That this subject can be handled in a profitable manner by the man who has the business ability to successfully conduct a big farm is evidenced by the most forcibly on slight acquaintance. OPPOSITION TO THE G.T.P.

We are told that there is no great public clamor against the Grand Trunk Pacific bargain, and that, therefore, the fight at Ottawa is being carried on in vain. If there were a great public clamor all sections of the Dominon in vain. If there were a great public clamor, we should be told that the ion.

The like clamor, we should be told that the ion.

The like clamor, we should be told that the ion.

The like clamor, we should be told that the ion.

The like clamor is consuming factor the first thing, and the farmer absorbs the money formerly paid him in commissions.

The men of the farm were out in were rank demagogs, and that the Ministers were showing statesmanship in refusing to be intimidated by a mob.

The absence of public clamor does not prove the goodness of the measure. It is not one of those measures which excite the passions of the people. It is unfortunately true that the expenditure of an immense sum of money on an unwise and unbusiness-like project may not arouse any great force and the majority were too busy to accept the amusement features of the huge aggregation seriously the first day. It was the associations of the near future than the casual observer may imagine. The co-operative canning factory has already become a stock, the dairy exhibits and the machinery of the process building. Their families were there for pleasure, but the head of the family was busily engaged in securing estimates on farm utensils, the quotation on the blooded less salaries and commissions is just. force and the majority were too busy like project may not arouse any great public opposition; but it does not follow that parliament should sanction it. gaged in securing estimates on farm utensils, the quotation on the blooded stock he proposed to add to his herds, and other details of business. This will engross the average farmer around the grounds for the first day or so, and then he may indulge in the amusement features. This is one of the characteristics of the Canadian farmer, the development of which has made him the powerful factor of the country, and supplies is sure to meet with a good deal of favor.

The Globe thinks that the bill should not be obstructed because it does not violate any of the "cardinal ethical principles." The waste of public money is surely not to be defended on ethical grounds. In attempting to combine the advantages of a transcontinental railway and a colonization railway, the government has run the risk of spending large sums of money on a railway that will be good for neither purpose. Colonization railways and Quebec, of course, but it does, not follow that a section of a transcontinental inte would best answer the purpose. The opening up of these regions by new railways is a policy that should be dealt with on its own merits. In this respect the government, as The Globe now admits, is proceeding without precise information. It is merely declared, in a vague way, that there is some good country to the north, and that the building of a railway there is not physically impossible. As a colonization railway, it is an experiment, in a leap in the dark. As a transcontinental railway, it is an experiment, as a leap in the dark. Some unionist papers in Great Britain are urging Mr. Chamberlain to cut down his preferential trade propogals so that they will not alarm anybody. The Yorkshire Post, following the lead of the London Standard appeals to Mr. Chamberlain not to embarrass the government and the party—an appeal that has a very familiar sound. The Post continues: "An 18-penny or 2-shilling duty on foreign grain could not be regarded in any sense as a protective tax, and if the Chancellor of the Ex. Alegheny is not a Scientist church, nor has basis there would be little opposition to fear." The duty proposed is equivalent to 41-2 or 6 cents a bushel.

But He Not Encouraging.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—A deputation of citizens, headed by Messrs, Belcourt and Birkett, M.P.s, and Mayor Cook, interwiwed Sir Wilfrid Laurier this morning and asked him to use his influence towards obtaining permission for the jubilee presents to be exhibited at the Central Canada Fair, which opens on Monday next. The speakers were Mr. Belcourt, Mayor Cook and J. White. Mayor Cook suggested that, in view of London's wish to have the presents at its exhibition, they might be divided and half come to Ottawa.

"There can be no division," said the Premier in reply. "All must come or none at all. I can only transmit your application to the proper quarter. I have received quite a few applications of a similar character, but I did not see my way to recommend them. You say Ottawa is the capital. Very true. Every city thinks it has a special claim of its own. This is Eastern Ontario, and Western Ontario, too, has its claim. I shall do my best to favor your wishes, but I can promise nothing more.
