

the details which might be expected from them could not but be instructive and gratifying, showing the difficulties which always attend the discharge of this duty in such extended spheres of labour on the rugged shores of this island, and the devotion to their ministry which we are always happy to think is characteristic of the Clergy of our beloved Church. The following are all that have been forwarded since the last report.

The Rev. W. K. WHITE, of Harbour Briton writes as follows:—

"My returns this year show a slight increase over last years amount of contributions to the Church Society in this Mission. And I have no doubt that the amount this year would have been greater if I had been able to carry out my intention of visiting every individual settlement. In the Spring, speaking of my plans to a friend he very handsomely offered me the use of his yacht and three hands, in August and September, free of all expense, and I should gladly have availed myself of the generous offer but for the delay in the arrival of the Bishop. I did make use of the yacht for a short time, and the Church in general is much indebted for this kindness.

"I cannot say I meet with much difficulty and unpleasantness in making the collections, the difficulty and unpleasantness arise from my inability to cruise when and where I ought, and to carry out the work I feel necessary to be done."

The Rev. J. MORETON, of Greenspond thus writes:—

"I beg to furnish you with a list of contributions in this Mission to the general Church Collection for 1859. The number of contributors and the amount contributed are much larger than in any year hitherto, though still much below what may and ought to be, and I trust will be, the yearly return from this large and generally prosperous flock. For this year's improvement in the collection, I acknowledge myself much indebted to the cordial co-operation of my Churchwardens and some other influential members of my flock. I am most happy also to testify that there is an encreasing right feeling in the Church members generally, of which the collection is a true criterion. The new Church in Greenspond was aided in its erection by a grant of money from the Church Society. I am able now to report with thankfulness, that the building is complete and furnished in almost every particular, and has been kept clear of debt. I believe it capable of accommodating about 700 persons. It awaits Consecration by his Lordship the Bishop, but has been in use for Divine Service since Sept. 1858; and the result of its erection has been that
