MISS ALICE KENNEY WOULD BE MARTYR

Ready to Follow Lead of Emily Davison

ALL FOR THE SAKE OF VOTE

Goes to Ulster Unionists For Justification of the Course Fighting Women Have Followed—Makes Speech in English Court

(Canadian Press) London, June 17.—An impassioned speech in defence of the outrages committed by militant suffragettes was delivered today in the central criminal court by Miss Alice Kenney, during the trial of suffragette leaders. Her address served to enliven the proceedings. She uttered the defiant assertion: "If I have got to die to get the vote, I will die whatever the verdict of the jury may be."

Greater interest was taken in today's proceedings than in any previous stage of the trial. The entrance of the accused, Miss Harriet Kerr, Miss Agnes Lake, Miss Rachel Barrett, Mrs. Beatrice Saunders, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Laura Lennox, and Clayton, a chemist, alleged to have acted as adviser to the suffragettes in their campaign, found the court crowded. Women formed the majority of the audience, and among them were Mrs. Winston Spencer Churchill, wife of the first lord of the admiralty, and Miss Violet Asquith, daughter of the premier.

Miss Kenney devoted much of her speech to the action of the Ulster Unionists and the speeches of cabinet ministers, who, she averred, had asserted that the unfranchised were justified in rebelling in order to get their grievances remedied, furnished ample warrant for the course pursued by the militant suffragettes. If further justification was necessary, she said, "the trickery and treachery of cabinet ministers, who had hunted and hounded the women from pillar to post, supplied it. The present government, she contended, had a blacker record on the question of women suffrage than any other. It had treated the aspirations of the women more abominably than any British government had done since 1867. As for herself, she belonged to the working classes. At the age of five she said she was a half-timer in a factory and she had joined the suffrage movement because of the terribly cruel conditions under which women worked in the British Isles. (She added: "I am a rebel and a rebel I shall remain, until women receive the vote. If I die, Miss Davison, it should be necessary for me to sacrifice my life, then I shall die.")

SCIENCE MAKES ANOTHER ADVANCE

Doctors Hold Out Possibility of Rapid Cure For Whooping Cough Sore

Paris, June 17.—The possibility of the discovery of a cure for whooping cough was held out today at the Academy of Sciences by Mr. Emile Roux, director of the Pasteur Institute and a member of the Academy of Medicine. He was merely transmitting a report of Dr. Alfred Comor, bacteriologist of the Delvigne Military Hospital, Tunis, where, with the collaboration of Doctor Nicole, he had prepared a solution containing living whooping cough bacilli which they injected into 122 children suffering from the disease, repeating it every three days. Thirty per cent of the children recovered in less than three weeks, whereas, under ordinary treatment, the mildest attacks last two and some times five or six months. Of the rest forty per cent improved greatly, while the remaining twenty-three per cent were not affected either for good or bad. Doctor Roux, while declaring the experiments thus far were on too small a scale to make definite pronouncement, said he believed an effective cure for whooping cough was in sight.

"Cadet Edward" Tramps 20 Miles; Mercury at Eighty

Heir to British Throne Refuses to Give up in Trying March of Young Soldiers

London, June 17.—"Cadet Edward," as the Prince of Wales is enrolled and known in the officers' training corps, marched twenty miles yesterday, carrying a rifle, knapsack and water bottle. The thermometer was eighty degrees in the shade, but he finished in good condition. The prince slept on Sunday night in a barn with his fellow cadets. He turned out at five o'clock and washed at the village pump. It was already hot when the march started, and soon after the sun was broiling. At ten miles some of the cadets gave up and were put in ambulances. The majority of them, however, including the prince, went through the twenty miles notwithstanding the choking dust, the heat and the weight of their equipment. During the last five miles, when all were getting fagged out, somebody suggested that the prince fall out. He replied with a determined "No." The march was finished at midday. The prince then slept for two hours, after which he swam across a pond.

BRIDGIE WEBBER WAS ABLE TO LEAVE THE HOSPITAL TODAY

Still No Clue to One Who Stabbed Gambler—Believe It Revenge Matter

New York, June 17.—"Bridgie" Webber, a witness against former police lieutenant, Charles S. Becker, the convicted instigator of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was able today to leave the hospital where he has been since early on Saturday morning when he was stabbed in the back under mysterious circumstances. Fears that the knife used might have been poisoned were groundless, and it is believed there is no further danger of complications. Webber has steadfastly refused to tell anything more of the stabbing than he has left a party at Sam Paul's East Side restaurant, at which some of his former associates in the underworld were present. Many of his East Side friends, however, hold to the belief that Webber's life was sought by some of his enemies in revenge for his testimony in the Becker trial, involving many members of the gamblers' fraternity.

CELEBRATION TOO MUCH FOR STRENGTH OF REST—Kaiser Compelled to Resign Today's Events in Berlin

Berlin, June 17.—The Emperor Augustus Victoria did not participate in the celebration of the completion of the twenty-fifth year of her husband's reign. The events of the last few days following on the heavy strain of the ceremonies accompanying her only daughter's wedding have proved too much for her strength and she was forced to leave the imperial box at the opera in the middle of last evening's gala performance. The Crown Princess Cecilie will represent Her Majesty at tonight's state dinner at the castle. Today's celebration, which was again favored by splendid weather opened with a parade organized by the trades unions. It was reviewed by Emperor William from the castle. Only 10,000 participants, but the procession was imposing and interesting, owing to the hundreds of floats. The streets appeared to be even more crowded than yesterday, the spectators having much more to see in the workmen's parade; the state procession of the German rulers to the castle, and tonight's torchlight processions of the students of the Berlin University.

Paris, June 17.—The vital statistics for 1912 report 750,650 births throughout France, as compared with 742,114 in 1911. Dr. Jacques Bertillon, an expert, says that the improvement is more apparent than real, and that the two years 1911 and 1912, have established the worst record in many years, "clearly demonstrating the persistence of the evil which is driving France to ruin." The detailed statistics for 1912 are as follows: Marriages, 311,929; births, 750,750; deaths, 692,740. Dr. Bertillon concludes his statement by saying: "This is the true cause of the three years' military service, which is the merest palliative. Soon four years will be necessary, then five, or perhaps six."

After shooting himself young Porter managed to make his way to the house. Help was promptly summoned and he was taken to the hospital. One bullet penetrated the lung and the other struck a rib and then glanced off into his back. It is believed that a fit of melancholia is responsible for the attempt at self-destruction. Mr. Porter, the young man's foster father, died recently and Harry has been greatly affected by his death.

(Canadian Press) London, June 17.—Queens and duchesses are not above the delight of doing a good piece of business, as a recent incident at Stafford House shows. Queen Mary invited herself to take tea with the Duchess of Sutherland there, principally with the object of looking over the furniture and bric-a-brac, which will be sold in consequence of Sir William Lever having taken over the lease of the mansion. The queen is an amateur in old English furniture, and possesses a nice collection of chippendale. While looking around she noticed two chippendale chairs which she considered would make a handsome adjunct to her collection. Her Majesty asked the duchess the price. Her Grace replied that the reserve was £150 and that Her Majesty was welcome to them at that figure.
