

this loan fully subscribed must be patent to all, and it will be the duty of every red-blooded Canadian to buy it to the exclusion, for the time being, of all other investments. The floating of this loan will be inaugurated on October 27th, and it is expected that three weeks from that date the full amount of the issue will be subscribed. Indeed, if it is not over-subscribed, there will be much disappointment among those in charge of the campaign. At this writing the terms of the loan have not been officially announced, though it is unofficially stated to be a bond giving a return to the investor of $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., the bond to be taxable, and the issues to run five or fifteen years. Aside entirely from any patriotic motives, such a bond will prove an investment of the highest possible class.—Saturday Night.

The German Fleet which was surrendered by terms of the Armistice to the Allies pending the Peace Terms, was sunk by its own crews at noon on Saturday, June 21st. The ships, valued at $350,000,000, were unarmed and manned by skeleton crews of Germans. These crews opened the sea-cocks and took to the boats, with the result that all the battle-ships and battle cruisers, except the Baden and many of the destroyers went to the bottom.

The British Admiralty have been subjected to severe criticism since they were the guardians appointed by the Allies to watch the interned fleet until its disposition was determined. Nevertheless, by the terms of the Armistice, no British guards were allowed on the ships.

With the death of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, ends a remarkable career, the story of which seems to prove that "a poor girl" may attain a place of importance and fame in this world just as well as if she had had the luck to be born "a poor boy." From a humble beginning, through sheer pluck and a determination to win, Dr. Shaw rose to be a distinguished leader, especially in the cause of woman suffrage, and in other movements having for their object the betterment of humanity. "With her great gift of oratory," says a writer in the New York Sun, "her absolute devotion to 'the cause,' her administrative ability, her superb health, and that genial frankness which made a party of men with whom she was thrown at dinner describe her as 'a good mixer,' Dr. Shaw was perhaps the strongest force for the advancement of women that the age has known."—Literary Digest.

Andrew Carnegie, the great philanthropist and iron-master, died at his magnificent summer home, Lenox, Mass., on August 11. With the exception of John D. Rockefeller, he has given more to public purposes than any individual who ever lived. He is best known for his great gifts for the establishing of libraries. His largest contributions have been given, however, to found educational organizations.
