CHAPTER XII.

Everybody who is not of a purely lymphotic temperament must, during the course of the day, accomulate a certain amount of ill-temper, which has to be let out somehow or other. On the whole, the most pleasant people to deal with are those who let it evaporate as it comes, spreading it over every part of the day and over everybody with whom they come in corract—themselves, their friends, and strugers impartially; for the result is that their ill-temper is dealt they come in co fact—themselves, their friends, and str. gers impartially; for the result is that their ill-temper is dealt out in such infinitesimal doses at a time as to annoy nobody very much. Others, again reserve their for some particular period of the twenty-four hours, such as breakfast time or the hour before dinner, breakfast time or the hour belove when nothing that any body says or does signifies anything to anybody. But there are some—and, unfortunately, these there are some—and, unfortunately these there are some—and, unfortunately, these form the majority—who reserve theirs for particular people; who are all that is delightful to the world at large, but who, at home, are bears or tigers. So common is this practice, that a person who is exceptionally gental in society, is seldom one with whom it is altogether pleasant to live. Now, Angelique Lefort, like everybody else, had her annoyances, and, consequently, her passages of crossness; and as she was far too amiable a person to display these to the world, she was forced to let herself out either in solitude or among her slaves at home, solitude or among her slaves at home, when she happened to have them at hand. It is very doubtful if Hugh Lester would have continued to be quite so much in love had he had the command of a maric mirror for the rest of that day. It as mainly with Marie that she was put out for having interrupted her tete-a-tete at so exactly the wrong more than the time and so much upon her ment; but it was not so much upon her cousin that the avenging cloud settled as cipon the rest of the household. The children were snubbed to their hearts' content, until Ernest settled down into sullenness and Fleurette into tears; and even the mild old father of the family found his coffee bitter. But as every-thing that their divine Angelique said or did was always necessarily right, she was only petted and sympathised with all the more—silently, that is, for no one dared to say a word to her, except Ernest, who was not over-fond of his cousin, and who, in consequence, got as severe a reproof from Marie as she was capable of bestowing. f bestowing. But, fortunately for her, the days of magic mirrors had long gone by, so that Hugh went his way with no image of her in his mind save such as she had afforded him in person.

After his interview with his agent was over, he went home to Earl's Dene, and as was his habit, reported to his aunt and her guest all that he had learned of the progress of affairs in the town. But his heart was not in his story for he the progress of affairs in the town. But his heart was not in his story, for he had already obtained the triumph for which he cared the most. His real business now was to render to Miss Clare the explanation that was due to her as mistress of Earl's Dene from her heir and adopted son, and which he felt ought not to be delayed.

Nevertheless, manly as he was in all essential things, he could not but feel a little nervous about telling the old lady that there was to be an heiress to Earl's Dene as well as an heir—or, as he intended to put it to her, that she was to have a daughter as well as a son. He had all his life, like most of those about her, been a little afraid of her,

He had all his life, like most of those about her, been a little afraid of her, in spite of his experience of her affection for him; and perhaps the enormity of proposing to marry Miss Raymond's dependant seemed a little greater now, as a matter of confession, than it did when he was actually urging his suit.

Fortunately or unfortunately, however, according as it might have turned out he could find no opportunity of tellout he could find no opportunity of tell-ing her his story in the course of that evening; at least, he thought he could evening: at least, he thought he could find none, which is practically the same thing. While smoking his nightly cigar, however, he made up his mind that, come what might, he would tell it the next morning: and resolved, not out of deference to the advice of Mark Warden, but he order to compel himself to keep but In order to compel himself to keep his resolution, that he would refrain from calling in Market street until his

Next morning, then, he rose with a full intention of doing what was obviously right, and, when breakfast was over, was on the point of telling Miss Clare that he wished to speak with her, when she herself anticipated him by saying, when Miss Raymond had left the room.

"Hugh, you know how I despise such things; but look at this that some man in the street was impudent enough to in the street was impudent enough to throw at me yesterday." And she gave him the crumpled piece of paper that he had kept in her pocket. He read the warning, and blushed to his hair. "What is this, aunt?" he asked, angrily.

