A Lady in the Case.

An interesting affair took place in the city yesterday in a private room, the parties principally concerned being two youths, one residing in the city and one in London South. The point in dispute was the affection of a young lady, daughter of a prominent merchant in the city. For some time past the fivals had been envious of each other, and matters finally reached a climax by a lively quarrel. A friend of the youthful lovers finally suggested that the matter be adjusted under Marquis of Queensberry rules, and locked them in a room together. Several lively rounds were fought and neither of them were conquered, although a liberal application of beefsteak was necessary after the conclusion of the encounter. Both the rivals are ready for another encounter for the love of their mutual choice, but the weapons have not been decided on yet. By the time the youths have adjusted their jealousy probably the young lady will have found another "mash," and the two will shake hands and muse on the faithlessness of women.

Vyoming Said To Be the Very Best

[From the Chicago Tribune.]
A member of the Wyoming Legislature has presented a bill to that body which provides for taxing each unmarried man in the Territory over 35 years old $2.50 a year. Martin Hopkins, who is stopping at the Grand Pacific, is an ardent supporter of this bill, which he believes will be adopted. "And why not?" he said to a Tribune reporter. "The Quebec Legislature has provided that every head of a family of twelve children shall receive from the Government 100 acres of land, while the French Chamber charges shall receive from the Government 100 acres of land, while the French Chamber of Deputies has directed the Minister of the Interior to investigate the subject of com-pulsory marriage.

of Deputies has directed the Minister of the Interior to investigate the subject of compulsory marriage.

"Our bill, you see, is only the revival of an old idea. Bachelors were subject to a special tax under the old Roman law, as they were in England as late as the time of William III. Frederick the Great limited the mourning period for widowers to three months. At present the petitioner of France is urging that a certain age for marrying be fixed by the Government, those who pass this line to be severely punished. "After our bill has passed we expect an influx of young women. To-day Wyoming is the best hunting ground for husbands in the United States. If 1,000 unmarried women from Chicago would start for Wyoming this month I would guarantee that 99 per cent. of the number would not be single a year. It takes a right hard disposition to block a match out there. Our school trustees want women for teachers: school trustees want women for teachers; our young chaps want pretty, entertaining girls to take to parties; our bachelors want

"Lots of women from the East have got to Wyoming within the last few years, yet the demand is far greater than the supply. There are hundreds of young girls working like slaves for a mere pittance in Chicago who could go to Wyoming, get a school there, and decide on a husband. She would not have to look for one. The show school there, and decide on a nusoand. Sne would not have to look for one. The school room is the greatest avenue to matrimony in the West. You would be surprised to know that two-thirds of the wives of Wyoming's wealthy men were once school marms. If this keeps on we won't have any schools

Woodstock, March 20.—Rev. Rural Dean Wade had fully an hour's audience with Birchall yesterday, who gladly welcomed the minister. He also requested that Mr. Wade should continue his visits, which the reverend gentleman promised to do. Mr. Wade states that he found the prisoner in a very cheerful mood. They had prayer together and the prisoner joined in the service.

Lawyer Macdonald, of Toronto, was soon atterwards admitted to the prisoner's cell and held a consultation of about an hour and a half. Mr. C. D. Ivey, of Hellmuth & Ivey, London, had a consultation with the prisoner. The prisoner is looking considerably paler than when he first arrived, but he continues to keep up a cheerful appearance.
