Some of our engineers are saying that. The great war brought civilization to the brink. The wreckage of lives and means of livlihood strews a quarter of the globe. Some of it is in your town-in the gold stars and crippled figures in khaki. Reactionaries want to back up to 1914, set the scene all over again as it was then, and see what will happen. They are purblind men, mole-eyed from long habitation in legalistic dust; shut in by the narrow life of professional politics; unable to un-derstand what has happened, or what the country feels. They utter learned words that have no meaningabout entangling alliances. Washington; anything but to the main point.

The United States risked all to fight a war for democracy. It can risk much to give permanence to the objects for which it fought. It is ready and eager to risk much. It knows that in a human world, some chances must be taken. It will take its chances on the League-of-Nations side that promises stable peace and order; not on the Balance-of-Power side that promises only a repitition of 1914. It seems that the butcher gets everything out of the steer but the bellows-and he gets that out of the customer.

It is truly wonderful how fascinating most things are to people that are none of their business.
