

ROUND ABOUT ENGLAND.

VI.

FIRST CLASS.

THE facilities for travelling "round about England" are not surpassed in any country in the world. The train service is frequent and rapid, and the luxury of the carriages leaves nothing to be desired. Whatever may be said in favour of the Canadian Pullman and Palace car, those who have made experience of the cosy comfort of an English carriage will think it is the very perfection of travel. The obnoxious tobacco habit finds entrance even here; but smokers are kept strictly by themselves.

We will, in this paper, take a glance at some of the more noted ecclesiastical structures of Great Britain.

The quaint cathedral city of Canterbury is one of the oldest and most interesting in the realm. Its history can be traced back over eight hundred years. Here are the picturesque ruins of St. Augustine's monastery, and here is the stately cathedral, the mother-church of Great Britain. It is 522 feet long, and the choir alone is 180 feet in length—larger than most modern churches.
