

his attempts at public speaking, (if he has made any,) are only laughed at, his eyes are opened, and he finds that the world do not view him in the same light as his mother did. At length, disappointed of that blaze of Ciceronian glory, which he fondly anticipated ; and being unable to pay for the wine of which he has drank more bottles than he has shillings in his pocket, he lays himself under an obligation to his heels, for saving him from limbo. Now, Mr. Scribbler, if students at law continue to flock in in such incredible numbers, the consequence will be that in a very little time there will be but one cause between every two lawyers. I will thank you, therefore, to give our youngsters, or rather their mammas, some wholesome advice, that they may not one day have to lament an empty craw, and an unmoistened throat. Vale, your's obsequiously
UNUS ASINORUM.

---

TO CORRESPONDENTS AND SUBSCRIBERS. THE SCRIBLEROMANIA, a farce, is in rehearsal, and will shortly appear.— A FRIEND TO ST. ANDREW, SOCIALITY, NICODEMUS WATCHER, JONAH (viz. his second favour, the first not having yet come to hand, whether swallowed by a whale, or intercepted by the Ninevites, being uncertain) No. 5 of CHAMBLY JOURNAL, and the Dialogue between Reason and Satire, are received, and will all have places as soon as space will permit ; also the substance of the letter from AMICUS CURIAE. The Chambly, Three Rivers, La Prairie, St. Matthias, and Quebec articles are taken ad notam ; but these correspondents, also ANGELUS VENIT, P. L., OLIVET, and JEAN BAPTISTE D. from Quebec, are not sufficiently explicit in sending keys, without which it is impossible for the editor, properly, to exercise his judgement. THE BELLMAN, writes on a matter rather too insignificant, but may perhaps be employed. CANDIDE and others, referred to Mr. Gossip. MONTEZUMA's wishes shall be complied with ; the versification of the incident he relates will be most welcome. PARACELsus rejected.