

the confidence, won and retained the love of the Session and proved a blessing to the whole Congregation."

We regret to notice that the aggregate of contributions for "the schemes of the Presbyterian Church in Canada" is not up to the mark of last year. Many, in very good circumstances, have contributed thereto little, some nothing at all.

The net gain to the Communion Roll is 42, making the present membership in full communion 796. But as the Roll has not been revised for two years this number is only approximate. The deaths have been 27. Of these 12 were communicants on the Roll. The Baptisms 30, all infants.

We close this brief review of the year 1891 with deep gratitude to God for the gracious way He has hitherto led us, and for the something He has enabled us, as a Congregation, to do for Him. We turn our faces to the future in Faith, Hope and Love, as "those that watch for the morning."