"That is just what I wanted to ask she answered. "One knows what things people write and say at elections, but this is such an extraordinary thing

"My dear aunt, I—"
"Listen to me first please. I can make all manner of allowances. This Miss Lefort is, I hear, a respectable girl. Now—"

"But, aunt—"
"But, aunt—"
"Wait, please. Now—you know what I mean—I should be very sorry indeed to think that you, meaning no harm even, as I am sure you would not, had been putting any nonsensical ideas into the head of any young girl who is good and respectable. I do not ask you any questions—" respectable. I do not ask you any questions—"

"But I assure you—"

"But I do wish to ask you—and now, of ail times—not, by any conduct of yours, to give the people of the town occasion to speak ill of Earl's Dene. You are almost a Clare, you know, and should remember your motto. The French have a saying which to my mind is a very noble one, when rightly used, that of 'Noblessa oblige.' We, my dear Hugh, are in a position to set an example, not only of right conduct, but of conduct that should be without a suspicion of wrong. We must give up our amusements for the sake of our duties. You understand me, I know."

"Quite, aunt; but—"

"And just think for a moment. This girl is the sister of Miss Raymond's companion—"

"Cousin sunt"

girl is the sister of Miss Raymond's companion—"
"Cousin, aunt."
"Well, almost the sister—of Miss Raymond's servant, in fact. It cannot be decent that you should give people occasion to say that you are on too intimate terms with her, no matter how contemptible may be those who say it. Besides, it is not fair, nor kind, to the girl herself, to whom, in her position, character is everything; and people can only couple your name with hers in one way."

"Aunt—"
"That is all I wanted to say to you.
And now I will destroy this wretched scrawl. Are you going into the town today?"
Now was the time to make a clean Now was the time to make a clean breast of it—now, if ever. It need scarcely be said, however, that Hugh did not take advantage of it.

In effect, he found it impossible. It was not only that Miss Clare was alwas not only that Miss Clare was always a difficult person to talk to when she had got some fixed notion into her head; it was not only that she had, so far as she had been able, trained him in habits of passive obedience from his earliest boyhood. It was by no means these circumstances alone that scattered his resolution of the night and of the morning. It was partly a higher feeling, partly a lower, than was founded upon any aspect; of the relation in which he partry a lower, than was founded upon any aspect of the relation in which he stood to his aunt, that had closed his CLASSES FOR 1902. There is much speculation among the owners and trainers and among race fol-lowers as to what classes will be decided upon for the first races along the line of the Grand Circuit next season, says the Horseman. The possibilities for great racing were never greater, due largely to the fact that the percentage of fast horses which went into winter quarters last fall sound, or serviceably sound, was very large. Looking over the list of fast trotters that will be campaigned, barring accidents, it is plain that there is more material for classes, from 2:07 to 2:12 events than in years before. With the exception of 1898 and 1899, when there were many horses in training eligible to the 2:10 class, there has been a dearth of material for the fastest, consequently the most attractive trotting events. Last year there was some question on the part of the programme-makers as to whether to make their fastest class an event for 2:07 or 2:08 trotters. From either class only four or five entries could be looked for at the most; the faster class made it possible to bring Charley Herr. Lord Derby and Boralma together, while a 2:08 class gave other chighly horses a charge without the eligible horses a chance, without the prospect of meeting either Charley Herr or Lord Derby, that outclassed them. Results proved that there was little hoice between the two.

This season there is likely to be little trouble in reaching a decision as to what the fastest class should be, since there will be raced no less than four trotters that are ellgible to the 2:07 class, but not to the 2:08 class as well as five other possible entries. A 2:08 class would bring teacher at the most only five horses that together at the most only five horses that are not eligible to the 2:00 class, and a 2:09 class would bring together only three horses that are not eligible to the 2:10 class. so, taking into consideration the fact that a 2:07 class will have many entries, besides the best in training, there will beyond all doubt be such an event; then a 2:10 trot with fourteen possible entries, consisting of as many good horses as that class has been possible to secure in years: after this a 2:12 cla would bring together as grand a field fast trotters as ever scored for the word fast trotters as ever scored for the word. No less than seventeen strictly elirible horses to the 2:12 class will be trained this year, in addition to which there are a dozen or more with records from 2:1214 to 2:1234 that would also be entered in such a class. For a 2:07 class the entries would probably be:

Chain Shot (2:0636). Lord Derby (2:0636), Dolly Dillon (2:07). Boralma (2:07). Char-

Chain Shot (2:06½). Lord Derby (2:06½), Dolly Dillon (2:07). Boralma (2:07). Charley Herr (2:07). Peter the Great (2:07). Charley Herr (2:08%). The Monk (2:08¾). Eleata (2:08¾). Kingmond (2:09).

