

GOING DOWN FROM JERUSALEM

The thing must be done, then, for the unpardonable offence of lifting a hand against the Anglo-Saxon, or the servant of the Anglo-Saxon, in an Eastern land occupied by the English; there was no evading a duty of this grave public nature, lest the journey of some other traveller be more seriously interrupted, they all wisely said.