The most effective work that is poss

day than religion, a sacred institution designed to draw men together instead of separating them. One is led to regret that the inspired comprehend it alike. As it is the Christian world is utterly at sea as to what the Bible teaches. We not only find some 150 varieties of Christian denominations, but in the denominations themselves there is often a very ronounced lack of harmony as to the signi-cance of the sacred Scriptures. All these ectarian broils, fought as they are in the ublic arena, tend more than anything else entirely discredit religion. It looks as if eligion may yet break up this confederation and lead to civil war. Speaking of sectarian-ism yesterday, The Globe says:

It will rend asunder this confederation whose prospects now seem so fair, and will forever destroy all hope of that confederation growing into a nation. Compared with the human misery and national disaster that the growth of this intolerance would mean, the alarms which are said to justify it sink into ansignificance.

It is the duty of all of us, Protestants and Catholics alike, to see if a permanent modus vivendi cannot be established to established to established to established to established to established to further dividends be paid up capital.

Your Directors would mean, the alarms which are said to justify it sink into insignificance.

It is the duty of all of us, Protestants and Catholics alike, to see if a permanent modus vivendi cannot be established to ensure the peace of the community. As far as the Province of Ontario is concerned we believe that Mr. Meredith has enunciated a policy which will secure more harmony than any that has been adopted or proposed by Sir Oliver Mowat. A perfect policy, as far as the rights of the various religious sects are concerned, is one that recognizes none of them, gives privileges to none of them, treats them all alike. Such a policy is impossible to day because the constitution has conferred certain privileges upon one of the sects, viz., the Roman Catholics. It would be a godsend to the country if the Catho-interval of the proposed proposed by Major the proposed to the country if the Catho-interval of the proposed proposed by Major the proposed proposed by Sir The President, on the well-deserved honor recently conferred upon him by Her Major the proposed proposed by Sir The President, on the well-deserved honor recently conferred upon him by Her Major the proposed proposed by the Great South American Kidney Cure. lics, recognizing the jealousy and disturbance that are caused by this abnormal growth on the constitution, would consent to its removal. But this is too much of a sacrification to expect from any religious body, so we must make up our minds to deal with the constitution as we find it. While we must allow our Catholic fellow-citizens all the privileges they are entitled to by the constitution, yet beyond those privileges they are entitled to no more consideration than the Baptists or Method-Agents, Inspectors and other official respective duties.

It was moved by Mr. Gardiner Boyd, seconded by Mr. Henry Cawhra, and Resolved,—That the poll be now opened for the state must recognize no religious denomination at all. There must be absolute divorce between church and state, except in so far as the hands of the state are already tied up. This is a case where our legislators must hew to the very line. The state must exercise an absolute neutrality between all the sects and not favor one a hair's-breadth more than another. This is possible of accomplishment only by favoring none at permitted to enjoy in peace. But beyond those rights they must occupy exactly the same position as every other denomination. While the constitution gives them Separate schools it does not say in what manner the trustees of those schools shall be elected. The failing with Sir Oliver Mowat has been a disinclination to hew exactly to the line. The result has been continuous strife and animosity between the permitted to enjoy in peace. But importance of observinga strict neutrality between the different sect and of keeping the church and state absolutely apart. During the past session an effort was made to straighten out one of the sectarian kinks that cause so much trouble in this province. This effort was directed towards the repeal of the law exempting churches from taxation. Sir Oliver Mowat listened to the Methodist and Presbyterian clergymen who appeared before him and he refused to abolish the law. He didn't hew to the line. He keeps the red flag dangling before the people, Sir Oliver Mowat, in this exemption question, should have taken a decided stand. He should have abolished exemptions on the ground that the state must not concern itself with religion at all. But Sir Oliver trifles with this great the past session an effort was made to

Now, we take it that this is exactly Mr. Meredith's platform as outlined at London. He concedes that the Catholics have certain constitutional rights which they must be accomplishment only by favoring none at all.

Sir Oliver's policy has been one of vacillation. He temporizes. He doesn't seem to work the Freight Bill Racket on a Gran- Guinane Bros.

Joseph York traveled all the way from comprehend the importance of banishing the church out of state affairs. When Sir Oliver listens to Principal Caven and grants his request how can he refuse to listens to the Catholic Archbishop when asking the not the Catholic Archbishop when asking for a favor? If Sir Oliver had adopted the policy of summarily dismissing the Presbyterian principal he would not be troubled with many visits from the archbishop. But as he listens to the one, so he has to head the demands of the other. Mr. Merédith's policy is the only one than can ensure harmony.