A 2:10 class could be made up of the following, and the chances are the percentage of entries from the number available would be greater than in the above-named list of 2:07 horses:

May Allen (2:09¼). All Right (2:09¼). Dolly Bidwell (2:09¼). Early Reaper (2:09¾) John A. McKerron (2:10). Cornelia Belle (2:10). Col. Cochran (2:10¼), Miss Della Fox (2:10¼). Susie J. (2:10¼), Antezella (2:10½). Country Jay (2:10¼), Dorothy Redmond (2:10½), Fereno (2:10¾). Metellas (2:11).

Metellas (2:11) The available material for a 2:12 trotting class is too large to enumerate here, and the associations which offer such a class will be sure of a full entry list, but the fact cannot be overlooked that a 2:11 trot would bring together a mighty field of horses. Such an event would make is possible to secure eight of the horses named in the above 2:10 class, as Col. Cochran, Miss Della Fox, Susie J., Antezella, Country Jay, Dorothy Redmond, Fereno, Metellas, besides the following, which are also eligible to the which are also eligible to the lowing, which are also eligible to the 2:12 class:

Lady Thisbe (2:114), Dan T. (2:114), Leola (2:114). Charley Mac (2:114), Neva Simmons (2:114). Waubun (2:114). Border (2:114), Galbeter (2:114). Sally Simpson (2:114), Belle Kuser (2:114). Helen Grace (2:1134), Ozenam (2:1134). Miss Whitney (2:1134), Alan (2:1134), Walter Keim (2:1134), Whitewood (2:1134), Grace Onward (2:12).

many trotters with records from 2:12 to 2:15 that will be named in any class slower than a 2:10 event. Makers of programmes can hardly go wrong with such an array of speed to rely upon, and whatever the classes may be the prospects for filling the early closing stakes are highly indeed. are bright indeed. BILLIARDS.

U., class A. billiard tourney of last year, on Tuesday night in the class A tournament which is now in progress at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club. A year ago Conklin defeated Miall by one point in a game of 100 up, and on Tuesday night Miall redeemed himself by defeating the Chicago expert by a score of 400 to 335. Miall gained a commanding lead early in the game, being at one time nearly 100 points ahead. Conklin played a beautifully judged up-hill game, but towards the end was rather unfortunate, making no less than five consecutive misses from his 35th to the 35th innings. Yesterday afternoon J. A. Hendrick, of this city, and his club mate, Dr. A. B. Miller, were the contestants, and in the evening Threshie, of Boston, and Charles Norris, Threshie, of Boston, and Charles Norris, of this city, crossed cues. The second game of the tournament resulted in an easy victory for Charles S. Hendrick, also of this city, fermerly amateur champion of the State of Connecticut.

HOW ROYALTY SPENDS SUNDAY

Religious Ceremonies Observed by King and Queen.

The King's Refusal to Travel on Sunday Said to Have Stunned English Society.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: We would be pleased if you could give the inclosed article space in your valuable colums at an early date. On behalf of the London branch of L. D. A. Most respectfully yours, C. T. SCOTT, Sec.

When King Edward and Queen Alexandra were the Prince and Princess of Wales, the following interesting account of how they were in the habit of spending Sunday appeared in The Quiver. The writer says: "Sunday with their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales is passed in much the same quiet way as with her Majesty the Queen, inasmuch as religious ceremonies are faithfully observed, and the household and servants are spared all unnecessary duties. The guests wend their way, as the hour of 11 approaches, toward the little Church of St. Mary Magdalene in the park. There is a private footway direct from the house to the church by this the royal family and guests often proceed, driving round by the road only in case of unpropitious weather. Sunday afternoon is quietly spent in the house or park. Dinner is served at half-past seven. Occasionally, however, dinner is a little later, as the prince and princess may be attending evening service in one of the village churches near. The small station some two miles away, where the royal party have their own waiting-rooms, is closed on Sunday, as no train whatever is run on that day. By this means, the church is kept clear of an attendance prompted by curiosity, and also the men employed have the entire day's rest secured to them. In fact, no unnecessary work in any shape or way is performed on Sunday in any one part of the prince's domains.

