BRITISH CLAIMS WERE ABANDONED

Treaty With the United States Was a Surrender, Says London Standard.

London, Feb. 17. - The Standard, perience that the semi-official announcement that the negotiations for an arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States are making satisfactory headway means a surrender to the United States. It says that, judged by results, Great Britain has always been wrong when in a controversy with America. The audacious American diplomats, from Blaine to Root, have increasingly presumed upon the British sense of kinship, but it never occurred to the FOR SALE-BUTCHER SHOP, WITH British envoys to act in a similar manner. Owing to the culpable simplicity or absurd timidity of British officials, the successive conventions mark so many abandonments of British claims, which most people here believe were British rights. The Standard's alarm is not aroused by the mere question of arbitration, but it is due to the fact that it is stated the negotiations include certain outstanding questions, and it refoundland question, in which, it says, TENNENT & SHAW, VETERINARY surgeons—Office, 137 King; residence and infirmary, King and Wellington, Phones: as a cat plays with a mouse."
