HOME-RUN LEAR HORNED IN AGAIN

MONDAY MORNING AUGUST 5 1918

Both King and Duke Did Their Bit-Herche Hardly Clever Enough to Down Ida.

By Ida L. Webster.

Both good and bad baseball was dished at the island on Saturday for the benefit of four or five thousand fans. The first game was the prize winner with Herche pitching and Howley catching, while the second effort was under the direction of Peterson and Fisher. Anderson was the leading light in the last battle, and Reilley and Lear in the first.

last battle, and Reilley and Lear in the list.

The kid Hoyt pitched for Newark in the first part of the afternoon, and set the first part of the afternoon, and he has not had the experience of some of the others, but when he does finally get all of that, he will be one of the seven wonders of the world. He has perfect control, and also appears to be calm at all times. In other words it would take a wise old bird to rattle him in any one way or another.

He was not given much support. In fact the players did not seem to try to work behind him. Added to this he permitted King Lear to lean on one for a home run in the fourth, and after that they al hit like a lot of mad men. It was practically impossible for Hoyt to allow a ball to get over the plate, because if he did it sure enough went for a hit, and the rest of the mob looked helplessly on.

As for the Leafs in the first contest a hit, and the rest of the mob looked helplessly on.

As for the Leafs in the first contest they were on their toes all the way, and Reilley made himself look like a million dollars, not only when he scooped up a hard one with one hand after a run, but all thru the afternoon he was running wild, and what is more to the point he was getting everything which he went after. At the bat he was "there," getting on in some way almost every time up, and you know what that "there," getting on in some way almost every time up, and you know what that means. If there is a chance at all he will get around the circuit; just let him get around the circuit; just let him get on, and then you may sit back and watch him come home. Nine times out of ten he will make the grade.

Lear was in great form in the first game, and when he went up to the bat he went with a purpose. In fact so much so, that he picked a nice soft one for a continuous trip, which also brought another man over the pan with him. In the field he grabbed one of the fastest of the season, and in getting it he almost twisted himself out of shape, but such is good baseball. Onslow, too, had a good day, in both the field and at the plate, and his playing had a lot to do with the winning of the game.

Bugs pitched a very good game indeed until the last inning when he weakened to the tune of three runs, but he had one pass, and hit, which is remarkably good going, particularly in the time of war. Dan did the receiving in great form, and he also contributed to the hit column. Unfortunately he attempted to stretch what would have been a corking single into a double and was caught a run.

had sent Mokan across the plate with a run.

Young Billy Purtell worked around there on Saturday with all the confidence in the country, and he was going good. His one hit looked mighty fine in the stand. He is one ball player who appears to be playing ball, not for a living, but more for the pleasure which he derives from a game. His work is always most conscientious, and on the occasions when he does make an error it is harder on him than it is on the fans or the rest of the club, for that matter. When it comes to grandstand playing, he is not there for a minute, but did you ever notice that the stars are all like that? Look the list over and you will see that we have the right dope here, at least.

see that we have the right dope here, at least.

The Newark bunch are not sunbirds, by any means, because they do not attempt to get anything which goes anywhere near the bright spots in the field. This inability of theirs has been very noticeable during this last trip, and it must also be most annoying to the pitcher who is in there trying his head off. Damrau was in the game at short, so it is altogether likely that he was not needed for the other league on Saturday, providing, of course, that he is pulling the stunt of chasing from one class to the other.

providing, of course, that he is pulling the stunt of chasing from one class to the other.

Swigler's home run in the second game was unquestionably the longest hit of the season, which is saying a very great deal, because there have been "some" clouts in that old field. Shay has been off his stride during the series here, but not so Downey; he has been in fine fettle, and his hitting, or near-hitting, has been something to consider on several occasions. Rommell plays well in the field, where he substitutes on days when he is not doing duty in the box. Madden manages to keep himself right up in the race, and, tho he may be old, he certainly has not forgotten how to hit and run. He is a much superior catcher to his sparring partner, Bill kelly.

Peterson was looking very tired, and the result shows that he was not in the usual speed which he has been showing of late. This player is used without a rest, and he is beginning to show the strain; however, it must be said that the Bears were working harder in the last game than they were in the first, and so Pete came in for the brunt of their blows. As was said before, Andy was the real issue from the Toronto standpoint in the second game, and his work cannot be complimented too highly.

We have always been strong believers in advertising; you know, really, it is not only the life of trade, but in many cases the spice of life. Take our own is monal case, for instance, and you will see exactly what we mean. If we did not have a press agent we would miss a lot of publicity, which we are now able to get, and we might also say that we have one of the best fellows in the world right on our own job, at that—meaning, of course, Bugs Herche. He has been the course of the course