"Sunday afternoon at Marlborough House differs slightly from Sunday at Sandringham, but the day is spent in comparative quietude. In the morning their royal highnesses attend divine service held in what is known as the German (Lutheran) Chapel. After luncheon, the princess and her daughters may possibly attend one of the West End churches to hear some popular preacher, or to be present at a children's service. It is not only at Sandringham and Marlborough House that Sabbath observances are rigidly adhered to by the Prince and Princess of Wales, but also in any of the continental places where they may be staying. There is an old saying that when you go to Rome, do as the Romans do, but our prince honors this rule in the breach, for, although he has ever been a constant visitor to Paris, yet he has never seen the French Derby, for the simple reason that it is run on the Sunday. In a matter where hundreds and thousands of Christians have followed the fashion of the gay their love of horses and of pleasure, the prince has set a good example, and absented himself. In every way the prince and princess have always fully observed the Sabbath, and we, as a Christian people, may congratulate ourselves that our future king and queen will steadfastly uphold the sanctity of the day of God and the doctors of the christian of the chr trines of the Christian Church." A recent quotation from the St.

James' Gazette, of London, England, saying that the King had refused to travel from Scotland to London Sunday, and has "stunned society by putting all social functions and entertainments on Sunday under the royal ban," would seem to indicate that his majesty's accession to the throne of the

"mightiest empire that has been" has not led to the relaxing of his scruples as to how Sunday should be spent. If there is any truth in the rumors that are rife about Sunday yachting excursions, mounted paper chases, and the like starting from Rideau Hall, it would seem that his majesty's example has not much weight with his re-presentative in Canada, nor indeed with society leaders generally at the Dominion capital, where only a few months the servant girls had to form themselves into a mutual protective association in order to get deliverance, among other things, from seven-day in-the-week bondage, through having to dance attendance on their mistresses and their guests at Sunday dinners, suppers, etc., as well as on all the other days of the week. And we fear that if this Servants' Mutual Protective Association does not extend to other

"I am 120 miles from the nearest drug store, and want you to send me a dozen boxes of your Pills. I have muscular store, and want you to send me a dozen boxes of your Pills. I have muscular rheumatism, and for nine months have been at Hot Springs. My liver and kidneys are affected. I find that your Pills do me more good than all the medicine I have taken and the Springs combined. "Respectfully, W. JAMES. "Harqua Hala, Yuma County, Arizona." "Your Radway's Pills have worked wonderfully in my family. My children, when sick, have received instantaneous and complete relief by their use. Sudden colds, sore throat, I find I can quickly cure by the use of your Ready Relief and Pills. They should not be wanting in any well-kept home. That doubly serves what helps you once. Yours truly, DR. H. E. SCHNEIDER. "60 Hudson street, Hoboken, N.J., and Times Building, New York." "For years I have been troubled with rheumatism and dyspepsia, and came to the conclusion to try your pills. I immediately found great relief from their use. I feel like a new man since I commenced taking them, and would not now be without them. The drowsy, sleepy feeling I used to have has entirely disappeared. The dyspepsia has left me, and my rheumatism is gone entirely. I am satisfied if anyone so afflicted will give Radway's Pills a trial they will surely cure them, for I believe it all comes from the system being out of order—the liver not doing its work."

Eaten by Fire.

"The more the fire eats the starch, the less we have to eat it." An Indian proverb, which contains much wisdom. In making PAN-DRIED Rolled Oats the kernels are subjected to intense heat, this eats the starch and thus makes their digestion easy for you. That alone is a good reason for your insisting on having

TILLSON'S PAN-DRIED OATS.

There are many other reasons. They are free from hulls and all foreign substances; so common in many Oatmeals. Talk to your grocer about always sending you the "PAN-DRIED" kind.
