WOOED HIS OWN CHILD

Desertion of Swiss Father Pursude by Strange Nemesis.

London, May 15.-A remarkable afair, reminiscent of the old Greek tragdies, has occurred at Appenzell. Nearly 20 years ago a young Swiss commercial traveler named Muller deserted his wife and infant daughter and emigrated to Mexico, where he succeeded in amassing a considerable

During his absence his wife died, and the little girl was adopted by a farmer of Appenzell named Schloss. The child assumed the name of Schloss and was generally regarded in the district as the farmer's own daughter. A year ago her father, who called himself Ilfelder after leaving his native country, sold out his business in Mexico and returned to Appenzell. He was informed, and naturally believed, that both his wife and child were long since dead. Later, he met his daughter, and, ignorant of her identity, fell in love with her. She is now nearly 20 years old, while he is 41. For four months the returned wanderer wooed the girl with her consent. It was only when he asked the approval of the farmer Schloss that he learned the girl's history, and recognized that he had won the hand of his own daughter. Rushing from the house he traveled Zurich bank. Nothing more has been

In the midst of the confusion caused by the tragedy, shouts of "Fire!" were raised, and dense clouds of smoke spread through the building. The congregation, panic-stricken, rushed to the doors and succeeded in escaping from the burning chapel.

It was then discovered, says the lett Journal, that the fire originated of a horse when he is taking an allowance of hay. "It is interesting," to says the writer of this incident, "to see with what relish they take a sip out of one and a mouthful of the other alternately, sometimes only moistening would do while eating a dinner of dry food, "A broken-winded horse is scarce."

His Worship made a neat speech, congratulating the congregation upon its congratulating the congregation upon its success, and holding out encouragement for the future. Ald. Matthews, Mr. Wm. Jeffrey and Mr. George McLaren, of the Y. M. C. A., were also present and gave helpful addresses. Collections in aid of a new carpet for the platform, new windows and so forth, were taken up. Af dows and so forth, were taken up. Af-terwards eight of the oldest members of the congregation were given dinner in Rev. Mr. Ball's parsonage. Among them was Mrs. Gale, 115 years old. Three generations of Mrs. Gale's descendants were also represented.

Tonight, as a continuation of the celebration, a concert will be held in the Auditorium, at which Mr. Albert Greenlaw will sing. It is expected that a large number of the colored population of the city, and many others beside, will be

A PLUCKY OLD MAN

A most exciting runaway which, happily, had no serious consequences, occurred last evening on Talbot street Mr. Thomas Knapton, accompanied by his wife, was driving a span of horses north over the Grand Trunk crossing when the animals, a pair of spirited blacks, took fright and bolted. Despite the best efforts of the driver they ot beyond his control and dashed up Talbot street at a tremendous rate. At Dundas street a crowd endeavored to stop them, but they continued at a break-neck pace up the street. The light wagon swayed from side to side, and as the rough piece of road near Queen's avenue was reached it seemed that at every bound the rig would upset. Knapton and his wife are both well up in years. The latter clung to her husband, while Mr. Knapton with all his strength on the mouths of his Hams—Short cut, 14 to 16 lbs, strong, frightened horses. Luckily the road was clear of vehicles, and the good work of the old man finally had its reward. As the team dashed under the archway under the C. P. R. they began to slacken up, and Knapton had the satisfaction of bringing them to a standstill a little further north. A large crowd had followed the runaway, and when it was seen that Knapton and his wife were uninjured, the old couple were heartily congratulated by

NEW TIMETABLE IN FORCE Dr. Hutchinson said Porter had done Many Changes in Grand Trunk London, and had found some wires of Trains Today.

At 12:01 o'clock yesterday morning the new timetable came into force on the G. T. R. and today travelers leaving this city have to be careful not to miss, or come too soon for their trains, a large number of them having been changed. Nothing so well illustrates the comprehensiveness and completeness of a railway system as does the introduction of a new timetable which is a radical departure from the former one. On Saturday afternoor every trainman was given a copy of the new timetable and special orders based thereon. As soon as the hands of the clock pointed to 12:01 in the morning, all trains which happened to be moving at the time at once ceased to run on the old timecard, and took up the new, no matter where they were. For instance, the train which leaves Sarnia at 11:30 at night for this city had to reach London ten minutes sooner than before, or else be slated as late. If, on the other hand, the time of the train was extended by the new table, the engineer had the right to take this extra time in arriving, un-Kneeling to pray before the image was the extension was too long. The discovery created quite a sensation in the east end, as it recalled to some of the residents the story circulated two years ago of the disappearance of a little girl on the day of the circus. None were sufficiently well-informed to give the name of the child or its parents, but several were prepared to state that they remembered the occurrence, and that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the child had never been cleared up. The child was said to have been about 10 years of age, while the skeleton found could not have been that of a child much older. north of this city, will be of steel and concrete of the most approved style. -Mr. and Mrs. Madge and Mr. and Mrs. Lofthouse desire to thank their
