

ENOUGH SAID.

What word more need be said of the Clothing we make up? They have stood the test in the past and will do so in the future.

THEIR ANNUAL HUSTLE.

The Trinity Medics Had a Big Time Yesterday Afternoon, But There Were No Wicked Elevations.

"Trinity expects every Primary man this day to do his duty."

Such was the historic sentiment, which, portrayed in good round characters, on the blackboard in the lecture hall of Trinity Medical School, yesterday, inspired the sponophores with an insatiable desire for more.

It was the occasion of the annual "hustle" of the freshmen. The hall was filled to the doors, and ranged on one side and occupying half the room was a crowd of spectators.

At the top and "elevated" in an unbecomingly saucy manner from Toronto Medical College, who were placed the "burly sponophores," whose duty it was to "vitalize" the hapless "freshies." The hall is amphitheatrical in character, with desks at each end of the platform at the front.

Conspicuous by their absence were the men wearing a white jersey, and others having on nothing but undershirt, trousers and boots. The Primary men stood on the tiers of seats to receive the newcomers as they were landed from the boats.

Although some of these latter kicked and quizzed a little, yet it was unbecomingly a time, through the guarded doorway, at one by one they were passed by iron bars to the top and "elevated" in an unbecomingly saucy manner from Toronto Medical College.

ROSEBERY'S RESIGNATION

In Still the Paramount Topic in Political Circles in England—Newspaper Comments.

New York, Oct. 12.—A special cable despatch to The New York Herald this morning says: Public interest is still intense upon the new situation created by Lord Rosebery's resignation, and his forcible speech, which makes him the hero of the hour, produces a marked change in popular feeling, and gives the death blow to the agitators who have persistent urged England to plunge into a quixotic war against all Europe in behalf of supposed oppressed Armenians. Lord Rosebery's calm exposition of the situation is seriously discussed in all circles of society, and the moral, however, could not fall to mark the changed tone of public sentiment. Seldom in English history has a resignation produced such a decided instantaneous effect.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTS.

The Westminster Gazette, a Liberal organ, says: "Looking at his speech as a whole, we have the liveliest hope that it will have the effect of settling upon right lines and strengthening the Government in making supposed Armenian claims."

The Globe says: "The agitators have been running on the platform of a 'policy' which are inevitable if we are in earnest."

The St. James' Gazette says: "There has been a change of opinion in the House of Commons, and the Government are now in a position to deal with the Armenian question on a more rational basis."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "It remains to be seen whether his hint that he will not be a candidate for the next election will be taken by those who are now working for him."

The Morning Post says: "The resignation of Lord Rosebery is a great relief to the public mind, and it is to be hoped that it will mark the beginning of a more rational and peaceful policy towards the Armenians."

The Standard says: "The resignation of Lord Rosebery is a great relief to the public mind, and it is to be hoped that it will mark the beginning of a more rational and peaceful policy towards the Armenians."

The Superintendent of Presbyterian Missions Talks About His Tour.

He Attended the Meetings of the Synods of Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia—He Has Little Faith in the Northwest Settlers Who Filled in the Western States—The Outlook in the Mission Field is Bright.

Mr. D. Robertson, Superintendent of Presbyterian Missions, returned to Toronto on Saturday evening, in time to attend the meeting of the Executive of the General Assembly, Western Section, of the Home Mission Society, which began last evening and will continue in session the following days of this week.

Mr. Robertson, who has been away for several months, attended the meeting of the Synods of Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia before coming East.

He reports that the mission work done in the West during the past season has been very satisfactory, and that the lines were set so far extended as to be a success.

Settlers in new districts have been following the lines of the mission work, and the lines were set so far extended as to be a success.

IN THE MINING DISTRICTS.

The mining districts of British Columbia have been very successful in the past season, and the lines were set so far extended as to be a success.
