HOW A NURSE HANDLED A HIGHLAND SOLDIER Believed He Was in Hands of Germans Trying to Poison Him

Dogs and other domestic animals stray off, get lost or are stolen, every day. The joy of the little "girlie," perhaps your little "girlie," at the recovery of her beloved "doggie" could be multiplied every day if those who find dogs would watch the "Lost and Found" columns of The London Free Press.

The first thing that occurs to unfortunate losers is to put an ad. in The London Free Press. The first thing that should occur to you when you find anything, is to read the "Lost and Found" ads. in The London Free Press. Then do as you would be done by, notify the loser that you have his property and are willing to return it.

The production of potatoes in England and Wales last year has been officially estimated at 3,339,995 long tons, about one-third more than the year before and the greatest crop on record.

A Highlander lay in a hospital ward, refusing all food or drink. He was delirious, and believed that he was in the hands of the Germans, and that they were trying to poison him. The nurses were in despair, until one of them remembered a Highland woman, a nurse in one of the other wards. She went to her, and enlisted her help in behalf of the wounded man.

"Went into the ward," relates the nurse, "and found a handsome lad muttering uneasily, his eyes bright with fever, and a defiant expression on his face. 'I'll starve before I'll take your drink,' he kept repeating. He eyed me with suspicion.

"Och, och! Duncan Dalziel, it's a sick man you are the naw." I accentuated the Highland drawl, over which I had been unmercifully ragged by my fellow-nurses. The suspicion faded quickly.

"You're no' a German, Nurse. You get my name right; they canna say Dalziel here."

"No, they can't; they are too far back," I responded. "No, I am no German, but a Highlander, like yourself. I heard that you were here, and I came along to have a crack with you. You look far through my lad; have you no got a thirst on you?"

"Ay, indeed I hae that; but they are trying to poison me here, and I winna drink their stuff."

"I'm no' blaming you either, but you'll drink mine or you'll no get your strength laddie."

"A richt, ma wumman." And he gulped down the sustaining fluid, much to my relief, as my conscience was prickling me. I should be tending my own sick and dying patients.

"Now, look you hear, Duncan Dalziel, I am a busy, busy woman, ye ken, and I must away to my work but I am coming back to give you your meat when I think you need it because you are a highlander."

"Thank you verra much. I shall be fine now."

Sister Carew hurried after me. "You are a brick!" she said warmly. "but," with much perplexity, "why did you promise him meat? Did you mean that?"

"Meat," I explained, "is the Highland term for nourishment." Sister looked relieved. She had been considering I was perhaps too optimistic concerning the toughness of the Highland interior when laid low.

Many days did I administer "meat" to the delirious Scot.

One morning I found him with the delirium gone. I had prepared his nourishment also soothing words. Neither appeared to be needed. Dalziel looked at me with polite astonishment.

"You are verra kind," he murmured weakly, "but you are no' the Sister of this ward, I am thinking."

"Quite right," I said, and hastily delivered the fluid into the hands of Sister Carew, who was bubbling over with satisfaction at the improvement of her patient. I hurried back to my own ward, feeling intensely relieved that one man at least was too well-recovered to need my care.

The patients who surrounded the Scot, and who had witnessed his feelings with immense interest, were not slow in telling him things, and a few days later, while passing through his ward, I was summoned by an eager beckoning hand.

"I am that sorry I dinna ken before all that you had been doing for me when I was queer in me head. I am verra obliged to you. Come and hae a crack when you hae the time. And will you please tell the Sister ma name is Deezell? No one here gets it right but yourself!"

Most infants are infested by worms, which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

SEED IMPORTATION REGULATIONS

Canadian farmers and gardeners are protected from the evils of planting inferior seed of many kinds of crops imported from other countries. By an order-in-council that came into effect in the autumn, importation is prohibited of unfit seed of clovers, grasses, vetches, rape, other forage plants, field root and garden vegetables in lots of ten pounds or more.

In Pamphlet S-12 of the Seed Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, and obtainable from the Publications Branch, unfit seed is described as that which does not comply with the Seed Control Act requirements respecting the sale of seed in Canada, or if it has been refused admittance into any other country on account of low vitality.

The regulations will be carried out through the Custom's officials who are required to take and forward to the Dominion Seed Laboratory for examination, sample of lots of seeds of the classes named entered for consumption in Canada. Seed that has arrived in Canada and found to be unfit shall be deported under Customs supervision. The penalty for failing to comply with these regulations is $500 for the first offence and not exceeding $1000 for the second and each subsequent offence.

THE DOLLAR IN YOUR TOWN

Just a dollar on a mission sent, makes lots of people glad each time a coin is spent. You pay it to the butcher for meat to give you strength he takes it to the grocer from whom it goes at length, some pretty lace or cloth his better half to buy, or help to get her winter hat to make her rival sigh. The drygoods man sent on the coin to pay the market bill, and through the coin is often spent it stays a dollar still, and every time 'tis spent at home, some act of good is done, in booming local industries it's bound to make them run. But if you take the shining coin and break the local chain, the chances are that from afar 'twill not return again. If once it passes out of town the butcher and baker, the grocer and the dry goods man, the furniture man and carpenter, the wagon man and blacksmith, the shoeman and the printer, every one will lose the chance to touch the coin ere the setting of the sun. little coin at home, just keep it moving well, and every time it changes hands somebody's goods 'twill sell. That single little dollar has thus a wondrous power to make somebody happy a dozen times an hour. It pays the bill and wards off ill and ne'er its power relaxes, to soothe the doctor, buy the coal and pay for clothes and taxes.

Secret of the Tanks

(London Daily Chronicle)

How the mystery of the tanks was kept until their arrival in France has now been revealed. They were packed in such a way that it was impossible for anyone to tell what they were. The railway staff, of course, knew, but they kept the secret.

The 2,166 tanks were conveyed on the London & Southwestern system from Southampton to Dieppe and Cherbourg by means of the train ferry, the construction of which was begun in February, 1917. The first ferry boat to make the crossing to France left Southampton on November 13, 1917. The train ferry of Southampton, and that at Richborough in Kent, were constructed about the same time, and are the only two train ferries in this country.

DRESS OF WASHABLE CREPE

This frock is faultlessly made in America of washable Japanese cotton crepe imported by Vantine's. It is cut in a comfortable one-piece style. The front is finished in a jaunty blouse effect, with jointed lapels and four large pearl buttons. A military collar of white cotton crepe drapes gracefully over the shoulders and extends down the front, forming a chic vestee effect which closes with five small pearl buttons. The girdle passes through a novel panel back around the waist and falls carelessly in front. Close fitting one-ecm sleeves are finished with a row of white pearl buttons.
